Relive The Experience Of Cutting Your Own Tree At Christmastime

During the Christmas season, the Potts family — Lynn; Wesley, 10; Devin, 8; Jenna, 21 months; Doug; and the black labrador Sarge — was busy cutting trees, making wreaths and ornaments, and preparing the 100-year-old restored barn for the many visitors on weekdays and on the busy weekends.

MOHRSVILLE (Berks Co.) — Some people seem perfectly content to stop by a roadside stand or drive to a big retail store parking lot and purchase a Christmas tree for the holidays.

But they might miss the experience of the family get-together at tree picking time. And they often miss the inviting smells of freshly brewed hot chocolate, the scent of pine needles, and the thrill of the wagon ride at the edge of the forest.

They could be missing the fun of simply seeing how the tree they select was grown.

All of this adds up to the experience that Doug and Lynn Potts and family of North Wind Farm in Mohrsville want to convey to those who stop by at their "choose and cut" farm deep in the hill country near Mohrsville.

During the Christmas season, the Potts family — Doug and Lynn with children Wesley, 10, Devin, 8, and Jenna, 21 months — was busy cutting trees, making wreaths and ornaments, and preparing the 100-year-old restored barn for the many visitors on weekdays and on the busy weekends.

The philosophy of the 20-acre North Wind Farm is simple: allow people to experience what Christmas is and how Christmas trees are grown. Don't just push them through a parking lot with a number with no sense of how the trees got there.

"It's not a 'push them in, push them out' experience," said Doug Potts. "We try to talk to every-

20,000 Acres Preserved Ahead Of Goal

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board announced that 20,000 acres of farmland in Lancaster County have been preserved for future generations.

Tom Daniels, director of the program, said, "We recently surpassed the 20,000-acre goal, which we had hoped to reach by the end of the decade, and we're hosting a reception on January 12th to celebrate this achieve-

The Sinan Herd Wins Top State DHIA Management Award

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

PLUMVILLE (Indiana Co.) — Milos Sinan has a theory about why the number of family farms in America is decreasing.

Some farmers, he said, have not made enough improvements and have not kept up with technological advances to keep their farms competitive and earning enough money to support succeeding generations.

Modernization is an on-going process at the Milos and Sandy Sinan farm near Plumville in South Mahoning Township, Indiana County. A new heifer barn and manure storage system were added a few years ago.

And now dump trucks, front-end loaders and construction crews from two companies are hustling in a raw, winter wind to complete two new buildings.

But all the activity has not distracted the Sinan family from its number-one goal: To efficiently produce some of the state's best milk.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association this month announced the Sinans won the statewide Herd Management Award for Holstein cows for the year that ended on Sept. 30. The Sinan farm garnered the honor by posting increases in milk production, protein and butterfat content and by making improvements in mastitis control over the previous year. Other criteria included the herd's reproductive management, the cows' average age to first calving, sustained milk production and other factors.

The Sinan name frequently rises to the top of DHIA charts. In addition to winning many Indiana County DHIA awards, their cows in recent years have also won top state honors for Holstein milk production, and for protein and butterfat production.

Their success is the result of commitment and long days of hard work. The Sinans milk three times each day — 4 a.m., 11:30

First Calves Produced From Predetermined Sex Technique

FORT COLLINS, Co.—A research team led by Colorado State University has devised an artificial-insemination technique to produce the first calves of predetermined sex using sexed semen—a breakthrough that could be worth millions of dollars to the dairy and beef cattle industries.

This research project can be broken down into three key components. First, researchers from the U.S. Department of Agriculture developed methods to sort semen by sex. Second, Colorado State researchers and Atlantic Breeders Cooperative of Lancaster, were able to develop techniques to produce calves with only a fraction of the 20 million sperm normally used for a single artificial insemination by depositing sperm deep into the cow's uterus. Third, these techniques were combined to produce a practical method of predetermining the sex of cattle.

The semen used in this study was first separated into X (female)

Profit taking on the Boards surprised no one. Wheat 5 to 8 cents lower except Portland 1 to 2 cents higher. Corn steady to 1 cent lower. Sorghum steady to 1 cent lower. Soybeans 8 to 10 cents lower. After a long series of sharp price upturns profit taking set in at the Boards. Longs taking a little Christmas money and trade getting ready to slow down for the holidays. No big shattering news to make anyone change their minds to any great degree in either direction. March wheat closed with the same quote at both Chicago and Kansas City. New crop wheat has a little spread. New crop hard wheat below current cash bids and as the spread between corn and wheat continues to narrow livestock feeders are beginning to look at new crop hard wheat quotes.

North Atlantic Shell Eggs

Report Supplied by USDA

MARKET COMMENT: PRICES TO RETAILERS IN PHILADELPHIA WERE UNCHANGED TO LOWER, AND THE BALANCE OF PRICES WERE UNCHANGED. THE MARKET TONE WAS BARELY STEADY TO WEAK FOR WHITE EGGS, AND CAUTIOUSLY STEADY FOR BROWN EGGS. DEMAND REMAINED SEASONALLY GOOD. SUPPLIES OF WHITE EGGS WERE AT LEAST ADEQUATE AND AVAILABLE, AND BROWN EGG SUPPLIES WERE NO MORE THAN ADEQUATE. BREAKING STOCK SUPPLIES WERE ADEQUATE TO FULLY ADEQUATE FOR THE LIGHT DEMAND. PHILADELPHIA: PRICES TO RETAILERS, SALES TO VOLUME BUYERS, USDA GRADE A AND GRADE A, WHITE EGGS IN CARTONS, DELIVERED TO STORE DOOR, CENTS WERE DOZEN. EXTRA LARGE .84-.97, LARGE .82-.95, MEDIUM .76-.79.

National Egg Market

DECEMBER 20, 1995

Prices were unchanged to lower for whute eggs in the Northeast and Midwest, and the balance of prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady at best for white eggs with a cautious tone mounting. Demand was moderate to excellent into retail channels, and institutional movement was mixed across the full range. Supplies of brown eggs were nomore than adequate, and white egg supplies were adequate to fully adequate or available. Breaking stock supplies were adequate to fully adequate for the light demand, and prices were lower under a barely steady to weak trade sentiment. Spent hen offerings were adequate to fully adequate for the light to moderate

DECEMBER 21, 1995

Trucklot buying interest was light and selective. Yellow skin wings were in tight supply. Breast items were irregularly balanced, but where excess supplies were available, they were competitively priced in an effort to stimulate movement. Leg items were fully adequate for a generally sluggish demand. The market tone was fully steady on wings; barely steady on the balance.

Delmarva Broiler

DECEMBER 20, 1995

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds ranged seasonally light to fair and generally unaggressive. Offerings varied, but were fully adequate, particularly on sizes over 3.5 pounds. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights were mostly desirable to heavy. Processing schedules were reduced or curtailed in some instances and were heavy in total. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 52 to 63 cents. Trade sentiment was no better than steady. Wings were generally well cleared. Breast items were slow to clear. Leg items were fully adequate, occasionally ample.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
DECEMBER 20, 1995

Compared to Monday of last week: Feeder steers steady to 1.00 lower. Feeder heifers, as well as steer and heifer calves 1.00-2.00 lower. Demand moderate. Quality plain to average. Flesh conditions of calves and yearlings thin to medium. Weigh-ups mostly average, few gaunt. Oklahoma's drought of 76 days ended Sunday as a western front moved thru the state giving much needed moisture to the Oklahoma wheat belt. Cold front pushed thru on Monday leaving most of the state under a blanket of snow. About 1 inch of rain and from 3-8 inches of snow fell. A slight chance of rain or snow is expected for the end of this week and the first part of next week. Slaughter cows steady to 1.00 higher, advance on Utility cows. Slaughter bulls steady. Packer demand good for light holiday supplies. Weigh-ups very much in buyers favor with several high yielding cows in consist. Total of 265 cows and bulls sold with 85 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 7,500; last week 11,244; last year 6,788. Supply consisted of 65 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 31 percent calves under 600 lbs; 4 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis. Feeder Steers: Medium and Large 1 300-350 lbs (337 lbs) 68.75-72.00 (71.19); 400-450 lbs (420 lbs) 63.00-68.50 (67.03); 450-500 lbs (460 lbs) 65.00-67.00 (65.31); 500-600 lbs (550 lbs) 60.00-66.50 (63.96) 600-700 lb calves (650 lbs) 60.25-64.25 (61.17); 650-700 lb yearlings 66.26-68.00 (68.85); 700-800 lbs (750 lbs) 65.75-68.25 (67.45); 800-900 lbs (850 lbs) (66.58). The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

JANUARY 1-7, 1996

FULL WOLF MOON, JAN. 5.

PURE WATER AND LONESOME WOLVES

The ancient Egyptians celebrated on what is now the sixth of January to honor the purity of the Nile River, at its stillest and cleanest then. After the birth of Jesus, it was naturally concluded that Christian baptism would be held when the water was cleanest, so Epiphany — the celebration of the baptism of Jesus — was held on January sixth. This year the celebration is illuminated by the Full Wolf Moon, so named for the lonesome cry of the wolves in the deep winter snows.

In matters of style, swim with the current; in matters of principle, stand like a rock. – Thomas Jefferson

TIP OF THE WEEK

POTATO SOUP VERDE

- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 4 large potatoes, peeled and chopped
- 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach
- water, as directed
- salt, to taste
- 2 to 3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1/2 to 1/3 cup warm skim milk (optional)

Sauté onions in oil until translucent. Add potatoes, cheese, parsley, pepper, and spinach. Add water just to cover, adding more if soup becomes too thick. Cook, covered, over low heat, stirring occasionally. When potatoes are soft, put soup through blender. Add salt, vinegar, and milk if desired.

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

Crows flying crazily indicate a storm coming.

The days have lengthened one cock's stride.

Three fogs in a row, then a rain.

When the hens are noisy, the weather will be blowsy.

January wet, no wine you get.

The Christmas Story

And it came to pass in those days, that there went out a decree from Caesar Augustus, that all the world should be taxed. (And this taxing was first made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.) And all went to be taxed every one into his own city. And Joseph also went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Bethlehem; (because he was of the house and lineage of David:) To be taxed with Mary his espoused wife, being great with child. And so it was, that, while they were there, the days were accomplished that she should be delivered. And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you: Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

And it came to pass, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the shepherds said one to another, Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing which is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us. And they came with haste, and found Mary, and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger. And when they had seen it, they made known abroad the saying which was told them concerning the child. All they that heard it wondered at those things which were told them by the shepherds.

The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.

For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Do Cash Flow Budgets

Alan Strock, extension farm management agent, gives us five reasons to do a cash flow budget for your farm business.

First, to show the seasonal timing of cash in and out of the business. This will help you determine when you can pay your bills early and receive an early payment discount.

Second, to show lenders your business' loan repayment capacity especially in times of transition.

Third, to see if sufficient cash exists for the business to support a capital investment or should you borrow money for the capital investment.

Fourth, to measure your business' ability to meet its obligations, that is, cash expenses, debt repayment, taxes, etc.

Fifth, to determine the timing and limit of your line of credit.

To Properly Inflate Tractor Tires

Proper inflation of tractor tires can save the operator money according to Dr. Randall K. Wood, Ohio State University. The revisions of the recommended pressures for radial ply tires made since 1992 are saving operators fuel and time in the field.

The new lower pressure will create a slight bulge in the tire that makes them look underinflated. In general, research has shown that the correct radial tire pressure can save 10 to 20 percent of the cost of operating a tractor.

In one study, the new lower pressure recommendation saved 36 gallons of fuel and 3.6 hours of work time in a field test on a 280-acre farm in Ohio. In this study, 18.4R46 dual radial tires were inflated to the new pressure recommendation of 8 psi compared to 14 psi.

For the correct inflation of any tire, you should check with the tire manufacturer. In addition to saving fuel, the lower pressure will extend the useful life of the tire and reduce the amount of soil compaction.

To Study The Nutrient Management Regulations

The proposed nutrient management regulations will soon be published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

These are very important regulations that will effect all poultry, livestock, and dairy farmers and many crop farmers. These regulations will be the framework for how nutrients will be applied to cropland.

There will be a series of meetings over the next three months to explain the new regulations and receive public comment. It will be very important to have farmers comment on the regulations and ask questions.

Because of the impact these regulations will have on farming, it will be very important for all farmers to become knowledgeable of them.

Read everything you can and attend as many meetings as possible. The more informed you are about these regulations, the better you will be able to make comment and be in compliance.

Feather Prof.'s Footnote: "It is wise to remember that no success or failure is necessarily final."

THE QUIETEST CHRISTMAS

THE QUIETEST CHRISTMAS
December 24, 1995

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 11:1-9; Luke 2:1-20
Devotional Reading:
Hebrews 8:6-12

When God discloses some great new thing
He does so with fanfare and drum;
But when God sent His only son to earth,
*Only silent shepherds heard Him come.

Does it ever strike you that, for all of its great significance for our world, for all the noise and pomp of our celebrations, Christmas in its essence is a supremely quiet event. And the first Christmas was the quietest of all.

There were no TV cameras or newspaper reporters, no official delegations from city hall, no canned carols or civic decorations. The event took place, not in the convention center or even a downtown church, but in a lowly stable. The principal characters were not celebrities, but humble travelers far from home. The "anointed one" came, not as a charismatic leader, but as a newborn baby and they laid him in a manger, not to "make a statement," but "because there was no place for them in the inn."

SILENTLY, SILENTLY

It was not the VIPs of Bethlehem that came to pay homage to the newborn child, but simple shepherds keeping watch over their flocks on nearby hills. To be sure, Luke tells us that an angel brought them the good news and "suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God..." Presumably the shepherds heard this "heavenly host," but, if they did, they didn't say much about it. The next day there was no report of it in the local papers.

In 1868 Bishop Phillips Brooks wrote his carol. "O Little Town of Bethlehem," and gave poignant testimony to the serenity of the incarnation:

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven.

But this Christmas was no less real and earth-shaking because it was relatively silent. In fact, the power of Christmas seems to be bound to its quietness. It is the still, small voice of God revealing to his children the best good news the world has ever heard: "I bring you news of a great joy which will come to all the people; for to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior who is Christ the Lord." Note: the newborn Savior is given by God to "all the people," not a chosen few.

THE HINGE OF HISTORY

The late Ralph Washington Sockman has said, "The hinge of history is on the door of a Bethlehem stable." All the hopes and aspirations of all human beings are enfleshed in this baby Jesus who grew up to be Christ the Lord — a saviour who would bring peace to the world, justice for the poor, equity for the meek, and judgement for the wicked. (If that's what Christmas really means, are you sure you want it?).

Isaiah's vision — the wolf dwelling with the lion — is a beautiful one, but many of us would settle for human reconciliation and peace. It is not beyond possibility, for every year Christmas demonstrates to us, however imperfectly, that peace on earth is God's plan for us and anything that is in His plan is within our grasp — if we let the "little child" lead us.

Let us be silent
That we may perceive
The silent sounds
And the unseen sights,
Let us be still that we know

cerned for their grandchildren and were willing to give a large part of their time to prepare an educational program for the kids. Dick and Betty Weller had a dream that maybe, just maybe we could save one child's arm, leg, or even a life.

So we forged ahead expanding our volunteer committee to nine dedicated people. Our goal was to host a farm safety day camp for 100 children, totally funded and supported by the community. To pull off an all-day program was a huge project. The details and communications were at times overwhelming. But through all the frustrations and unexpected difficulties there was always a current of excitement. What we were trying to do was good, was necessary, was important.

To our delight the community responded with great enthusiasm. Business people, health organizations, farmers, schools, parents and grandparents looked up, smiled and said, "Yes, we need to do this, we are happy to help!" And they gave—their time, their resources, their finances—for the sake of the kids. The community's motivation and dedication to farm safety gave the program its momentum and created its success.

Dick and Betty's dream became a reality. More than 200 people benefitted from the Farm Safety Day Camp for kids. Twenty-nine teens gave up an entire Saturday to help organize the campers. Thirty adults donated many hours planning, teaching, setting up and cleaning up. The children and their parents learned a wealth of farm safety information. Perhaps even more important, they learned that they live in a community where people care about them and their futures.

In this season of giving, know well that all of you have given the children a priceless gift—one that will last them a lifetime. I can't help wonder what other neglected issues could be resolved with a positive approach, community support, and people with a dream!

Dairyman's Association Banquet Jan. 8

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.) — The board of directors of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association have issued an open invitation to all interested to attend the organization's annual banquet.

The event has been and continues to be traditionally held as a dinner during Farm Show week, Jan. 6-11.

In addition to awards presentations and top speakers, the event provides an opportunity for those interested in the dairy industry to develop fellowship, meet and socialize.

This year's banquet is to be held 6:30 p.m., Monday, Jan. 8, at the Harrisburg Sheraton-East, located off of Union Deposit Road, just west of the I83 Union Deposit Exit.

A milk punch reception is to be held starting at 6 p.m. with dinner to follow.

Tickets are $16 per person and reservations can be made by calling Dave Smith, secretary of the Pa. Dairyman's Association at (717) 838-3283, or by writing to Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association, 440 Plaza Drive, Palmyra, PA, 17078.

Although a deadline for reservations or ticket purchase hasn't been set, it can be assumed that it would be appreciated that they be made as soon as possible.

Guest speaker for the evening is to be Steve Larson, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, and past president of Dairy Shrine.

In addition, awards to be presented include the 1996 Charles E. Cowan Award, the Extension Service Award, and the Distinguished Dairy Women Award.

Tobacco Price Improves To $1.38

PARADISE (Lancaster Co.) — Tobacco prices finally improved after a couple of weeks after growers declined to sell.

On Friday last week, Paradise Tobacco Auction sold about 330,000 pounds of the tobacco crop at the new prices. Half sold for a top price of $1.38 per pound. The lesser grades sold for $1.35 and $1.25.

Auction owner Eric Probst said "it was a great day."

On Monday this week, the price of $1.38 still held strong. About 242,000 pounds were sold for an average of $1.37 per pound on Monday. On Wednesday, the same top price still held, and 220,000 pounds were sold for an average of $1.36 per pound.

The warehouse is selling about 60 percent to 70 percent of the stock per week.

Six Farmers Re-Elected To N.Y. Farm Bureau Board

MELVILLE, N.Y. — Six farmers were re-elected to the board of directors of the 25,500-member New York Farm Bureau (NYFB).

They are Leon "Ed" Wright, Cattaraugus County; Rich Jerome, Ontario County; Gordon Spreutels, Chanango County; Ralph Child, Franklin County; Richard Coombe, Sullivan County; and Lyle Wells, Suffolk County. The election took place at the New York Farm Bureau convention at the Melville Marriott on Long Island.

Leon "Ed" Wright was first elected to the NYFB board in 1993. He runs a 100-head dairy and maple syrup farm in Farmersville.

Rich Jerome was first elected to the NYFB board in 1991. He runs a fruit and vegetable farm in Naples.

Gordon Spreutels was first elected to the NYFB board in 1991. He owns a 500-acre crop farm in Mt. Upton.

Ralph Child was first elected to the NYFB board in 1994 to fill the post vacated by Jon Greenwood when he was elected vice president. He runs a seed potato farm in Malone.

Richard Coombe was first elected to the NYFB board in 1993. A former state assemblyman, he and his brother, Phil, own and operate a 1,000-acre beef and crop farm in Grahamsville.

Lyle Wells was first elected to the NYFB board in 1993. In 1994, he was elected to the board's executive committee. He owns a vegetable farm in Riverhead.

The New York Farm Bureau state convention took place Dec. 4-7 and was attended by hundreds of farm leaders from around the state.

Ulster Couple Captures Young Farmer Award

MELVILLE, N.Y. — Chris and Jackie Kelder of Accord were chosen as winners of New York Farm Bureau's Outstanding Young Farmer Achievement Award.

The competition was held at New York Farm Bureau's state convention at the Melville Marriott. The runners-up were John Marshman, a Chenango County dairy farmer and Henry Sandefer, an Oneida County dairy farmer.

The Kelders own and operate a 500-acre dairy and small fruit farm in Ulster County. They recently started an educational program for school age children, called "Educational Enterprise," that offers tours of the farm and programs to educate youth about agriculture.

Chris is president of the Ulster County Farm Bureau and Jackie is active in the county Agriculture in the Classroom program. Both are graduates of Cornell University and serve on New York Farm Bureau's State Young Farmer Committee.

As winners, the Kelders received a 486 computer, donated by Farm Family Insurance Companies' agency managers, and a $500 cash award from Dodge Trucks. They will represent New York in the national competition at the American Farm Bureau convention in January in Reno.

Adams County DHIA Names Top Herds

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.)—The Lagging Stream Farm of Thomas Clowney and sons, Robert and John, of Gettysburg, ranked first among 33 herds completing records in the Dairy Herd Improvement Association in Adams County in 1995.

This management team was also recognized with the first place herd management award at the 69th annual awards banquet held Dec. 14, at the fire hall in Harney, Maryland.

Other herds finishing in the top 10 included Roy A. Weaner Jr., of Gettysburg; Way Brite Farms, Gettysburg; Beaver Run Farms, New Oxford; JoBo Holstein Farm, Gettysburg; Leroy Deputy, East Berlin; Latimore Valley Farm, York Springs; Stoner Dairy, East Berlin; R and K Cunningham, Gardners; and Jo Jen Hess, Gettysburg.

President Jeffrey King, York Springs, presided at the meeting and introduced guests. Treasurer Marcia Brown presented a current financial report. In an election of directors, Jeff King and Alan Zepp were retained on the board, Francis Pennings was elected to replace Samuel Stoner.

Julie Zepp, the Adams County dairy princess, reported that she and alternate Dairy Princess Joy Hess are busy presenting in-store promotions. She announced that a Winross truck recognizing the 40th anniversary of the state dairy princess program is being offered for sale as a fund-raiser to support the program. Interested persons should call Bonnie Hess at (717) 334-8553.

Representing the Pennsylvania DHIA program, David Shenk, regional manager urged dairymen to explore the tailor-made testing programs which can be obtained at reduced cost.

Dean Amick, director of Field Operations, reported a very successful beginning for the Milk Urea Nitrogen program. First offered in October, a total of 1,066 herds have already enrolled with several reporting a reduction in feed costs made possible by the MUN test for protein levels in the milk. He invited DHIA members to attend the district meeting which will be held at the Cross Keys Inn, Adams County, on Feb. 1 and the state meeting scheduled for Feb. 16, in State College.

County Agent Thomas E. Piper presented a summary of results of production testing for 1995. With 3,360 cows on test, average milk production at 19,453 pounds exceeded the state average with the county ranking 7th in Pennsylvania. An average 616 pounds of protein was produced by each Adams County cow on test. A total of 1,284 cows, nearly one-third of those in the member herds, were removed during the year due to low production, health causes, or sale.

A cow in the herd of Ray Dutterer, Littlestown, was honored for producing 217,127 pounds of milk in her lifetime. The Robert C. Hoffman herd was recognized for producing the highest quality milk. Awards for high cow single lactation production of milk and protein went to Penn Gate Farm near Littlestown.

Following Clowney's Lagging Stream Farm in receiving the Pa. DHIA herd management award were Latimore Valley Farm in second place, Stoner Dairy in third, Robert C. Hoffman, fourth, and Getty Acres in fifth place.

Piper urged dairy farmers to enroll in Dairy MAP training, the "Managing for Success" module, which will be offered Jan. 3 and 17, at Hoss's Steak and Sea House, Gettysburg.

A Dairy Day program has been planned for Jan. 29 at the same location and a DHIA Production Records Workshop to feature David Shenk, Dean Amick, and Dr. Larry Specht, Penn State Extension Specialist, on Monday, Feb. 26.

Manure 'Odor Guidelines': Is The U.S. Far Behind?

Part 1 of 2

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Odor control guidelines: A good thing?

Could be, according to a North Carolina agricultural waste expert who spoke at a special conference on Monday.

Having some sort of odor control guidelines could protect farm enterprises that deal with a major problem — manure — and from possible odor lawsuits from angry neighbors, according to Mike Williams, director of the Animal and Poultry Waste Management Center at North Carolina State University.

Williams spoke to 80 producers and agri-industry representatives at a conference, "Nuisance Concerns With Animal Agriculture In the Community: The Case of Odors," on Monday at Yoder's Restaurant in New Holland.

According to Williams, in Europe (where odor emission regulations will be standardized by 1997), the guidelines actually help preserve the industries that used to be under attack by civic groups and environmental activists — poultry and livestock operations with confinement housing.

Could the same thing happen here?

According to producers and experts that spoke at the conference, unless there is more communication to and education of the public toward ag practices, more lawsuits and regulations are inevitable.

According to a conference coordinator, Leon Ressler, counties such as Lancaster have experienced tremendous growth in human population and animal numbers. Lawsuits over odors have been increasing in many parts of the state and country.

In Lancaster alone, in the 1960s there were about 60,000 dairy cows in the county. Today there are 95,000 cows.

In the 1960s there were about 60,000 hogs in Lancaster County. Now there are about 370,000 hogs.

The layer industry has seen a substantial increase, from thousands in the 1960s to about nine million now.

And more people than ever before making southeastern Pennsylvania rural areas their home.

The same can be said for North Carolina. According to Williams, North Carolina rocketed from 10th in the country in swine production to second. Now, operations total about eight million pigs. In one southeastern North Carolina county alone there are 30-40 hogs for every person.

There are 600 million broilers in North Carolina and about 60 million turkeys. Williams indicated that the state may be the number one meat producing state in the country. Those operations generate lots of manure — about 30 million tons per year.

Farmers in North Carolina know about the problems and are tired of the challenges associated with dealing with manure.

"Producers are getting very annoyed and tired of being told by the academic segment that manure is a 'valuable resource.'" said Williams. "Manure represents, in most cases, a very significant management problem for most producers."

Indeed. Combined with other states, total U.S. manure production per year from animal agricul-

'Producers are getting very annoyed and tired of being told by the academic segment that manure is a "valuable resource," said Williams. 'Manure represents, in most cases, a very significant management problem for most producers.'

This group action planning session at the conference examined a scenario where a dairy farmer faces complaints from neighbors after installing a liquid manure system. Group coordinator was Norm Conrad, Penn State-Pa. Department of Environmental Protection liaison, center.

Manure 'Odor Guidelines'

Edwin Shank, dairy and swine producer, emphasized the importance of involving the community in decisions and allow them to see and understand how a farm operation works. It is important to talk to neighbors first and find out what they think.

ture sources totals one billion metric tons.

'The controversy became so heated that in 1993 a bill was introduced in the state legislature that could have, if passed, put severe restrictions on the swine industry.'

As a result, North Carolina State University has had to study the issues and come up with solutions to odor control problems. The controversy became so heated that in 1993 a bill was introduced in the state legislature that could have, if passed, put severe restrictions on the swine industry. Instead, a bill was passed to start a study commission, the Swine Odor Task Force. The task force is administered through several agencies, especially the Animal and Poultry Waste Management Center, of which Williams directs.

The task force began in July 1993 to study the problem, evaluate how to examine the odors and the process by which they form, discover ways to record their effects on humans, look at odor abatement technology, and make recommendations that would be economically feasible for producers.

'It's a very complex, scientific issue as well as a psychological issue.'

One of the first things the task force discovered are the misconceptions about odors. How are they produced? How do we measure them? What can be done to control them?

One suggestion was to research ways to get animals to better use feed nutrients and produce less wasted by-products. But more work is needed.

"We are a long way from selecting animals and producing animals that can utilize all of the nutrients that we put in feedstuffs," said Williams.

For one thing, the Clean Air Act does not regulate agricultural odors. Only in a few parts of the country are there actual odor regulations — compared to Europe and Australia, who have adopted stringent odor control legislation because of the standards for tolerance.

For another, there is another problem.

"There is a misconception about the makeup of (manure) odors," Williams said. Often, ammonia and hydrogen sulfide are identified as sources of odors. In fact, scientists have identified as many as 190 differrent compounds associated with the degradation of manure.

"So it's a very complex, scientific issue as well as a psychological issue — a perception issue," said Williams.

It is the specific interactions of the compounds as a result of the breakdown of manure that create the odor. These all react in unique ways. And the perceptions and impact of the specific odors differ from individual to individual.

"The human nose is very sensitive," he said. "It's been shown that as few as eight molecules of some of the compounds that make up agricultural odor will be judged offensive by a human."

We all perceive odor differently. Also, we often smell with our eyes, according to Williams.

He spoke about one German layer house that was nearly shut down because of odor complaints. The company installed an odor filtration unit that actually did little to reduce the odor. But when it came time to dismantle the equipment, the manager of the house stopped and decided, instead, to keep the equipment. Why?

'The human nose is very sensitive,' he said. 'It's been shown that as few as eight molecules of some of the compounds that make up agricultural odor will be judged offensive by a human.'

The neighbors noticed that something was being done. As a result, "the complaints had stopped," according to Williams.

"Whether we like it or not, individuals smell as much with their eyes as they do with their noses," he said. Efforts to improve odor control, while not 100 percent effective, would go a long way in stemming potential lawsuits from angry neighbors. "I think that's a valuable lesson for producers."

It's important to involve the neighbors in decisions to add or expand facilities, according to the testimony of several farmers at the conference. That's also true in Williams' experience.

"If neighbors feel that they had very little to do or nothing to do with the construction of a new animal facility that is in their neighborhood, whether it be a production facility or a processing facility, they're more likely to be offended by any odors that come from that facility," he said.

If an odor situation develops, the use of odor masking products often aggravates the situation.

It may not be "wise to use a masking agent because the neighbors perceive that you're just trying to cover up the odor. Their olfactory system starts to sort out the fact that there is an odor along with the mask and they are more angry than they were initially."

'Whether we like it or not, individuals smell as much with their eyes as they do with their noses.'

Besides, in research on masking effectiveness, the agents simply didn't work.

"We showed that a counteractant and an oxidizing agent were the only two products that significantly improved our odor parameters," he said. "A digestive agent, chemical agent, and absorbent had no impact on odor quality parameters."

A prime benefit of odor research, according to Williams, was using technology to come up with specific numbers to establish the acceptable "odor units" to use as guidelines, much like that used by European countries. There is no proven technology that will match the human nose — so the university made use of "human sensory panels." People were selected to determine tolerance levels for the presence of odors and to establish protocols. These kinds of efforts are part of litigation procedures in Europe and Australia.

They were also used to evaluate masking and other odor abatement products.

"We were getting contacted by producers, not on a daily basis, but a significant amount of producers that were telling us, 'I am very frustrated, I have spent revenues on products for odor control and I am not having positive results. My neighbors feel that I am not doing anything.' We thought we needed to address the issue."

There is no proven technology that will match the human nose — so the university made use of 'human sensory panels.'

There are answers to odor problems, many of which are simply not economically sound. In once case, in Denmark, a facility containing three thermophilic digesters — three tanks each measuring 1,800 cubic meters — digest 400 tons of manure per day. While the central processing facility takes care of potential manure problems, the cost and liability make that prohibitive in the U.S.

In the meantime, U.S. producers can do a great deal to ensure they are protected from odor lawsuits. One is to handle and spread the manure using simple common sense. He noted one case where a North Carolina farmer spread the manure on a hot, humid evening in a field before the start of a high school football game.

Also, forming a strategy to deal with the response in a "pro-active way" should involve all the parties. Communication is key.

"My observation in North Carolina is that over 90 percent of the producers do everything they can to minimize the impact of odors to their neighbors," Williams said.

Shank said the family was 'naive' and regretted the fact that they didn't involve the community from the start. 'We should have involved the community in the decision-making process' to set up the finishing facility.

A producer also spoke at the conference about the challenges and concerns about odors.

Edwin Shank, Scotland, a 100-cow dairy farmer, also manages a 2,000-hog finishing operation. The operation encompasses about 120 acres north of Chambersburg.

About a quarter of a mile away is a shopping mall. Nearby are houses.

Shank spoke at the conference about the litigation he faced after one neighbor filed a complaint and proceedings started.

Shank said the family was "naive" and regretted the fact that they didn't involve the community from the start. "We should have involved the community in the decision-making process" to set up the finishing facility.

Shank said that he did many things, including setting up a tree barrier, to dispel the dust and odors. But he said the family was "shocked and somewhat offended. We didn't realize anyone was that upset at us."

But Shank emphasized the importance of involving the community in decisions and allow them to see and understand how a farm operation works. It is important to talk to neighbors first and find out what they think. "I told them I was sorry and we were embarrassed," he said.

This "open communication" is essential. And work to reduce odors is important. If they detect that you're not really trying, he said, you'll have problems.

During a group action planning session at the conference, Shank said more public education of farming is necessary. Also, more farmers need to be involved in township decision making.

Editor's Note: Next week, part 2 examines ways in which agriculture has examined odor control from a producer and legal standpoint.

'I told them I was sorry and we were embarrassed.'

Apple Producer-Assessment Increase Explained

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A public hearing was held Monday in the state Department of Agriculture building in Harrisburg on a proposal to increase the apple producer-assessment to support the activities of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program (PAMP).

It will take a couple of weeks before an official report is prepared and released on testimony received during the hearing. In the meantime, there is still an opportunity for public comment on the proposal.

According to Mike Varner, chief of the state Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Marketing Development, Commodity Promotion Division, written testimony will be received until Dec. 28, and added to the body of comments to be considered.

Those wishing to make comments should send their signed comments, along with their printed name, address and phone number if applicable, to: Pa. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Market Development, Attn: Fran Bidelspach, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, 17110-9408.

After the testimony is all collected, transcribed and reviewed by State Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brosius, he is to make a determination, if comment consensus warrants, whether or not to hold a producer-referendum on the proposal.

The referendum would then likely occur in the spring.

The public hearing was held to receive testimony regarding a proposal of increasing the assessment rate charged apple producers to operate the PAMP.

Currently those with 500 or more apple trees (of all ages), are assessed 7 cents per bushel of apples sold at fresh market, and 4 cents per hundred pounds of apples sold for processing.

The proposal is to increase those rates next year to 12 cents per bushel sold fresh, and 6 cents per hundred pounds sold for processing.

Further, the proposal would lock-in an automatic assessement hike to 15 cents per bushel sold fresh, and 8 cents per hundred pounds in 2000.

The current rate of assessment has been constant for more than 14 years, while the apple marketing program — created through the state's Agricultural Commodity Marketing Act — has successfully expanded into international markets and promotions, as well as maintaining and expanding domestic promotions.

Brenda Beleski Briggs is director of PAMP, a one-person operation overseen by the Pa. Apple Marketing Board. The board members are apple growers affected by the assessments.

According to Briggs, the board is asking growers to support the assessment increase to adequately fund current and future programs.

In otherwords, the program has hit the limit of what it can do to promote and market Pennsylvania apples with the funds that it receives.

Briggs said that the funds used now are primarily focused on seasonal promotion and marketing. "We need to do a better job of supporting sales throughout the marketing season," Briggs said.

If Pennsylvania is to participate in year-round marketing of apples, it needs more money.

"At this point, we can only do promotions in the fall. There's not enough to promote in the winter and spring, and really, marketing apples is a year-round business," Briggs said.

Also she said that work needs to be done to better promote the processed apple business. "We need funding to keep rolling in the right direction."

On top of that, given inflation (the lowering of cash value because of increased volume of money and credit as compared to the amount of goods) the PAMP program is to the point where the board predicts it will begin losing its ability to fund its current level of activities.

Those seeking the assessment-increase point to the increased marketing of Pennsylvania apples that is directly linked to PAMP actions.

As background, Washington state has long dominated the U.S. apple market and has been in stiff competition with the rest of the producers in the nation.

For years because of the size of its apple industry, Washington was the sole beneficiary of federal funds to help promote apples internationally.

(Some suggest that other states benefitted in having prices sustained because Washington apples were exported instead of being glutted on the domestic market. The effect of supplying a non-domestic market could limit availability of apples on the domestic market, but barring a severe tree disease or horrific national late spring frost, it does not seem likely that most of the nation would experience apple shortages significant enough to boost prices if Washington state were to export even more of its produce.)

Growers in other states, including Pennsylvania, did not see the benefit from Washington's self-promotion. To compete for federal support for the rest of the nation's apple industry, growers in 13 states other than Washington formed the U.S. Apple Export Council, administerd by the International Apple Institute (IAI).

Briggs serves on the U.S. Apple Export Council, and she also serves on the IAI State Advisory and Budget and Personnel committees.

In addition to gaining federal funds for marketing, the member states of the council have also contributed funds to gain leverage in international markets.

Briggs said that, in working through the U.S. Apple Export Council, this last year the Pennsylvania program was able to send representatives to Brazil. That resulted in the exporting of 43,000 cartons of Pennsylvania apples through mid-November.

Last year, Brazil imported 54,000 cartons of Pennsylvania apples.

Further, through the group, Pennsylvania has been able to receive support to market Pennsylvania apples in the United Kingdom, and Tiawan, and also to monitor the market situation in Mexico.

Despite the North American Free Trade Agreement, exporting apples to Mexico has proved prohibitively expensive because of Mexican inspection regulations on imports, which require Pennsylvania to pay and provide for a Mexican national to oversee inspections.

According to Briggs, currently only Washington state with its assessment of 25-cents per bushel of apples sold fresh can afford to pay the costs to host a Mexi-

How and Why to Figure the Cost of Production

When the barn is full, the cows are doing well, and we have cut expenses in quite a few areas, it is easy to fall into the trap of thinking we don't need to know what it costs us to produce milk Then we realize that lately the milk check has been spent before all the expenses are paid, which means we need to calculate where the money is going and how to make our farm profitable

Using a record keeping system makes calculating the cost of production easier, but for those who don't have a system, it helps to use the Schedule F form from the federal tax return For the sake of discussion we have made up numbers for three fictitious herds Here are "Amos King's" Schedule F figures

To calculate the cost of production per hundredweight (cwt) of milk, we divide the total of all

Schedule F (Form 1040)

Name of Proprietor Amos King

Part I Farm Income--Cash Method.

11 Gross income. 11 $95,020*

[*Amos King sold 6800 cwt milk for $89 420, as he had 17 000lb average for 40 cows, and 11 cull cows @$510 ea for $5,600]

Part II Farm Expenses--Cash and Accrual Method.

13 Chemicals	13	740	26	Rent or lease
15 Custom hire	15	2295		a Machinery	26a	3041
16 Depreciation	16	5214		b Other (land)	26b	1493
18 Feed purchased	18	22,153	27	Repairs	27	9468
19 Fertilizers and lime	19	1561	28	Seeds	28	1594
20 Freight and trucking	20	4784	30	Supplies	30	5147
21 Gasoline, fuel and oil	21	2257	32	Utilities	32	195
22 Insurance	22	435	33	Veterinary etc	33	7214
23 Interest			34	Other (bedding, etc)	34	8139
Mortgage	23a	2849
24 Labor hired	24	3431

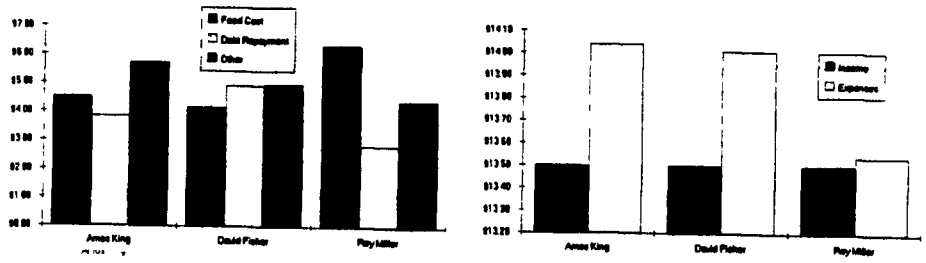
35 Total expenses 35 $95,448

expenses by the number of cwt sold for the year, which can be figured by adding up the pounds of milk sold as recorded on the milk check receipts In Amos King's case the expense total was $95 448, divided by 6800 cwt of milk which equals $14 04, which is his cost of production per cwt of milk

To figure out the cost per cwt of each expense separately, just divide the total for each expense by the total cwt of milk sold (Keep in mind that family living expenses are not included when using the Schedule F form figures)

To see what the total income per cwt was for the year, divide the amount on line 11 of the Schedule F form by the total cwt sold The figure on line 11 might not include cull cow and calf income, depending on how the accountant fills out the form so make sure that income is added in

Here is a comparison of three herds in graph form



Note "Feed Cost" includes chemicals, custom hire, purchased feed, fertilizer, lime, seed, and gas "Debt Repayment" includes depreciation, interest and rent "Other" includes supplies, utilities, vet, breeding, bedding, hauling, insurance, labor, repairs and any other expenses

From these figures we can see that the cost of production is too high in all three herds These farmers have two options (a) Hope the price of milk goes up, and if it doesn't, they will probably sell out, or (b) Find a way to lower their cost of production

Let's try making one change in each herd and seeing how it affects the cost of production

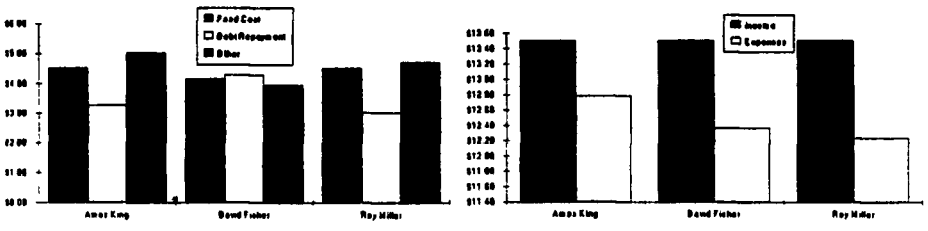
For Amos, let's assume the reason his milk production is at the level of 17,000 lbs. per cow for 40 cows is that his cows don't always have lots of feed in front of them Amos decides that he doesn't mind taking trough sweepings out to his heifers, and because he now feeds his cows more, his milk production goes up to 20,000 lbs per cow He is still able to feed his cows for $4.50 per cwt , but now sells 8000 cwt of milk instead of 6800.

David's debt is what makes his cost of production so high The rest of his costs appear reasonable His debt is fixed over 15 years. He decides to buy some cows, increasing the herd to 50, which means he sells 10,000 cwt milk per year. He pays $12,000 for the cows, which adds $1,200 to his interest payment and $2,000 more for depreciation. His purchased feed goes from $3 08 to $3 30 per cwt because he now also has to buy some forage

David might have been able to avoid this situation by doing some projections before he signed the loan. We will write more on this subject in a later article and would appreciate any suggestions or examples readers would like to share with us.

Roy has a high herd average, but his feed costs are way too high He decides to quit feeding some of those expensive "super feeds" that his feed man sells After all, he figures, what good does a high herd average do if you aren't making a profit? He drops his feed cost to $4.50 per cwt, losing a bit of production, which means he probably was getting a small response to his "super feed," but not enough to make it worthwhile

Here's what the charts look like after these changes have been made



There are many different ways to lower the cost of production so that the farm becomes profitable But first it is necessary to figure out what the costs are and compare the total expenses per cwt to income per cwt Those figures will pinpoint where the money is going and how much profit or loss there is Then the farmer can decide what options he has calculating what affects certain changes will have on the totals and make whatever adjustments are necessary to make a profit

As always we invite readers to send us their ideas and experiences so that we can all learn from them

Neighbor Relations Help Protect Producers From Lawsuits

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Pork producers in an odor problem lawsuit: you can be a winner by improving the operation to take into consideration the concerns of neighbors or be an outlaw and face potentially damaging fines that could put your livelihood in jeopardy.

Greg Andrews, attorney and coordinator of the National Pork Producers Council Environmental Law Education Network, spoke to 80 producers and industry representatives about his experience with lawsuits as a result of farm odors and other problems.

Andrews, staff attorney with Drake University Ag Law Center, spoke to producers about the negative effects of ignoring management techniques and policy that could end in damaging litigation. He spoke on Wednesday at the annual LanChester Pork Council 39th Annual Meeting and Pork Production Forum at the Country Table Restaurant in Mount Joy.

Andrews provided some chilling facts about what producers in other parts of the country endured as a result of nuisance suits and other litigation:

• In Iowa, a producer with a 600-head swine finishing operation (using an earthen waste storage basin) faced a lawsuit from a residential development about a half mile north of his operation. He contested the lawsuit and "lost big time," said Andrews. The litigation costs soared to $45,000, according to Andrews, and the case has been appealed.

• In Indiana, a veterinarian claimed that odors from a pork facility allegedly caused health problems for his 14-year-old daughter. The facility is about a mile from the home. Fortunately, the attorney destroyed the doctor's testimony because there is "no evidence that odors from that far away cause health problems," said Andrews. Legal fees have soared to more than $100,000.

• A swine producer in Iowa failed to carefully inspect and ensure that a tile line was properly capped and sealed. The tile line was under a manure storage area. The line opened up, spilling 1.5 million gallons of wastewater into the south fork of the Iowa River, creating $6,000 worth of fish kill.

• In one case in North Carolina, a turkey and hog producer decided to expand his operation at the same time a developer was erecting houses nearby. Homeowners from the new dwellings sued the producer for odor problems. So far, $60,000 worth of court costs have piled up as a result of the lawsuit.

There are many more cases that are being filed regularly.

The point is, according to the Drake University lawyer, many of these lawsuits could have been prevented if the operations would simply involve the public and take steps to ensure that management works together to create a safe environment.

In too many cases, according to Andrews, producers believe they are the "outlaw" and don't have to conform. They are like the Jesse Jameses and the Pancho Villas and the Rob Roys of the wild West. While trying to be unsung heros and remaining staunch individualists, they are actually "foolhardy, would-be heroes," he said.

From the beginning, producers should instead try to recognize the environmental concerns that having a swine operation entials and have a plan of action to respond to those concerns — ahead of time.

The key? "Be a good neighbor

can official inspection person.

Also, Briggs said that because of the export growths to Brazil, Pennsylvania sought federal support to promote apples in Brazil during the apple season.

"This year USDA approved funding for a new promotional effort in Brazil. This in addition to programs in the U.K., Tiawan, and Mexico," Briggs said.

The Brazilian promotion strategy consists of producing merchandising materials in Portuguese (the language of Brazil), providing in-store samples of apples, developing displays of U.S. apples, and promoting the use of apples.

Closer to home, PAMP helps with farm market programs, educational programs (such as newsletters and media releases) and instate retail promotions.

But PAMP has been successfully working on a regional marketing basis with other state marketing programs.

There is now a Processed Apple Show-Off — an event that this year saw 4,000 retailers from 43 states participate. She said the event has become the apples industry's most important spring promotion.

During the past five years, she said that Pennsylvania has worked with apple promotion groups in Michigan, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia to conduct the Show-Off. It has grown from an initial 650 participants in 1991.

Another promotion is based on emphasizing the quality of Pennsylvania apples long with others produced in the East. The "Eastern Select" program promotes the freshness and taste of locally grown apples and varieties, over the bulk commercial standard. Growers from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia are involved.

In the past three years, through the Eastern Select program, merchandising has reached more than 400 supermarkets in the Baltimore, Washington D.C., and northern Virginia areas, in an attempt to increase sales to the almost six million consumers in that market region.

In Pennsylvania, there were 15 retailers representing 2,000 supermarkets involved in the Eastern Select promotion.

The promotion consisted of developing effective displays and conducting sampling programs.

Also, a cooperative marketing effort with a company that manufactures dips for apple slices resulted in a special 55-store sampling program, Briggs said. Featured were Pennsylvania apples and the different dips.

And while the public has a growing loathing of the practice of lobbying, efforts by the PAMP and the state Department of Agriculture to get the USDA to change the way it buys fresh apples for school programs has apparently paid off.

According to Briggs, it has resulted in an instate pilot program that allows local apples to be delivered on an as-needed basis, allows larger orders, and allows longer periods for delivery which allows smaller producers and packers to participate in making bids.

Previously, regulations resulted in a time-tight delivery schedule that prevented small producers from supplying local lunch programs with bulk loads, even though the bulk loads required more storage costs to taxpayers, and even though smaller producers could provide the total supply easily in a more logical demand-driven schedule.

And while there is lots of good news about the PAMP, "The bottom line with the assement proposal is that additional funding is needed to promote Pennslvania apples and apple products," Briggs said.

Currently, of the other apple-producing states of concern, Pennsylvania has the lowest assessment levied on bushels of fresh apples.

For promotion, Virginia assesses its producers 10 cents per bushel sold fresh and 5 cents per hundred pounds sold for processing. Additionally, it assesses 5 cents per bushel of ungraded apples sold.

Michigan assesses its producers 13 cents per bushel sold fresh, 15 cents per hundred pounds sold for processing. A proposal there would increase it to 19 cents and 21 cents respectively over the next three years. Michigan also assesses its state's apple juice suppliers 5 cents per hudnred pounds sold.

New York assesses its producers 16 cents per bushel sold fresh and 8 cents per hundred pounds processed.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, in 1994 (the most recent year for record) Pennsylvania ranked fifth in the nation among apple-producing states with an all-over 10.4 cents per pound average price paid on an estimated 400,000,000 pounds of apples. PASS estimated total value of the crop was $41,400,000.

AJCA Awards Nominations Deadline Nears

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — Are you between the ages of nine and 19? Did you own a Jersey calf, heifer, or cow in 1995? Then you could be eligible for one of several youth awards and scholarships presented by the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association (PJCA).

The first contest is for the Youth Achievement Award. The PJCA will select outstanding Jersey achievers in two divisions. All applicants must be the owners of one or more registered Jerseys. A junior award will be given to the winner in the nine to 13 age category and a senior award will be presented to the high achiever in the 14 to 19 age group.

First year Jersey enthusiasts are invited to compete for the First Year Project Award. To be eligible for this award applicants must be between the ages of eight and 12, and be a member of an organized 4-H club. To enter the contest, submit the official project record book along with a handwritten story entitled "Highlights of My First Jersey Project Year."

All Jersey juniors are eligible for the Scrapbook Contest. The scrapbooks are to pertain to the contestant's Jersey projects during 1995. Scrapbooks will be evaluated on the quality and quantity of their contents along with artistic skill and creativity shown in their development.

Yet another contest for all Jersey youth between the ages of nine and 19 is the Youth Production Contest. Jersey juniors can nominate their registered animals which are on official DHI or DHIA test for these awards. To enter this contest, members must submit an official cow record which is issued between 1/1/95 and 12/31/95. This form is required to give officials a 305-day 2X mature equivalent value for the records submitted.

Finally, Jersey youth who are attending college or who are high school students planning to enroll in college within one year of high school graduation can compete for one of two $200 scholarships. Applicants must have been actively involved with Jersey cattle for at least two years.

Applications and complete rules are available from David Norman. Please call for an application at 717-324-5631 or write to him at the address below.

The deadline for entering all contests is January 20, 1996. Please send all entries to David Norman, RR 1 Box 30, Liberty, PA 16930.

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — Several American Jersey Cattle Association award nominations are due in the national office by Jan. 1.

These awards nominations must be postmarked by Jan. 1: Master Breeder Award, Distinguished Service Award, and Young Jersey Breeder Award. Breeders must be nominated by their state office.

The Master Breeder Award is bestowed annually to a living member of the American Jersey Cattle Association, who in the opinion of the board of directors, has bred outstanding animals for many years and thereby made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

The Distinguished Service Award is bestowed annually upon a member of the American Jersey Cattle Association, who has rendered unselfish service for many years, and in doing so, made a notable contribution to the advancement of the Jersey breed in the United States.

The Young Jersey Breeder Award is awarded annually to AJCA members and/or member's families, who in the opinion of the board of directors, merit recognition. The winners selected by the AJCA Board of Directors must be active members of the AJCA and under 36 years of age on Jan. 1, 1996. Applications are available at the AJCA office, call (614) 861-3636.

ment and to thank all those who helped make it happen."

As of today, the Agricultural Preserve Board has preserved 185 farms totaling 16,400 acres. The Lancaster Farmland Trust, the Preserve Board's private sector counterpart, has preserved 60 farms totaling 3,695 acres. Ed Goodhart, chairman of the Preserve Board, noted "we are fourth in the nation among counties with preserved farmland and first in Pennsylvania. More significantly, we are the largest agricultural county in the nation preserving farmland. We think this success demonstrates tremendous commitment from our elected officials and landowners toward keeping Lancaster County in agriculture and retaining our way of life."

The Preserve Board will host a celebration and reception on Friday, January 12, 1996 at Franklin and Marshall College, Sports & Fitness Complex, Field House from 7:00-9:00 p.m. "We're expecting public officials on the state and local level, landowners and other residents of the county who have helped in this effort to attend," Daniels said. "It's an opportunity to say thank you to the many people who played a role in reaching this milestone." Tickets are $10 and $25 and may be purchased by calling the Agricultural Preserve Board at 299-8355.

The Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board is a publicly funded, county program which has been preserving farmland since 1980.

body. Wagon rides try to explain what's going on at the farm. And everything we use on the rides we use daily on the farm."

He said that the farm doesn't use herbicides and pesticides on the trees. With help from Cammauf brothers Brent and Justin, the trees are cut and replaced by seedlings in the spring. Mowing is in both directions.

Shearing is done by Doug and Lynn from mid-June through September to give the trees that dense, tight shape that consumers prefer.

Lately, however, the Potts have been selling a tree that has not been sheared and shows one year's worth of natural growth. Many prefer the look that nature provides, untouched by shears.

Doug said the experience of picking a tree "is as close to being able to go out in the woods and just select your tree," like families did in the old days.

Six years ago when they started selling choose and cut trees, the Potts have marketed their farm for people who "want to come and experience the afternoon."

Of the 20 acres owned by the Potts, 13 are devoted to Christmas trees. When they purchased the farm in 1989, the Potts wanted to settle down, have a few horses and sell some trees to landscaping firms.

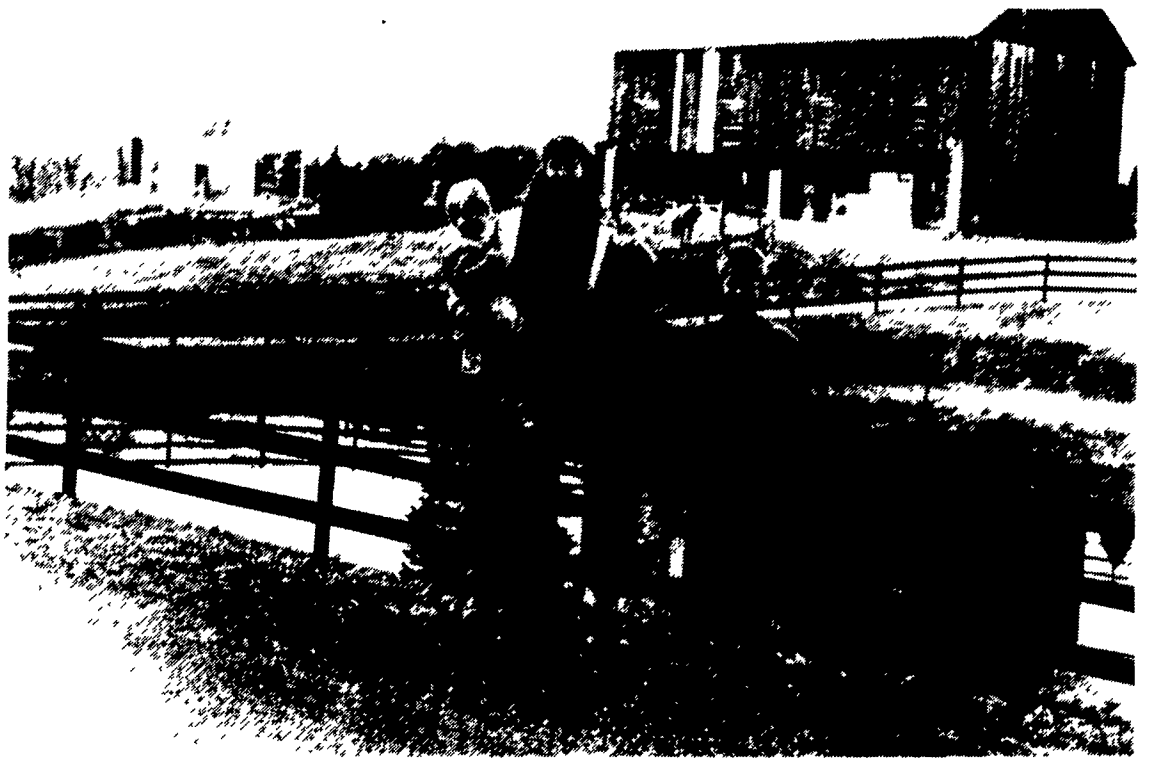
Along the way, they changed their minds.

"When we purchased the farm, we primarily bought it not to go into the Christmas tree business," he said. "We bought it as a residence. And we really didn't know what we were going to do with the trees."

Some of the trees were planted by the previous owner, who sold the trees to landscape firms. The Potts still sell trees to landscape operations.

Instead, they decided to sell the trees during Christmastime, available in heights ranging from one to 14 feet. Fir trees grown include Douglas, Fraser, Canaan, and Concolor. They also grow Colorado Blue Spruce. Pine trees are the White, Austrian, and Hemlock.

On the weekends, the barn is open for free hot chocolate and coffee. Every child gets a coloring book and candy cane. The wagon rides through the fields are scheduled on the weekends.



"Most people love the experience of cutting the tree," said Doug Potts, who helps part-time with the operation. That experience "is what's going to bring the families that buy trees from us back year after year." From left, Jenna, 21 months, Lynn, Devin, Wesley, and their dog, Sarge.

THIS IS A CHRISTMAS TREE
FARM
FEEL FREE TO BREATHE DEEPLY
USE A NATURALLY GROWN TREE EVERY CHRISTMAS SO THAT THIS PLANTATION
CAN KEEP MAKING CLEAN AIR

The philosophy of the 20-acre North Wind Farm is simple: allow people to experience what Christmas is and how Christmas trees are grown. Don't just push them through a parking lot with a number with no sense of how the trees got there.

Shearing is done by Doug and Lynn from mid-June through September to give the trees that dense, tight shape that consumers prefer. Here, Devin helps work the tree drill.

"Most people love the experience of cutting the tree," said Doug Potts, who helps part-time with the operation. That experience "is what's going to bring back the families that buy trees from us year after year."

Doug has a full-time job as general sales manager for the Tom Masano car dealership in Reading.

Lynn believes people are often surprised by all the work involved in growing a tree.

"A lot of people think you plant a tree and watch it grow for 7-10 years, and that's so untrue," she said.

Doug said, "They think you put it in the ground for 45 cents apiece and just come back seven to 10 years later and you're instantly wealthy."

That's not the case because, as Lynn said, taking care of Christmas trees until they are cut and purchased is "very labor-intensive."

Often they answer the customer question about whether it is right to go out and cut trees. Lynn reassures them that it's "not like we're going out in a forest and leveling it and building buildings." Cut trees are replaced.

And the chores can get pretty exhausting. "As hot and dry as it was in August, we were mowing," she said. The weeds seem to prefer hot and dry weather and pose a constant challenge.

The Potts have received a lot of comments from customers about the farm. They prefer to keep the operation the way it is, not adding a lot of "commercialism" so prevalant on choose and cut operations.

"Bigger and more doesn't always necessarily mean better," said Doug. He said that the overall Christmas tree industry is overproducing and many people are experiencing stagnant sales.

For the Potts, this is their sixth selling season and each year their sales are doubling. Doug sales they sell between 600-1,000 Christmas trees every year.

People come from all over to visit the farm. That includes visitors from New Jersey and from nearby in Mohnton, Centerport, and all over Berks County.

Last year, Lynn said people came with their umbrellas, despite a rainy weekend.

Doug said that one time, a customer came at dusk and used the

a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Between the milkings there are young cows to care for and 600 acres of cropland and acres of oats.

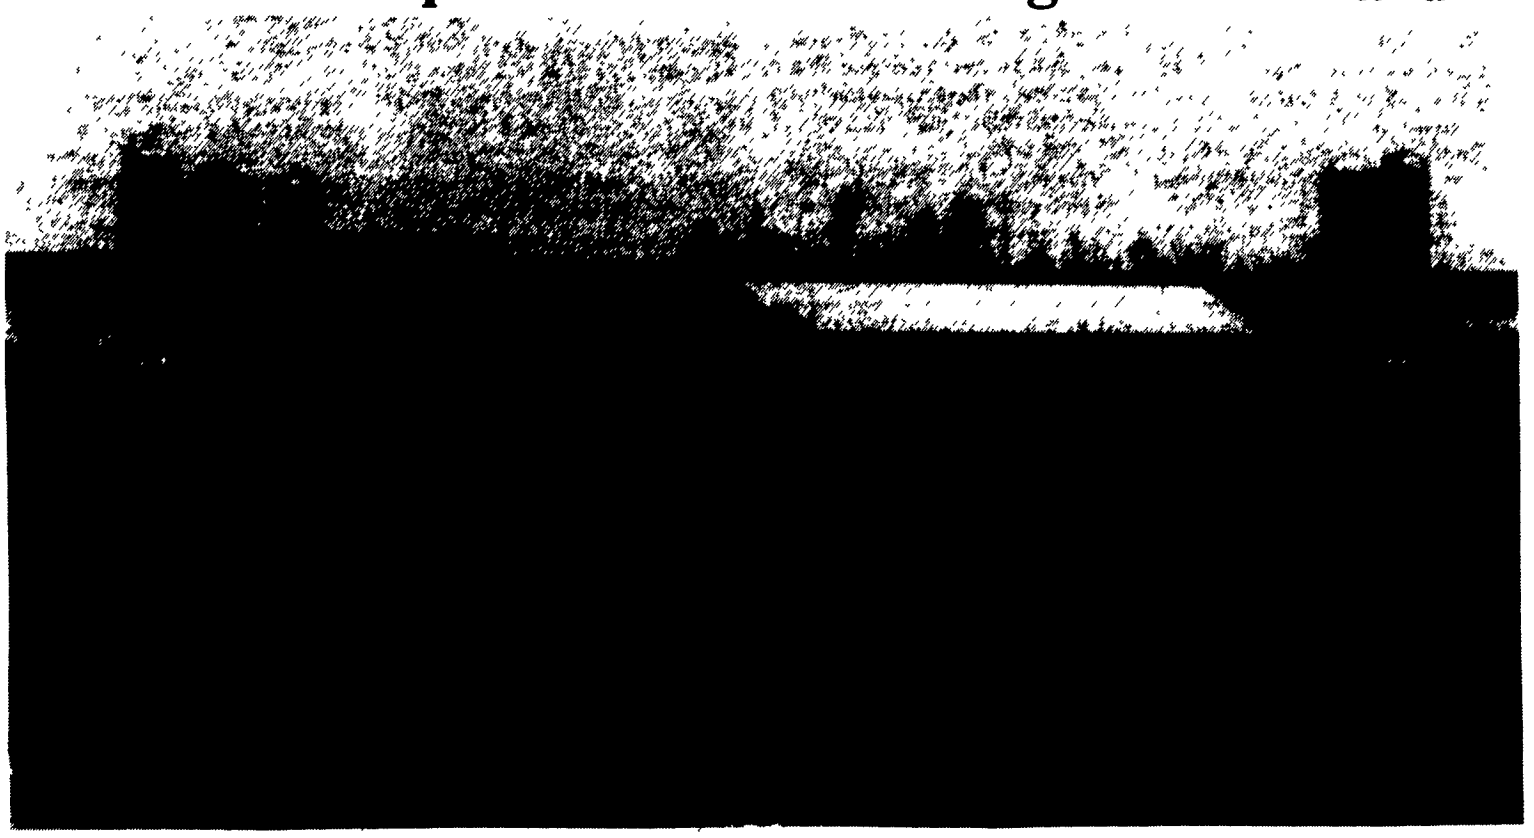
The Sinans don't just produce milk. They deliver it, too. Milos and sons Mevlan, 27, and Milos, Jr., 25, take turns driving two tank trucks that pick up milk from 45 other dairy farms in Indiana, Armstrong and Westmoreland counties. Collecting the milk and delivering it to Turner Dairy in suburban Pittsburgh can mean up to 300 miles of driving on some days.

Daughter Marlane, 24, also helps on the farm.

With the men busy in the fields and on the road so many hours each day, Sandy spends the most time with the cows, and she credits that attention with making them award-winners.

The cows receive veterinary visits twice monthly, mostly to check for pregnancy. Hoof trimming is performed every other month, and the herd's silage is evaluated frequently to adjust the nutritional levels of their rations.

The attention to details and extra care has paid off. According to DHIA, the Sinan cows produced an average of 29,910 pounds of milk each in the past year, a 4,101-pound-per-cow improvement over the previous year. (The Indiana County average is 18,160 pounds of milk per cow per year.)



The Sinan's 105 Holsteins have been handled in a stall barn, but a new free-stall barn and a new milking parlor add capacity and convenience to the existing facilities.

The Sinans' Holsteins also topped the county's fat improvement list, recording a 154-pound-per-cow increase (1,062 lbs. per cow compared to a county average of 703 lbs. per cow), and also led all Indiana County Holsteins in protein improvement, posting a 131-pound-per-cow gain (928 lbs. per cow compared to a county average of 588 lbs. per cow.)

The top 10 protein-producing Holsteins in Indiana County are in the Sinan herd, according to the DHIA statistics.

Several cows in the herd each produce more than 30,000 pounds of milk per year and the top cow is making nearly 39,000 pounds per year. Other cows are in the mid-20,000 range, Sandy said, but are kept in the herd because their high-protein content helps boost the herd average.

The most frequent reason for removing cows from the herd is failure to get bred, Milos said.

The Sinans now milk 305 cows, but plan to increase the milking string to more than 200 animals.

A 180-by-112-foot free-stall barn for the larger herd should be completed by Christmas. Cow comfort means increased milk production, so the 234-stall structure will have rubber-filled mattresses for the cows to lay on and sides made of heavy curtains that can be raised in summer to provide plenty of cool ventilation.

For the dairyman's comfort the new building also has automated alley-scrapers built into the cement floor to pull manure away to a pipeline and pump it to a nearby storage system installed a few years ago.

"We're going for more cows, not more labor," Milos noted.

Efficiency is also the watchword in a new 42-by-115-foot milking parlor being built nearby. Two rows of 12 cows each will be milked simultaneously by a dairyman working from a level below the cows. A hydraulic floor can be raised or lowered to position the farmer at the most comfortable level to reach the cows.

Three people now handle the milking chores. Milos said when the improvements are completed two and sometimes only one person will do the milking.

"We expect to milk 200 in about the same amount of time" that it now takes to milk 105, he said.

The Sinans said the goal of all the changes on their farm wasn't to make their dairy operation bigger, but to make it better. And while getting better, they explained, it seemed logical to let it grow as well.

The Sinan family received the top state DHIA herd management award for 1995. In the cow barn, from left, Milos, Jr.; Milos; Sandy; and Mevlan.

Retired Dean Receives Top Honor

MELVILLE, N.Y. — Dr. David Call received New York Farm Bureau's most prestigious honor, the Distinguished Service to Agriculture in the Empire State Award, at the organization's convention on Long Island.

According to New York Farm Bureau President John Lincoln, "Dave Call has devoted his entire life to the betterment of New York agriculture. There is certainly no other individual more deserving of this top honor.

Lincoln said, "(Call) joins a special club of individuals who have received this highly coveted award, including former Ag & Markets Commissioners Richard McGuire and Don Wickham and former congressman and World Bank President Barber Conable."

Call received his bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees from Cornell University. Born and raised on a dairy and crop farm in Genesee County, he was a professor of food economics at Cornell. He later served as director of cooperative extension and then was dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell University for 17 years.

During Call's tenure as dean, his accomplishments included the college's work in integrated pest management (IPM) and its widespread use by farmers, the expansion into biotechnology research, computerization of the college, and the development of two innovative programs that benefit production agriculture, Pro-Dairy and Pro-Tech.

Crop Protection Associations Announce Cleanup Cooperation

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The American Crop Protection Association (ACPA) and the Agricultural Retailers Association (ARA) announced joint guidelines to assist the environmental cleanup of retail agricultural chemical dealer sites.

The new guidelines call for both voluntary and fee-based reimbursement mechanisms, depending on the situation, and are aimed at accelerating the assessment and remediation of contaminated sites.

ACPA President Jay J. Vroom said, "We want to emphasize that this joint agreement strengthens our commitment to environmental stewardship."

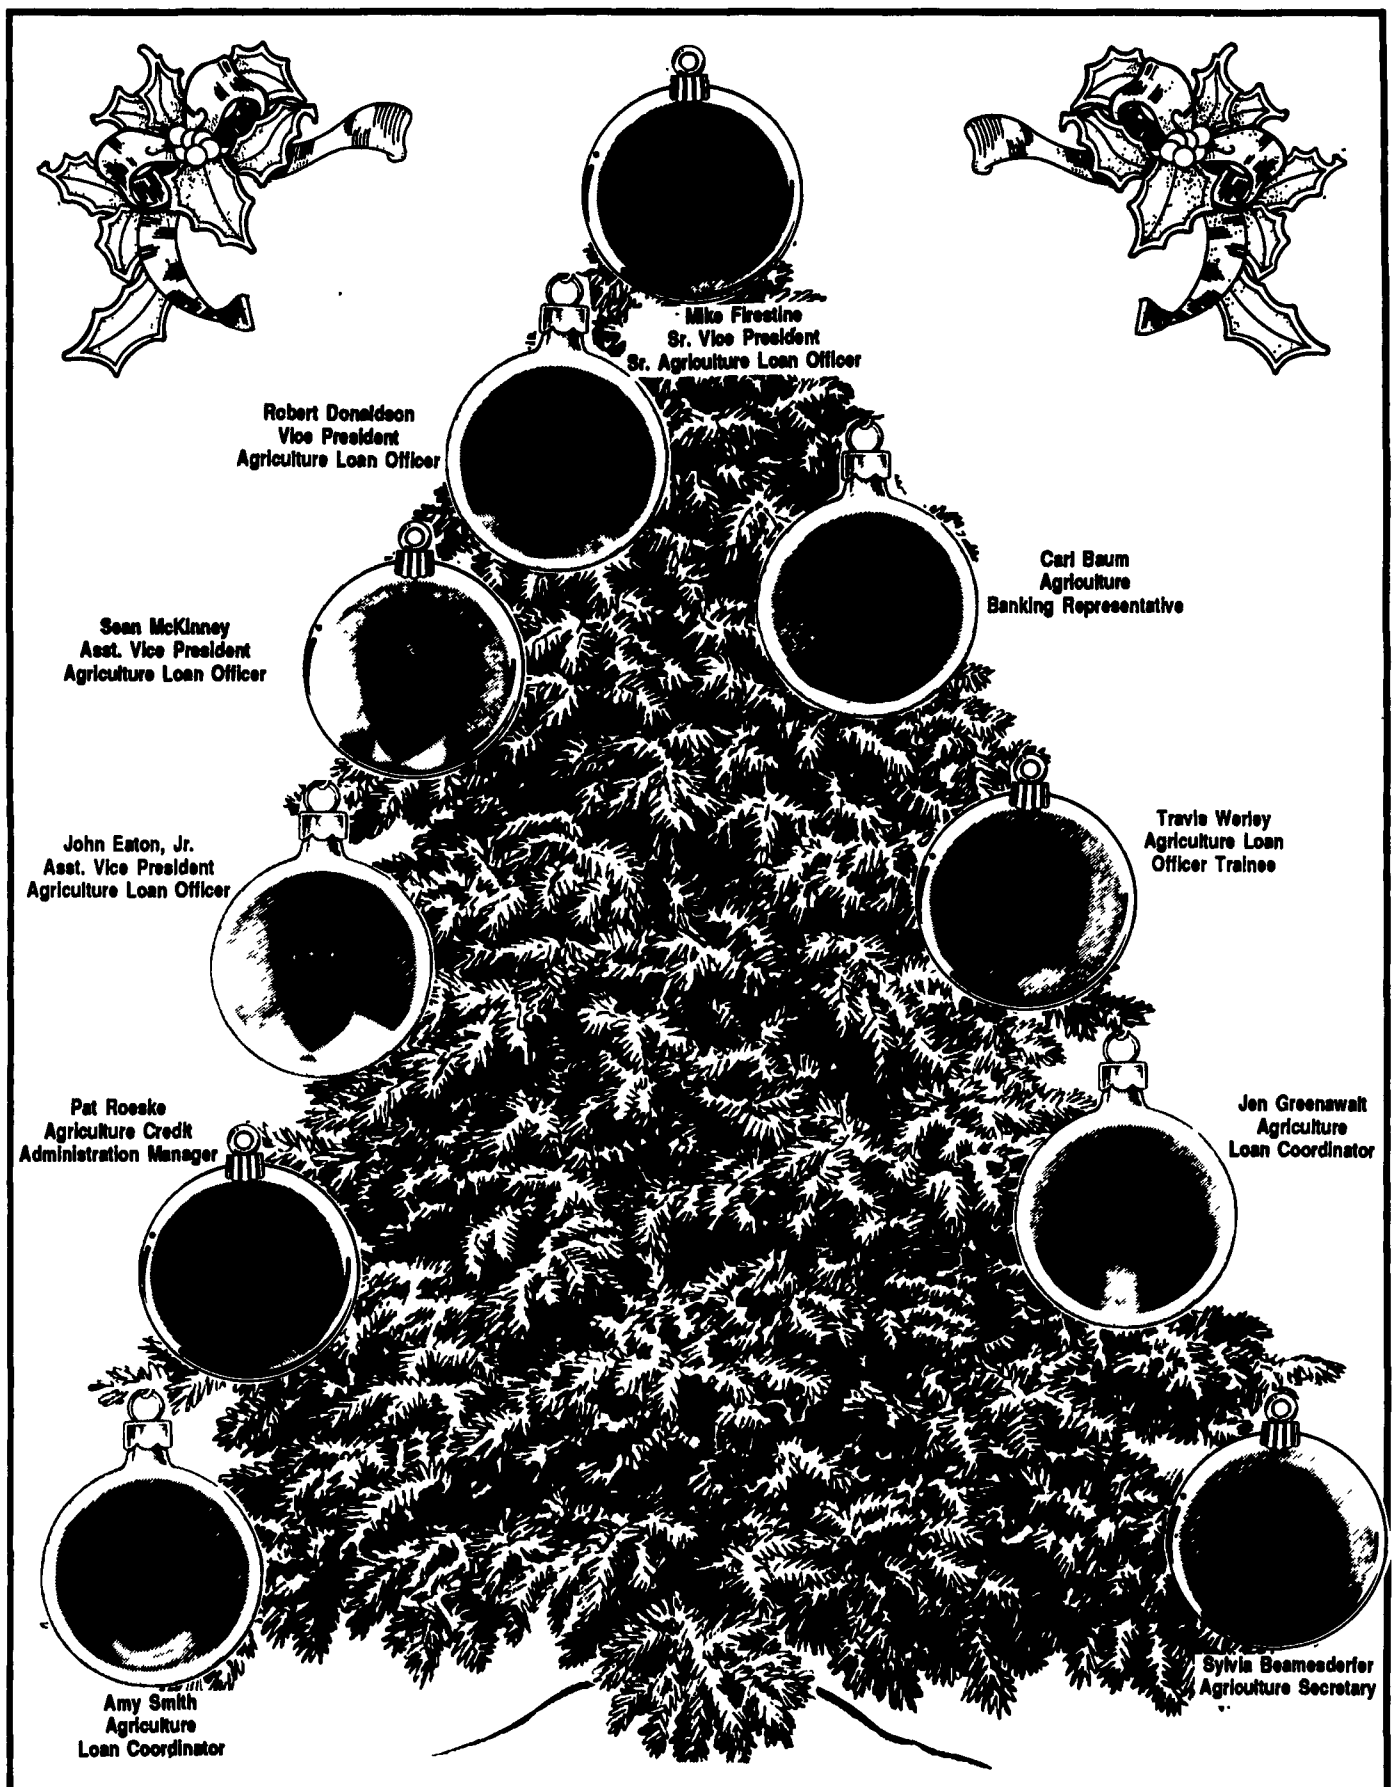
As far as implementation is concerned, ARA President Dr. Paul Kindinger said, "We intend to continue to work closely with state and regional agricultural chemical associations in addressing this issue and believe that the new guidelines will foster both cooperation with them and greater environmental stewardship."

Common elements of the new guidelines, whether voluntary or fee-based, include:

- Confidential environmental audits.
- Clean-up standards keyed to the future use of the site.
- Acceptance by appropriate state authorities of completed remediation programs.

Key features of voluntary programs include incentives to property owners, provided sites do not represent immediate threats to health or the environment, and flexible cleanup schedules. Essential provisions of fee-based programs are maximum and minimum balances for the remediation fund, significant financial deductibles for dealers and growers to initiate cleanup, ceilings on total reimbursement per remediation, and collection of fees at the retail dealer level.

To date, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Illinois have enacted legislation establishing agricultural chemical cleanup programs. Approximately 20 more states, including Ohio and Pennsylvania, have established voluntary remediation programs available to everyone, including dealers, growers, and industrial users.



We would like to wish everyone a Merry Christmas along with health and prosperity in the New Year. In the spirit of the season we thank all of our customers for their continued support and look forward to successful relationships in 1996.

First Calves Produced From Predetermined Sex Technique

and Y (male) sperm based on DNA content, using a technology developed by USDA scientists at the Agricultural Research Service.

The new artificial-insemination technique can result in pregnancies with only 200,000 sperm. The USDA sexing process currently yields about 400,000 sperm per hour of each sex, which is one reason researchers developed the technique to use lower numbers of sperm.

With the DNA sexing technology developed by USDA, researchers are able to shift the sex ratio of calves from the normal 50-50 to 80-90 percent of one sex or the other. Calves previously have been produced with sexed semen through in vitro fertilization; however, this procedure has little value for routine cattle production because of complexity and cost. Artificial insemination is widely used in cattle breeding.

Cooperators on the project, led by Colorado State Professor George Seidel of the university's Animal Reproduction Biotechnology Laboratory, included Charles H. Allen of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative and Lawrence A. Johnson, of USDA, Beltsville, Md. Atlantic Breeders supplied the bull semen and support, and Johnson's Agriculture Research Service lab provided the sperm-sexing technology, which has been patented by the USDA.

Johnson's team separated the X from the Y sperm by DNA content using a flow cytometer/cell sorter and laser technology. X sperm have about four percent more DNA than Y sperm. The sexed semen was shipped by commercial air to Colorado, where it was used to inseminate cattle at Colorado State and also at DUO Dairy in nearby Loveland.

Twelve of the 15 pregnancies produced with this method to date are of the sex predicted at the time of insemination. All of the calves appear to be normal.

DUO Dairy co-owner Mike Dickinson and the dairy's resident veterinarian Meg Cattell became involved in the project because of the potential benefit to their operation. "Practical sexing technology would be of enormous value to our dairy," Cattell said. "We're always looking for ways to improve efficiency, and this research could help meet that goal."

Predetermining sex of calves allows cattle breeders to produce milk and meat more efficiently. For example, cattle producers could obtain females from the best cows in the herd to replace older cows as they age, and males for meat from the remainder of the herd because males gain weight more efficiently than females.

"Much more work is required to make this process commercially viable. One problem that needs to be solved is the large variability in fertility from bull to bull using these procedures. Our goal is to have this technology available for about $10 more than the normal cost of a dose of unsexed semen, while maintaining fertility and availability of semen to cattle breeders," Seidel said.

This research will be presented in January at the International Embryo Transfer Society Meeting in Salt Lake City, Utah. For further information, contact Seidel at (970) 491-5287, Johnson at (301) 504-8545 or Allen at (717) 569-0413.

Relive The Experience

light of a hand-held cigarette lighter to see by when he cut a tree. "They have that much confidence in the (quality of) the tree," he said.

The Potts have received many favorable comments about the operation, including that the barn is not being reconstructed or repainted, although some restoration is necessary.

"We're putting it back the way it was, so to speak," said Doug.

Overall, the Potts have heard a "lot of comments about the fact that (people) can come out here and don't feel like they're a number and are whisked through the farm, in and out and begone," said Doug. "We encourage people to stay as long as they want."

The Potts advertise in local papers. The farm is also host to several preschool and kindergarten organizations to provide a classroom learning experience. Doug said they can take children through and show them how to shape a tree, show them natural trees, and "we'll even show them where the groundhogs live," he said.

Doug said that belonging to the Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association has proved valuable as an information source for the growers.

Lynn said she believes she is successful if she can convince those who have use artificial trees to change their mind.

"I've talked to a lot of people that had artificial trees," she said. "They're tired of them. They tell me that (the artificial trees) start looking shabby after a couple of years. And I feel so overjoyed that they're coming here to get a tree. That's great. Artificial trees don't compare to real trees."

The farm, located on Valley Road, is open Wednesday through Sunday. Hours on the farm range from Wednesday to Friday, noon till night, and Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Cattlemen's Association Sets Winter Lecture

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — The Southeast Regional Cattlemen's Association will sponsor its annual winter lecture on Thursday evening, Jan. 25 at 7 p.m. at New Bolton Center campus of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

The guest speaker for the evening will be Dr. Robert Poppenga, a veterinarian and toxicologist, director of the toxicology laboratory at New Bolton Center and assistant professor of veterinary clinical toxicology in the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

Poppenga's title for the lecture, "Poisons: Are There Any Lurking in Your Cow's Backyard?" should provide interesting and practical information for all livestock owners and producers.

In addition to the lecture, Poppenga will explain the organization and workings of the Pennsylvania Animal Diagnostic Laboratory System (PADLS) and how to make use of this valuable state-supported resource as a producer.

The program is free to all interested producers (no reservations necessary) and will be in the Woerner Amphitheater at New Bolton Center, 382 West Street Road, Kennett Square. In case of weather problems, call New Bolton Center, (610) 444-5800 to check for cancellation.

For more information on other upcoming programs or joining the Southeast Regional Cattlemen's Association, contact Secretary Bobbi McMullen, 2384 Robert Fulton Hwy., Peach Bottom, PA 17563, (717) 548-3282.

and bend over backward," said Andrews. That means opening up your farm to neighbors for tours, sitting in on township meetings, and allowing the township to become involved in the decision-making on the farm. Make sure your operation is environmentally sound and you are doing your best to control farm odors — and advertise these facts whenever possible.

Don't, as Andrews suggested, sit there and offer excuses when something has gone wrong. He has heard them all, including:

• From a Wisconsin pork producer: "I don't know what came over me." The producer asked that the fine be retracted for pumping manure slurry from a pit into a stream.

• "It was my employees' fault." A producer spoke about the difficulties of communicating to his non-English speaking employees. There is no legal excuse for this.

• "It was the inspector's fault." It is up to the landowner to ensure the facility is built correctly and works according to plan.

• Other excuses have included "It was the weather's fault, it was too cold"; "It was the weather's fault, too wet, and I just can't get enough cost-share"; "The weeds were too high"; and even "It must have been the pigs' fault."

All these are no excuse.

The solution? Develop good community relations. Do "anthing to foster goodwill," said Andrews.

While fighting the nuisance suits can be costly — and winning even costlier — there is often no telling exactly how a jury will decide, no matter what the evidence.

The important elements include an appropriate location for the facility, monitor the facility, maintain good neighbor relations even in areas unrelated to the livestock operations (such as give out pork to the community), keep the operation as neat as you can and shield it from view as much as possible (make your farm a "showplace," said Andrews), know your rights, and let others know them. Respond appropriately to complaints and do "not appear to be hard-nosed and profit-driven."

If a situation arises, according to Andrews, investigate it completely, keep careful records, gather witnesses to substantiate records, develop an emergency response plan, suggest mediation, take the lawsuit seriously, and defend yourself vigorously.

Andrews said producers can contact him toll-free at (800) 705-6270 if they have concerns.

At the meeting, Brent Hershey, LanChester Council vice president, provided a pseudorabies update. As of last week, said Hershey, there were 48 known infected herds in the state. Thirty-one of them will test off in 1996. That means that only 16-18 infected herds will exist at the end of 1996.

As of now, 10 herds do not have herd cleanup plans in place.

Producers need to start the certification Level III process now and others should be recertified. Dr. Robert Graybill and Dr. Tim Trayer were at the meeting to conduct quality assurance seminars for producers. Producers were told to look at their producing facilties from the point of view of correct label vaccination and biosecurity program "packages," said Graybill, and to establish a plan that is best for the farm.

Kurt Good, LanChester Council president, said that the local organization attended the Food and Fun Fest in Ephrata this year with the state pork council. The state board has been working on promotional leaflets with packers to be distributed in supermarkets.

Also, three directors were elected to serve three-year terms on the LanChester Council. They are Scott Bailey, farrow unit manager, Reinholds; Nelson Beam, farrow-to-finish producer in Elverson; and Kurt Good, Good's Buying Station, Denver.

Holstein Young Breeder Applications Due

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Applications are due by Jan. 15 for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association Distinguished Young Breeder Award.

The application forms are available from the PHA by calling (814) 234-0364, fax (814) 234-1698, or by writing to Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA, 16801.

The young breeder award program seeks to honor outstanding accomplishments in breeding Holsteins done by state and National Holstein Association members aged 21 to 40 years old.

For the current round of applications, the age cutoff is Dec. 31, 1995 — those 40 on Dec. 31 are still eligible; those age 21 by that date are eligible.

Applicants must own and manage a Holstein dairy herd and the award is available to an individual or couple with ownership/management responsibilities for a registered Holstein herd.

Award winners are to be recognized at the 1996 state convention in Williamsport, Feb. 22-24.

The Pennsylvania winner will have their application forwarded for inclusion in the national competition.

Jr. Holstein Awards Deadlines Near

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Application deadlines are fast approaching for several awards and scholarships sponsored by the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association.

The Pa. Junior Holstein Association has many award applications due in January. There are also three, $1,000 scholarships to be awarded during the February Junior Holstein Convention for which applications are still being accepted.

The award applications due by Jan. 1 are for the Junior Progressive Breeder Award, Total Performance Award, 30,000-pound Cow Award, and the Breeder of an Excellent Cow Award.

Applications due Jan. 11 are for the Youth Achievement Scholarship Award, Distinguished Junior Member Award, and the Dairy Bowl Contest.

Anyone desiring an application should write or call the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801, (814) 234-0364.

Those interested in the scholarship application should also contact the Holstein Association.

The scholarship applicant can be attending or planning to attend a four-year school, two-year school, technical school, short course, breeding school, computer school or other post-secondary educational program.

Applicants may also use the scholarship for advertising and promotion of their herd, purchase of semen, embryos or cattle for herd improvement.

Those who apply must have completed a Senior Division Distinguished Junior Member Book at some time.

The scholarships are to recognize Holstein Association youth for their achievements, leadership and accomplishments in youth programs. The winners will be selected based on completion of the application and an interview with a panel of judges at the Junior Covention, shceduled to be held at the Genetti Hotel, in Williamsport.

Change — It's What Sands Thrive On

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

COATSVILLE (Chester Co.) — When Paul Sands purchased a 280-acre farm in a secluded part of Chester County in 1953, he said that his mother-in-law almost disowned him.

She was dismayed that her daughter would live in the delapidated farmhouse where chickens had once roosted.

Several years later, Sands considered relocating. "And my mother-in-law almost disowned me again. She couldn't understand why I would sell such a nice place after all the work we put into it."

Sands recalls, "Those first years in farming, we really had to struggle. Things in the house just had to wait because we needed things to make the farm run."

Little by little, the house was restored.

Underneath the crumbling plaster and layers of blackened soot, the Sands discovered beautiful sandstone and three fireplaces. Partitions were torn out, walls erected, new windows installed, and even the beams replaced.

"We did everything first class when we did it even if it was slow in getting done," Paul reported.

The lovely stone house sits on top a hillside surrounded by fields and woodland.

The end result confirms Paul's philosophy concerning farming. "Buy a place for the land, not the buildings. You can always change the buildings, but you can't change the land."

Change. That's the word Sands thrives on.

While he concedes that many of his age talk about the good old days, he said, "I don't have much nostalgia in my bones. To me, the future is more exciting than the past."

Especially fascinating to him is biotechnology and the changes it promises to bring to farming.

Sands doesn't believe people should be frightened by change. In his travels to many different countries all over the world, he has found that the countries who stayed the same and resisted change are the countries where people are starving and in poverty.

The farmer's number one downfall, he believes, is not change or increasing land costs, but government interference.

"At one time, Romania was the bread basket of the world. Now people wait in lines that are one-block long to get a loaf of bread. Farmers are using hand scythes to mow 40 acres of hay. That's what happens when you leave it to the government to tell you how to farm," he said.

"The secret to success in farming is paying attention to detail. Business is very cruel and unforgiving if you don't do it right," said Sands who calls himself a calculator man. "The calculator doesn't lie," he said of his wariness to not take another person's word for the profit that can be made on contract and bids.

Paul and Helen dubbed this evergreen on their property "Our Miracle Christmas Tree" after thieves chopped it down 20 years ago. To their amazement, another tree sprouted and grew in its stead. Since then, it has been chopped down several times, but it always grows up again.

"Romania is the direction in which America is heading. One can't understand the devastation of that country unless you go and see it," he said.

"Leave production and distribution in the hands of private industry and you will have abundance. Put it in the hands of government and you'll have poverty and want."

Although Sands identifies government interference as a problem, he is at a loss to know how to stop it.

Despite the trend toward government interference, Sands continues to believe that America is still the land of opportunity and that anyone who really wants to farm can make a living by it.

"In America, anything is possible. If I can do it, anyone can do it," he said.

Sands was only 11 years old when he left home as a hired hand. The first four years of his adult life, he worked as a plumber but farming was in his heart even though it didn't pay as well.

Still, the versatility of learning different trades is treasured by Sands. "I'm glad for everything I've ever done. It's like going to school everyday. Everything is exciting to learn."

Helen makes quilts that she donates to charitable organizations. Recently one of her quilts brough $1,000 at a sale.

His advice to would-be farmers is simple. "Make sure farming is really what you want to do because it will test you. There are days when for 10 cents, you'll want to throw in everything. But keep banging away.

"Change those things that need to be changed. Find your niche and learn to major in what you're good at," said Sands, who found his niche in raising crops.

"That was one glorious, happy day when I found I could get groceries without a milk check," said Sands of his decision to quit milking after 15 years and concentrate on crop production.

"The secret to success in farming is paying attention to detail," he said. "Business is very cruel and unforgiving if you don't do it right."

Sands calls himself a calculator man. "The calculator doesn't lie," he said of his wariness to not take another person's word for the profit that can be made on contract and bids.

One time, after weeks of considering a farming contract, Sands turned it down. Later, his son talked to a person who had signed the contract. When asked how he figured it would be profitable, the farmer said, "My neighbor's doing it. I figured if it's good enough for him, it's good enough for me."

Sands cringes at words like those. He believes a farmer must learn to think independently.

"You can't go forward with your head in the sand."

Sands frowns on farmers working for large corporations, which he believes is the same as making the farmer a hired hand who does all the work but doesn't share in the profits of the business to the degree they should be able to.

Sands sold some of his acreage for industrial park development. For those who are critical of him developing prime farmland, Sands replies, "It is disgusting to fill tanks with quality grains and sell it for less than what it costs to grow it. Pay farmers what it's worth and they'll keep the ground in production. A farmer has as much right as any other business to change direction to make it more profitable."

He doesn't see lack of land a problem for farmers now or later. He states two reasons.

"One, when you travel, you see miles of empty spaces everywhere. Two, when I first began farming, 50 bushels to an acre was considered a really good crop. Now, 100 bushels to an acre isn't uncommon. That's the same as doubling acres."

Sands likens farming to mountain climbing. "Mountain climbers climb by taking hold of projections of rocks. That's a good picture of the life of a farmer," he said.

"I started farming on a shoe string. I clawed up the ladder, one rung at a time."

He refers to the first 10 to 15 years of farming as the most difficult. He remembers picking corn when the cost to grow it hardly paid to pick it because of drought conditions.

"You need to plan and budget to realistically build in a cushion for rough times," he said.

For the first eight years of farming, Sands didn't miss one milking. As the kids got bigger and took more responsibility, he was able to take some time off and later to hire someone so the whole family could go camping.

In those beginning years, Sands said that necessity prevented him from taking a break. That's when he learned that participating in farm tours and Penn State Extension programs not only was an ideal way to learn but it also gave him a break.

"In the winter, I didn't waste my time standing around at farm sales," he said. "I went to classes offered by Penn State. Part of the excitement in learning is what's near and changing. I want to help

(Turn to Page B4)

It's hard to believe that Paul and Helen Sands farmhouse was once a delapidated farmhouse where chickens had roosted. Paul said, "Buy a place for the land, not the buildings. You can always change the buildings, but you can't change the land."

Turn Down Extended Warranties and Save

Are you looking for a way to save money during this expensive holiday season? One way may be to say "No" to the offer of an extended warranty on an appliance or electronic device that you've just purchased.

An extended warrenty soothes people's fears. It also quickly pads a store's profit! In fact this option may be the most lucrative offer stores are making to consumers this holiday season. Consumer Reports magazine evaluated this option several years ago. According to retailers, only 12 to 20 percent of people who buy a warranty will ever use it. Some of those "using it" are seeking clarification on instructions not actual repair "service."

Many people don't cash in on a warranty because the product performs well, and they don't need it. Others don't cash in because they don't remember that they have it.

Think about it. How good are you at filing warranty policies that come with products you have received? And then how good are you at remembering that the warranty exists and what it says? Almost everything has a manufacturer's warranty these days, but you have to keep the receipts and paperwork to know about it. An extended warranty goes beyond the regular manufacturer's warranty. If a consumer is unlikely to access a regular warranty, he's even more unlikely to ever need the extended one.

Extended warranties act as an insurance policy, but is it a good one for consumers? The next time you hear a salesperson describing how complicated an item is and saying, "Wouldn't you just like to know you don't have to worry about any repairs for the next five years? . . .," stop and think. Does he have an underlying motive for building your fear about the reliability of the product? According to Consumer Reports, for every dollar that retailers take in, they report spending only 4 to 15 cents on service. (The average health insurance policy provides 65 cents for every premium dollar.) Some salespeople get a commission on both the product sale and any additional income garnered through extra warranties or service contracts.

The smartest thing you can do as a consumer is to research products before you purchase them and to take advantage of the offers that the manufacturers make. Most problems with the equipment will be discovered during that time period. Also many major credit card companies offer an extended warranty on items purchased using their cards. Make sure you know the protection you already have!

Finally, get in the habit of putting aside a little bit of money every month to cover the unexpected repairs that you may need to make on items due to normal wear and tear. Make a set payment to a savings account for this purpose.

Change — It's What

make change happen and make it better."

Of farming, Sands said, "It is possible to survive only if you run a tight ship. There is no room for a casual approach, especially when it comes to the economics of farming. If you are determined, creative, use good common sense, and are willing to work, you can always succeed. Put that combination together and it works every time."

When Coatsville area development began enroaching on his farmland, Sands said, "I saw change coming. I wanted to be part of it and make it the way I wanted it to be."

Sands said that he is pleased with the way the community has changed. "I think it's for the better. It's upgraded in many ways. Job opportunities are here that didn't exist 10 years ago."

He continues to farm 102 acres, which he refers to as his retirement playground. He also gardens colorful perennials that bloomed so profusely this summer that many cars stopped along the road to admire the flowers.

Of all his assets, Sands said that his greatest is his wife. "She's always been a sweet little helper who's backed me in everything I've tried," he paused and smiled at her and then added, "almost everything." She vehemently shook her head in agreement and they both burst into laughter.

Helen enjoys traveling with her husband and quilting. She makes quilts that she donates to charitable organizations. Recently one of her quilts brough $1,000 at a sale.

One married son farms and owns Four-Seasons Crop Care in the Chambersburg area. Two other children are in full-time mission work with their families.

This holiday season reminds the Sands of a special evergreen tree that they dubbed "our miracle Christmas tree."

The tree was one of a row of stately evergreens that attract thieves during the Christmas season each year.

Thieves chopped down the last one in the row 20 years ago, but to the Sand's amazement, another tree sprouted and grew in it's stead. A few years later, the Sands cut it down for personal use. Another pine tree grew up from the stump.

"We did this I don't know how many times, and another one keeps growing. It's an example of what the devil tries to destroy, the Lord can restore," Sands said.

Sands doesn't sit around and wait for God to take care of things every time. One year, Sands asked a neighbor who trapped skunks to have the skunk deposit some of its perfume on a lone evergreen in an area where all the others had been stolen. After the spray was applied, signs showed that thieves intended to chop down the tree, but were deterred by the smell and left the tree intact.

Would there be any room at the inn?

It had been a long day for weary travelers.

Their journey had been one of great distance. Lights and warmth beckoned, with promises of a hot meal and a place of rest at the end of the lengthy trip. Then, the cry of a baby.

Josh was awake. He'd fallen asleep in his carseat during the hour-long trip from the airport.

Our daughter and six-month-old grandson were home for Christmas.

They'd actually left their Portland, Oregon, home for this visit some 24 hours earlier. With the impending threat of an ice storm, they had hastily packed her things, bundled up Josh and sought room at an inn.

Theirs was the last hotel room available, as it turned out. Lucky, too, because when the threatening ice became inch-thick reality, the trip to the airport for her pre-dawn flight would have been in serious jeopardy.

Another room waited for guests at the inn on our side of the country. The room at our inn (Bupp's Bed and Breakfast, one of our friends calls it) had been readied a few weeks before, when I packed up some of our son's remaining things not yet moved to his home on an adjoining property.

Now the inn began to quickly fill. Grandpa came in from the barn after milking (while Grandma went out to feed calves). The Farmer II and his friend Jen arrived, bringing their two big white dogs to further complement our one, and generating considerable irritation from the inn's unsociable housecat pouting behind the couch.

Baby things combined with the traditional to give the inn a popular holiday decorator look, known as Grandchildren Visiting for Christmas. A portable crib and baby seat complement the big wicker basket piled full of stuffed toys. Candles on the television illuminate temporarily-added accent pieces, like diaper bags and baby toys. Bottles and baby food jars keep company with the seasonal gift cheeses, cookies and holiday candles beginning to accumulate about the kitchen. And the rocking chair has a real baby being rocked, not just Teddy bears.

Meanwhile, we learned that Josh's daddy was stranded at a truck stop in the lower reaches of the Columbia River Gorge. Towing a car to a friend in Idaho, he traveled a mere 10 miles when the ice storm shut down the highway for two days. After he finally and slowly did make it to his destination, newscasters told how our kids escaped the 100-mile-hour winds which devastated parts of their state and brought out the Oregon National Guard.

Like those first Christmas young-couple travelers, this pair overcame adversity to safely reach their destinations, taking refuge when necessary along the way.

Like that first Christmas baby, this one is perfectly happy at the barn and seems both content and fascinated with the cattle around him. He chatters in his own language to the dogs who come to sniff him and the cat who wishes he had taken refuge at any other inn than hers. Especially when he goes crawling across the floor after her with astounding haste, pausing only momentarily to inspect her food and dump the water from her dish.

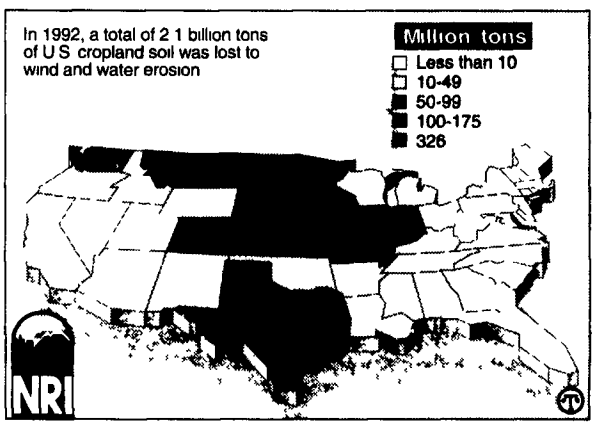
Like that first Christmas baby, this one enchants those who love him (especially grandmothers and great-grandmothers whom he can melt with the ear-to-ear sweep of a single grin).

Christmas will find them back home a few thousand miles from us, they celebrating the holiday with friends and us with family here at home. Our welcoming room at the inn for the family's baby is empty again, awaiting the next visit. Only Monk, the housecat, doesn't miss them.

And their visit helped make the celebration of the birth of the Christ Child that much merrier.

From our family to yours, a blessed and peaceful Christmas season!

Soil Loss: More Work Needed



(NAPS)—Most cropland soils can withstand soil erosion of up to about 5 tons per acre per year without losing long-term productivity. In 1992, the average annual rate of water erosion on cropland was 3.1 tons per acre, down from 4.1 tons per acre in 1982. The average annual rate of wind erosion on cropland declined from 3.3 tons per acre in 1982 to 2.5 tons per acre in 1992. However, one out of five acres of U.S. cropland is eroding at a higher rate than 5 tons per acre per year. Forty percent of all cropland erosion nationwide occurred in just five states: Texas, Minnesota, Iowa, Montana, and Kansas.

Holiday Buffet

Whenever you choose to have your holiday gatherings, food is sure to be an important part of the event—whether it's Christmas Day, a New Year's party, an open house, or serving overnight guests.

For many families, the week between Christmas and New Year's is filled with holiday celebrations.

Your menu, whether casual or more formal, is part of the festive season so you want to serve something special.

The more you can prepare in advance for the holidays, the more you'll enjoy the time you have to spend with family and friends. Buffets lend themselves to make ahead dishes. Also, they're great for having guests bring a dish to add to the selection.

Many of these recipes came from readers who forgot to include their names. We appreciate the recipes readers send, and we really do want to give credit. Readers, make sure your name and address is marked on every recipe you mail. Also, it's a good idea to include your phone number in case we have a question about the recipe.

PINEAPPLE CHEESE CASSEROLE

2 16-ounce cans chunk pineapple, drained
1½ cups granulated sugar
¾ cup all-purpose flour
2 cups grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 stack Ritz crackers
2 sticks butter

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Spread pineapple in a 2-quart casserole. Mix together the sugar, flour, and grated cheese. Add to casserole, mixing into the pineapple. Crush crackers and spread over top of pineapple cheese mixture. Melt butter and pour over crackers. Bake 30 minutes. Can be served hot or cold.

MINTY PEAS

⅓ cup water
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon dried peppermint leaves
3 10-ounce packages frozen baby peas

Place water, butter, and mint in a large saucepan and bring to a boil. Let boil one minute. Add frozen peas, cover, and cook 3 minutes. Toss gently and serve. Serves 10.

MARINATED FRESH VEGETABLES

Broccoli, washed and broken into small buds
Cauliflower, washed and broken into small flowerets

Broccoli and cauliflower may be blanched in hot water for several minutes and then crisped in cold water before using.

Mushrooms, cleaned and thinly sliced
Sweet peppers (red and green) cleaned, seeded, and thinly sliced
Zucchini, washed (not peeled) and thinly sliced

Other choices include green beans, peas, onions (preferably small green ones), cherry tomatoes, celery, carrots, asparagus, and more.

Dressing:
½ cup cider vinegar
¾ cup granulated sugar
½ cup vegetable oil
1 tablespoon grated onion
Salt and ground pepper, to taste

Mix together the vinegar and sugar in a heavy saucepan over very low heat, stirring until the sugar is completely dissolved. Remove from heat. Whisk in the oil, onion, and seasonings. Refrigerate until ready to combine the vegetables.

Prepare all the vegetables, dropping them in cold water to keep them crisp. When they are all ready, drain, pat dry, and put into a container with a tight lid. Pour the marinade over the vegetables. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve (at least several hours). To serve, drain or transfer the vegetables to a serving dish or platter with a slotted spoon. Garnish with tomato wedges.

APRICOT SLUSH

2 46-ounce cans apricot nectar
2 46-ounce cans pineapple juice
2 12-ounce cans frozen orange juice concentrate, thawed and undiluted
6-ounce can frozen lemonade concentrate, thawed and undiluted
67.6 ounce bottle ginger ale, chilled

Combine first 4 ingredients in a large container, freeze until firm.

Remove punch from freezer 1½ hours before serving. Place mixture in a punch bowl, break into chunks, add ginger ale. Stir until slushy. Yields: 7 quarts.

LAYERED CRAB TACO DIP

2 6-ounce cans lump crabmeat, drained
2 green onions minced
½ cup diced cucumber
½ cup diced red onion
1 medium tomato, finely chopped
2 tablespoons minced fresh parsley
¼ cup lime juice
¼ cup lemon juice
¼ cup orange juice
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 avocado, peeled, seeded, and diced
Tortilla chips, to serve

In a glass bowl, combine crabmeat, green onions, cucumber, red onions, tomato, and parsley. In a small bowl, combine juices. Stir into crab mixture. Add salt and pepper to taste. Cover and refrigerate for six hours or overnight.

Combine cream cheese and mayonnaise, blending well. Spread over bottom of serving platter.

Spread avocado over cream cheese mixture. Drain liquid from crab mixture, pressing out as much moisture as possible. Spread mixture over avocado. Serve with tortilla chips. Yields 5¾ cup dip.

Here is a recipe that works well for a holiday buffet or a way to use up leftover turkey and filling.

TURKEY CASSEROLE

6 cups filling OR
16 slices bread, crumbled
1 cup onion, chopped
1 cup celery, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Mix together remaining ingredients with filling:
4 cups turkey or chicken, cubed
1 cup mayonnaise
1 can mushroom soup
3 eggs
3 cups milk
1 cup cheddar cheese

Mix filling or equivalent, meat, mayonnaise, eggs, and milk. Place in casserole dish or 14x9-inch pan. Pour mushroom soup over top. Cover and bake at 325 degrees for 2 hours. The last 15 minutes, sprinkle cheddar cheese over top. May be made one day ahead and refrigerated.

12 DAYS OF GIVING

The holiday season is a special time for children. Fill the holidays and all year long with the 12 days of Christmas.

Day 1 — Children interested in gardening enjoy holiday decorating with their families. Plant the seeds of growing and nurturing at a young age by making a fresh evergreen wreath. Or make edible ornaments to feed the birds outdoors.

Day 2 — Children love caring for houseplants. Start with something easy like pathos or spider plants and expand from there. Children love touching a sensitive plant and watching the leaves fold up, observing a prayer plant or a Venus Fly Trap.

Day 3 — Chlidren enjoy creating terrariums in soda bottles, fish bowls or glass containers. Choose plants that like high humidity like the Venus Fly Trap. Once established they are quite easy to care for.

Day 4 — Besides foliage plants, children enjoy the fragrance of herbs. Herbs grow easily on the windowsill. Start the herbs from seed by providing all the necessary ingredients. Potting soil or seed starting mix, growing containers, a clear plastic cover, seeds and fluorescent lights are needed to get started.

Day 5 — To encourage recycling, put together a worm composting kit. The bin can be kept in the basement or garage as long as temperatures are not above 80 degrees F or below 30 degrees F. Worm composting, as well as any other type of composting, is an excellent way to show children how nature renews itself.

Day 6 — When the weather warms in the spring give children a garden spot they can call their own. Allow them to plant what he or she wants (within reason of course). The pride and self esteem that gardening can bring children is amazing. Allow them to develop the responsibility involved when caring for plants: Let them see for themselves that nature is not perfect and the garden doesn't have to be either to be successful and enjoyable.

Day 7 — Many children love collecting flowers and leaves. A leaf and flower press neatly preserves their beauty. The pressed flowers can then be used to create beautiful gifts for others or even for use with school or other educational projects.

Day 8 — Take a walk with your child. The early winter season contains beautiful scenes from nature. Stop and enjoy the movement of the leaves, the quietness of a snowfall, the beauty of undisturbed snow, and the wonderful music that accompanies the Christmas season. It would be a shame to miss any of the above. They are all free and yours to enjoy.

Day 9 — Think of someone for whom you can brighten their day with flowers. Deliver flowers and a short visit for no particular reason would brighten most anyone's day or evening. Who knows, they may even turn around and do it for someone else.

Day 10 — Plan your child's gift-giving around service to others. Visits, letters, telephone calls, picture exchanges, written life histories, or copies of a favorite garden stories or poems, are often appreciated more than costly gifts purchased from the store.

Day 11 — Plan your time so you can spend meaningful time with others. Giving of your time to be with others is a gift cherished by the receiver.

Day 12 — In the spirit of giving thanks give gifts from the heart. Read to your children. Reflect on your own families' gardening story. Tell them a story about who loves to garden, what they grew and why Peter Rabbit has come calling in the past. Inspire children to want to know more of their family heritage. Happy Holidays!

Tips For Planting Live Christmas Trees

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — More and more families are using a live tree to celebrate Christmas. There are some important things that you need to remember if you do purchase a live Christmas tree. One of the most important things is to plan ahead and decide what are you going to do with the live tree when Christmas is over. Bob Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture at Penn State University, has the following suggestions:

- Select the exact location where the tree will be planted before you purchase the tree. Remember that the tree will grow to a large size over time so make sure your selected space allows for adequate growing space for the future.
- Dig the transplant hole now before the ground freezes. Make sure that there is more than enough room to plant the tree. Allow plenty of space for the root ball when you dig the hole.
- Fill in the dug hole with loose leaves and cover an area several feet past the diameter of the hole with a 4 to 6 inch layer of mulch to prevent the soil from freezing. Rope off the area to prevent someone from falling into the hole.
- Mulch the back fill soil, or store it in a warm location so it will not freeze.
- Before Christmas, store the tree outside until it is time to take it inside. Once inside, keep the tree in a cool location no longer than five days, and keep the root ball or root system moist.
- After Christmas, take the tree outside and place it in a sheltered location for several days. Never replant the tree during a period of extreme cold. When the temperatures are in the 30s, plant the tree in the prepared hole.
- Remove the mulch from the hole. Measure the depth of the root ball to see if soil needs to be added or removed from the hole to keep the top of the root ball at the surrounding soil level.
- Set the tree in the hole and backfill with the saved soil. Firm the soil against the root ball as it is added to the hole. When the hole is filled, apply a 4 to 6 inch layer of mulch over the root planting hole and several feet beyond.
- Next spring, water the tree well as soon as soil temperatures begin to warm and the soil thaws. If the soil does not freeze after planting, you may need to water the tree during the winter months, especially on windy days.

By following these steps you should be able to enjoy your tree during the Christmas season and for many years to come.

Holiday Buffet

CHOCOLATE MINT COFFEE
Serves 4

½ cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 ounce German sweet chocolate, grated
2 cups strong hot coffee
8 tablespoons peppermint schnapps
Chocolate curls

Beat cream with sugar and vanilla until soft peaks form. Fold in grated chocolate. Pour hot coffee evenly into 4 mugs and add 2 tablespoons schnapps to each. Spoon on whipped cream. Garnish with chocolate curls and serve immediately.

ALMOND PATE
Makes about 1½ cups

8-ounces Brie, rind discarded, at room temperature
¾ cup butter, softened
2 tablespoons dry white wine
¼ teaspoon thyme
¾ cup almonds, slivered and toasted

Toast almonds in a preheated 350 degree oven until lightly browned. Remove from oven and allow to cool while preparing cheese mixture.

Combine all ingredients except almonds in a bowl and beat together with wire whisk until well blended. Mix in the toasted almonds. Pack into a serving container. A stoneware crock is nice. Cover and chill approximately an hour before serving. Remove cheese from refrigerator. Serve with crackers or fresh vegetables.

Anonymous

BEEF AND CHEESE PINWHEELS

12 ounces thinly sliced deli roast beef
4-ounces herb flavored soft cream cheese
4 large 10-inch flour tortillas
2 cups spinach leaves (about 20 leaves)
7-ounces roasted red peppers, rinsed and drained

Spread cheese evenly over one side of each tortilla. Place deli-roast beef over cream cheese leaving ½ -inch border around edges. Place spinach leaves over beef. Arrange peppers down center over spinach. Roll up tightly and wrap in plastic wrap. Refrigerate at least 30 minutes or up to 6 hours before serving. To serve, cut each roll crosswise into 8 slices; arrange cup side up on serving platter.

MOCHA EGGNOG

1 teaspoon instant coffee granules
½ cup hot water
32-ounces commercial refrigerated eggnog
¼ to ½ cup brandy
½ cup chocolate syrup
½ cup whipping cream, whipped
Grated semisweet chocolate (optional)

Dissolve coffee granules in hot water. Let cool. Combine coffee, eggnog, brandy, and chocolate syrup.

Cover and refrigerate. To serve, fold in whipped cream and garnish with grated chocolate. Yields 6 cups.

CRANBERRY EGGNOG CHEESECAKE

Crust:
1½ cups crushed coconut bar cookies
6 tablespoons butter, melted
Filling:
1 cup sugar, divided
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1½ cups dairy eggnog
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup whipping cream, whipped
16-ounce can jellied cranberry sauce

For crust: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Combine cookie crumbs and butter. Press onto bottom and part way up sides of 9-inch springform pan. Bake 8 to 10 minutes or until golden. Cool completely on wire rack.

For filling: Combine ½ cup sugar, gelatin and salt in medium-sized heavy saucepan. Beat egg yolks slightly and combine with eggnog; gradually stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over low to medium heat, stirring constantly, until gelatin is dissolved and sauce is slightly thickened. Do not boil. Remove from heat and cool slightly. In separate bowl, beat cream cheese, orange peel, and vanilla until fluffy. Stir in cooked mixture until well blended. Refrigerate until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon. In separate bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Gradually beat in remaining ½ cup sugar; beat until stiff and glossy. Fold whites and whipped cream into cream cheese mixture. Puree cranberry sauce in food processor or blender until smooth. Spoon ½ cream cheese mixture into crust. Top with ½ cranberry puree. Swirl cranberry mixture into cream cheese mixture using spatula. Repeat layers twice. Refrigerate several hours or overnight.

To serve: Place cake on serving plate. Loosen sides of cake with a spatula. Carefully remove sides of pan. Refrigerate until serving time.

QUESTION — F. Eleanor Rebuck is on a fat- and salt-free diet. She would like to know the ingredients used in soft ice cream or frozen custard.

QUESTION — J.M. Koser, Narvon, would like a recipe for Brown Bobby Cookies, which were popular about 50 years ago. The cookies were triangular with a triangle hole in the center. They were made in a special griddle like a waffle iron and frosted. Flavors included chocolate, vanilla, and spice. She would like both the recipe and information on the griddle.

QUESTION — B.W. Pue, Rocky Ridge, Md., would like directions for making realistic gingerbread people that are used in crafts. Some are puffy and others are thick and flat. How is the dough made and colored and the features painted?

QUESTION — Dick Taylor, Allentown, N.J., would like a recipe for hot pepper sauce using lime juice and carrots as opposed to the traditional method of using vinegar and tomatoes. He writes that lime juice enhances the pepper flavor more than vinegar.

QUESTION — Dee Crowder, Gettysburg, is looking for a recipe similar to Rotel or Chi-Chi's Tomato and Green Chilies.

ANSWER — Linda Ludwig, Reading, wanted a recipe for pumpkin pie that has about ¼ -inch layer of egg whites across the top when finished baking. Thanks to a friend from Belleville who wrote that any pumpkin pie recipe may be used if you separate the yolk and whites of the eggs requested in the recipe. Beat the egg whites to a stiff peak and fold in gently after all ingredients are mixed.

ANSWER — Mrs. Musser, Denver, wanted to know how to make fried apples like those served in restaurants with the vegetables. Thanks to Nina Kochmer, Lake Winola, for a recipe.

Fried Apples

6 apples
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
1 tablespoon water

Cut apples in eights. Peel 1 strip of skin from each piece. Melt butter in skillet. Add sugar, molasses, water, and mix well. Add apples, cover, cook until tender.

Remove cover; cook until juice is boiled away and apples are brown.

(Turn to Page B9)

HAM AND SWISS ROLLS
Makes 8 dozen

1 pound baked ham, ground
4 ounces Swiss cheese, grated
4 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
2 tablespoons poppy seed
1 medium onion, peeled and minced
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2 sticks butter, melted
8 dozen small finger rolls

Mix together all ingredients (except rolls) until well blended. Using a serrated knife, slice an entire package of rolls in half horizontally. Spread the bottom half with ¼ of the ham mixture, replace the top half, put the rolls back in the foil pan in which they were packaged; wrap with plastic wrap and then with freezer wrap and seal tightly. Label and date. Repeat with remaining rolls.

When ready to serve, remove from freezer. Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Bake rolls for approximately 20 minutes, until hot thoroughly.

When I plan to use this as a spread to serve with crackers and fresh vegetables, I use only one stick of butter and several tablespoons of beef broth (enough to bring to proper spreading consistency).

ANSWER — A reader wanted a recipe for corn pie that tastes like that served at Cloister Restaurant in Ephrata. Thanks to Rhoda Conover, Gettysburg, for sending this recipe.

Corn Pie

Make 2 crusts for 9-inch pie
2 cups fresh corn, drained
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour

Line pan with crust. Fill with corn filling, cover with crust. Pierce top. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees. Reduce heat to 325 degrees for 25 minutes. Serve hot. Use with roast beef. Delicious!

ANSWER — Elizabeth Littleton, Glen Arm, Md., and Joyce Utterbock of Alderson, W.V., wanted the starter for Amish cinnamon bread. Helen Spencer, Hopewell, N.J., made so much of the bread and gave it away that she would like to stop feeding it for awhile. She asks if it may be frozen because she doesn't want to lose the ability to make more of it as it is wonderful. Thanks to a reader who sent this recipe. She said you may store it in the refrigerator for 2 weeks but don't freeze. Also, don't use a metal container or spoon. Whenever you use some, feed the remaining mixture.

Starter for Friendship Cake or Bread

1 package yeast
¼ cup warm water

In crock, dissolve yeast in water. Add:

1 cup milk or potato water
1 cup flour
¼ cup sugar

Stir with wooden spoon until smooth. Cover with cheesecloth and set in warm place for 2 days. Feed it again with the same amounts of milk, flour, and sugar. Let stand 2 days. Now it is ready to use.

Elected To Advisory Council

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Young cooperators from across the nation elected Dan and JoAnn Requate, Dairylea members from Valley Falls, N.Y., to chair the National Milk Producer Federation's (NMPF's) 1996 Young Cooperator (YC) Advisory Council. The Requates were selected from among 10 other young couples from across the country at the NMPF's annual meeting this fall in Nashville, Tenn.

The National Milk Producers Federation is a Washington-based legislative organization that represents more than half of the nation's 112,000 dairy farmers. The Federation deals with issues that include the federal dairy program, animal health, food safety, conservation and the environment, international trade, and regulatory reform.

"The YC program is a leadership program designed to educate and develop tomorrow's generation of dairy leaders," Dan explained. The Requates said attending the meeting in Nashville was a great opportunity to meet and talk with people from across the country and get new ideas.

"We really enjoyed meeting other young farmers who are interested in milk promotion, producing quality milk, and furthering the positive image of the dairy industry," Dan added.

The Requates milk 125 cows and farm 350 acres in Rensselaer County.

Dairylea is a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with more than 2,400 member farms throughout the Northeast. It markets nearly 4 billion pounds of milk annually and participates and is invested in a milk marketing network stretching from Maine to Maryland to Ohio.

Dairylea members JoAnn and Dan Requate from Valley Falls, N.Y., have been chosen to chair the NMPF's National Young Cooperator Program.

Christmas Eve At The Nursing Home

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

It was Christmas Eve. Outside, a winter storm was sending lots of wonderful snow. Wind howled and the snowdrifts got bigger and bigger.

But inside it was cozy. With each hour that passed, the four sisters and their two little brothers got more and more excited. They were so excited that their eyes sparkled almost as much as the decorated tree in their livingroom.

The telephone rang. "It must be important," the children whispered to one another as they listened to their mother talking. She sounded very sorry about something.

"Well, that's certainly a shame," their mother said. "If we can think of somebody to help you, we'll call right back. Thanks for calling. Goodbye."

"What's wrong, Mother?" asked the children.

"I feel so bad for the nursing home," Mother replied. "That was the activities director. It seems that nobody has volunteered to entertain the residents this evening. She asked if I could suggest somebody."

"But that's awful," said one of the sisters. "Why, this is Christmas Eve."

"Mother, won't those old folks be sad if nobody comes to see them on Christmas Eve?" asked one of the children.

"Well, yes, I suppose so," Mother said. "Who can we call to help them?"

"Jesus will help us think of someone, let's ask him," said another child.

"Yeah, let's just pray about it," piped up another.

"That's an excellent idea," agreed Mother.

So the family prayed and sure enough, God sent an answer. God told the family they should be the ones to go.

God's answer pleased the children. But the mother began to worry. It wasn't that she didn't want to visit the dear folks in wheelchairs. She just didn't want to take her children out in a very bad winter storm.

Idella Bender, activities director; Shirley Teets, assistant activities director, and Jonas Fazenbaker, resident, gather around the Christmas tree at the Goodwill Mennonite Nursing Home in Grantsville, Maryland, for the Christmas Eve program.

Besides, the family had never performed together in public.

"Mother, you could play the piano and we could sing," said a chipper little voice. "You could even read 'The Little Star' story that you read to us every Christmas," the little voice added.

All the children agreed, so Mother gave in. She called the nursing home to say that she and her children would provide a short program for the residents.

The family bundled into woolly coats, mittens, and hats. They stuffed their feet into boots, ready for the blizzard. Into the back seat of the old family car went the big kids. Mother kept the little ones in front with her.

Blowing and drifting snow made the winding roads more dangerous after dark. But since the family felt that God had told them to go, they knew He would keep them safe.

As soon as they arrived at the nursing home, the family forgot about the weather. Mother played the piano while the children sang Christmas songs to the people in wheelchairs who were gathered in a big room. The people sang along. So did some of the nurses who were taking care of them.

Then Mother read "The Little Star" story out loud. The little booklet had first belonged to her own grandpa and grandma, so she was very fond of it. Long, long ago, it had been a Christmas gift from their Sunday School teacher.

Mother read how the little star was getting ready to shine his brightest with the other stars because something very, very important was about to happen on the earth.

"When the angels touch their harps and the cherubim begin to sing, that's the time to shine," Mother read how the master star was giving instructions to all the stars.

As the story continued, the people heard how the little star ended up being late. He missed the glorious moment. He was scolded for fooling around when he traveled across the sky. The master star asked him why he was late.

The little star hung his head. He had stopped along the way to shine his light for weary travelers, he said.

Then, he saw a lost lamb and took time to shine his light again. That took so long that he got lost himself and fell far behind the other stars. Of course, all of them except the little star had shone brilliantly, as planned.

After hearing the little star explain, the master star was proud of the little fellow and gave him a high honor. The master star appointed him to become the "Star of Bethlehem," which shines in the eastern sky around Christmas time.

The story was finished. Mother and the children closed their program with another holiday song. Everybody clapped their hands.

The family shook hands with many of their elderly friends and wished them a "Merry, Merry Christmas!"

When the family was safely home they cuddled around the happy Christmas tree. Twinkling lights and ornaments reminded them to be thankful for the Baby Jesus who brought so much love into the world.

"You know, children," Mother said, hugging them close, "I believe we are the ones who got the greatest blessing at the nursing home.

"Don't ever forget that God's love shines brightest in the lowliest deeds of kindness that we do for others," she said.

Why do pine trees have cones?
So they can make more pine trees!
Pine trees are part of a group of plants called conifers. (Say Kahn-uh-fir.) All conifers reproduce by making cones. And just like people, dogs and cats, there are male and female pine cones.
Both kinds of cones grow on the same tree. Male cones have the job of producing pollen. Pollen are tiny, dust-like particles that have important cells plants need to make seeds. These small, long, soft cones shed millions of pollen grains into the air during springtime. Our forestry friends say if you shake a pine tree then, you'll see puffs of pollen swirl up from the branches!
Young female cones sit upright on the branches so the pollen can easily land on them. Then the female cones make seeds that are wrapped in a leaf shaped like a plane's propeller.
As the seeds grow, the female cones become hard and woody. (These are the cones used in holiday wreaths and centerpieces.) Once the female cones mature after about a year, they turn upside down on the branch, drop off the tree, and let their winged seeds flutter away. And if a seed lands in a good spot, it will grow into another pine tree, and start the process all over again!
Scientifically yours, Twig

Governor's School Takes Applications

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—An opportunity to spend an adventurous summer on a college campus awaits Pennsylvania's high school sophomores and juniors.

For those with interests in the creative and performing arts, the discrete sciences, the environment, the agricultural and life sciences, foreign languages, international affairs, economics, or teaching and health care, the Pennsylvania Department of Education offers six different full-scholarship, five-week long, residential programs that provide an exciting living/learning experience which past participants have called "the best time of their lives."

Applications for the 1996 Pennsylvania Governor's Schools of Excellence are all public and private secondary schools in the commonwealth.

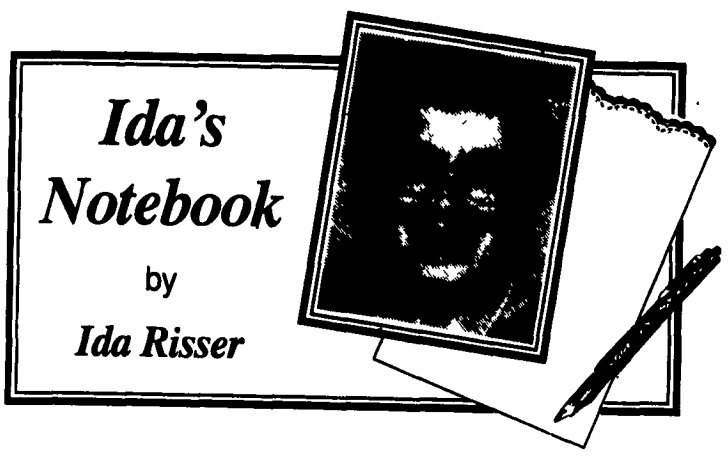
The programs are The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences at the University Park campus of the Pennsylvania State University; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Arts at Mercyhurst College, in Erie; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for Health Care, which is funded by the state Department of Health, Pennsylvania Blue Cross/Blue Shield, and The Hospital Association of Pennsylvania, and is held at the University of Pittsburgh; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for International Studies at the University of Pittsburgh; The Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Sciences at Carnegie Mellon University, in Pittsburgh; and The Pennsylvania Governor's School for Teaching at Millersville University, in Lancaster County.

Alumni have praised the Governor's Schools for offering the opportunity to interact with educators who are practitioners in their fields. Working with the cutting edge of technology and the newest research in every field is another highlight.

Tuition, room board, classroom materials, and all program activities are provided to students who are selected to participate in the Governor's Schools. Graduates of the Governor's Schools of Excellence are eligible for merit scholarships set aside by many of the commonwealth's state and private colleges and universities. Additionally, the Bell Atlantic Corporation awards merit scholarships to Governor's School alumni whose leadership activities benefit their home schools and communities.

Eligibility for the Schools of Excellence is restricted to high school students whose parents' or legal guardians' full-time residential address of record is in Pennsylvania. Furthermore, applicants must be currently assigned to the grade level specified by each program. Applicants may not have previously attended a Pennsylvania Governor's School of Excellence, and they may only apply to two programs in a given year. Students who accept an invitation to attend the programs must commit to the full five-week, seven-days-a-week experience.

A Governor's Schools hotline is available on weekdays for those who may have questions about the application process, at (717) 524-5244.



Almost Christmas! So, I took time to read my 1965 diary in order to see what we did 30 years ago in December.

All six children were home and the youngest was two years old. We spent a lot of time shopping for their parties and gift exchanges plus for the family.

The five-year-old and I went to the woods to gather moss, twigs, and oak leaves to make a nativity scene on a large flat mirror. And, our older boys surprised me by baking bread and cookies while I was away shopping.

In those days, I did a lot of ironing with five children in school and often finished when everyone else was in bed. One of my Christmas gifts was a bottle of ink as then I used a fountain pen instead of a ballpoint pen.

One night we had our own Christmas hymn sing and another time visited the grandparents. My sister made a large wreath for me of pine cones and acorns. The kindergartner brought home two paper angels which I prize and use even now.

Today we have invited our extended families to our home for a drop-in party. If everyone came that was invited we would have about 170 people. However, we usually have 50 children, brothers, sisters and cousins. It will be a busy afternoon and evening as usually it is the only time all year that we have both sides of the family together.

I wouldn't want to have Christmas more than once a year — that way it is always something very special.

Farm Women Societies

Berks Society 4

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 held its December meeting at the home of Mary Fizz.

Following the business meeting conducted by president Virginia Taylor, a Christmas party with games and a gift exchange was enjoyed. Christmas tray favors were made for Meals on Wheels and shut-ins will be remembered with cookie baskets.

The next meeting will be on January 10 at the Boyertown home of Charlotte Mauger.

Lebanon Society 20

Lebanon County Farm Women Group #20 met at the home of Carol Heagy for the Christmas party. Nineteen members were present. The hostess read Luke Chap 2 followed by the Lords prayer and salute to the flag.

The State Convention is January 8 at Harrisburg, the ticket deadline is January 1.

New program books were handed out.

A game was played, after which member exchanged gifts and revealed secret pals. New secret pals were chosen.

Time For One More Christmas Ornament By Karen

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Perseverance paid off for Lancaster Farming employee Karen Wattai. After several entries in the annual craft contest sponsored by Crafts Magazine, Karen took first place for her original Christmas ornament.

Among being a mommy, wife, and paste-up artist for Lancaster Farming, Karen Wattai always finds time to squeeze one more ornament-making session into her busy schedule. This year is no exception. She designed a quickie for Lancaster Farming readers.

Sorry, it isn't the prize winning ornament since full rights for that were given to the magazine. Her design appears on page 74 of the January issue. According to Karen, the design is a three dimensional Christmas tree entwined by two rings. The ornament is trimmed with glass seed and a glittering red star.

The design was sort of trial and error because Karen wasn't sure if it would work. It did. Karen made only one that she submitted to the magazine with graph, directions, and labels from floss, according to contest rules.

Surprise! The company notified her at work that she was a prize winner. She won a cash prize and craft supplies for many more projects.

Karen (nicknamed Casey at work to differentiate her from an abundance of Karen employees) lives in Lebanon with her husband Ron and 6-year-old daughter Alyson who already does needle tatting and counted cross stitch.

Karen received a degree in fine arts from Millersville University. Her big interest at that time was water colors — many of her originals featured buildings in Williamsburg, Va. Karen sold some of her work to a Williamsburg shop.

"Then I got bit by the needlework bug. Now my husband tells people, 'My wife used to paint.'"

Although needlework does occupy most of her time, Karen finds some time to paint original water colors for people who contact her.

Currently Karen is going through a phase of tatting.

"Tatting was called poor man's lace in the middle 1800s because the well-to-do purchased their lace from Europe. Tatting has become popular with the resurging interest in Victorian decor," Karen said.

Winning is addictive. Karen said, "The magazine has another contest coming up. I can't resist designing something for it."

Karen and Alyson Wattai show off some of the projects both have completed.

In the intermit, Karen is certain that other craft addicts will say of the holiday season, "Everything is done. Gee, I have time for one more ornament."

In case you do, here are the instructions. If you don't have time this year, clip this out for next year's project.

CROSS STITCH ORNAMENT
By Karen Wattai

Materials:

16 count Aida cloth-white or ivory

DMC Perle Cotton #5

#498 Red

#319 Green

#24 Needle

Work each row horizontally (the dark lines represent the threads on top). Cut thread after each row (the dots on the graph represent where thread should start and end for each row — this helps to anchor the threads so that backstitching will catch each thread underneath. Do green (G) section, red section (R), and then green (G) again. When pattern is complete, use red perle cotton to backstitch border 3 squares from design (see graph) stitching up 2, back 1 around pattern.

Note: When doing sides, be sure to catch each thread of perle cotton as you go. Cut fabric and threads 3 squares out from backstitching and fringe. Attach red perle cotton on back from top corners.

Beford Farmer Helps Ukraine Farmer

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — When Fred Claycomb signed up to be a VOCA (Volunteers Overseas · Co-operative Assistance) volunteer at Ag Progress Days, he didn't realize it would change his life.

And, little did he know that he and his wife, Connie, would both be working to help convert the country of Ukraine back into the bread basket of Europe.

It began with Fred, a Bedford County dairy farmer, being sent to Ukraine to educate farmers on the latest farming technologies. Ukrainians, natural born farmers, had had little knowledge of modern farming methods during the communist regime. With the breakup of the Communist control, Ukrainians were ready to make the rich soil of their country productive.

However, Communism had not allowed for advancements in farming. Machinery, seeds, and parts are difficult to find and the knowledge of farmers such as Fred Claycomb is a valuable asset.

Fred was met at the airport by an interpreter, Anna Alekseyenko, a third-year student at the University of Kiev studying "International Tourism."

Anna's father was one fo the farmers with whom Fred worked in the Ukraine.

It was an instant friendship and soon after his return to America, Fred and his wife, Connie, invited Anna to come to America. They raised the money for her expenses with donations from churches, civic organizations, clubs, and individuals. A letter from Senator Rick Santorum helped to speed up plans.

Arriving on October 25, Anna is staying with the Claycombs until January 7, gathering agricultural knowledge to take back to her native homeland.

"I want to return to America to attend Penn State and study ag business," Anna says. "I am so excited about all I have been seeing."

"I feel the Lord has had a hand in all this," says Connie Claycomb. "There is a plan for that rich farmland in Ukraine and I feel we are somehow a part of it."

Anna is quick to point out that her native land has always remained Christian despite the strong Communist control. "All of the priests in our Christian Orthodox churches were killed during Stalin's takeover," she says. "But we still maintained our Christianty."

"We do not need the missionaries from the Mormons, Baptists, and various other religions being sent to us. What we need instead is the knowledge and availability of seeds, fertilizers, and machinery, to make our farmlands productive."

Proud of her heritage, Anna remembers a grandmother who, despite a life of hardship, was always smiling and full of faith that the people of Ukraine would some day get their native land back.

Her father always managed to keep his family well fed. He has worked as a journalist, a musician, a photographer, and is now fulfilling his greatest desire of farming.

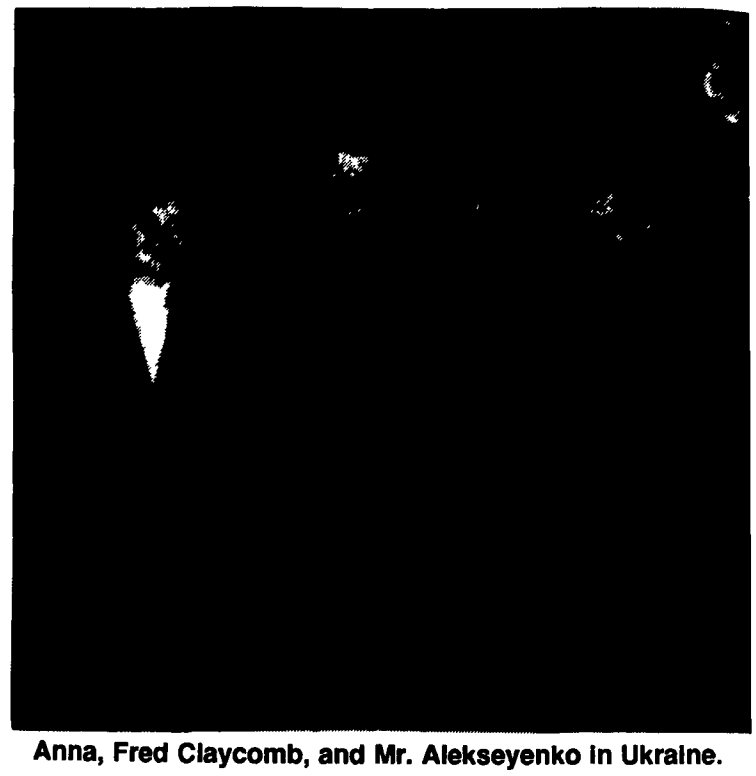
"Everyone in Ukraine is, in his own way, a farmer," Anna continues. "In every backyard you will find a vegetable garden, a few pigs, or chickens. We know how to farm, we just don't have the latest technical knowledge or the resources we need. We know that the soil in Ukraine is the best in the world and I can't ever remember of the drought. I have never even heard my parents talk about a drought."

Anna Alekseyenko, the interpreter for the volunteers who visited the Ukraine, is visiting the Claycombs in Bedford County and plans to return to study agriculture at Penn State.

Traveling with Fred on his calls as a crop insurance agent, Anna has met dozens of farm families throughout the state. She has also met Governor Ridge, the secretary of agriculture, and most of the members of the board of Penn State University. "The highlight of my stay was being asked to attend classes at the University for a day," Anna beams.

In order to give the farmers of the Ukraine a better understanding of how co-ops work in America, Anna spent a day making a video at Agway and Farm Bureau asking managers in the various stores to give their own ideas on how a similar type structure could be developed.

Anna's father owns about 100 acres in Ukraine which was given to him by the government following the breakdown of the Communist control. He raises potatoes and other vegetables. His desire is to become a distributor of quality seeds. It is Fred Claycomb's wish to help him realize that dream.



Anna, Fred Claycomb, and Mr. Alekseyenko in Ukraine.

"Prior to the revolution, farmers in Ukraine had about 1,000 acres of land. But, all of those farms were destroyed when the communists took over," says Anna.

Today only a few live on their farms. Most housing is in large apartment buildings. "A few are beginning to rebuild private homes and that is what we hope to do," Anna says.

Anna has been "very much impressed," with American farm life. "I am so happy I got to come here," she emphasizes.

While here she took advantage of a local dentist. An abscessed tooth was reason enough and Anna was quite surprised to find a root canal a painless procedure. "In Ukraine it would take many dollars to have painless dentistry," she explains. "You can get your teeth fixed through the medical treatment provided by the government. If you want it to be painless you pay a lot more."

Consequently, Anna has had as many teeth filled as time would allow.

The same is true of all medicine in Ukraine. "You can always find a doctor," says Anna. "But, the government pays them only $90 a month. If you want good treatment, you pay under the table."

When she departs the United States in January it will be with a bundle of newfound American knowledge. Knowledge she hopes her native Ukrainians can put into practice.

And, Anna also hopes to return as a student at Penn State where she can further studies in agriculture.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details.

QUESTION — Esther Nolt, Newmanstown, would like to know where she can buy a set of Jungle Doctor books written by Paul White. She enjoyed these books as a child and would like to get them for her children.

QUESTION — Dale Leighow, R.R.3, Box 368, Catawissa, would like to locate some seed from a corn called 8-row yellow or possibly Flint corn. It is a small diameter cob about 8-10-inches long. Also the cob is white and every ear has eight rows of kernals. The kernel is about the size of an average person's fingernail on the ring finger and is dark yellow in color. It was used many years ago to grind into cornmeal. Dale would like 20 to 25 kernels to plant in 1996.

QUESTION — A Turbotville reader would like to know where to find literature or an owner's manual on a US Slicing Machine Co., Van Berkel's original hand crank meat slicer that was made in 1912 in La Porte, Ind.

QUESTION — A reader from Coatesville wants to buy a lap harp for her husband for Christmas. Consequently, she doesn't want her name printed. She understands that lap harps are handmade.

QUESTION — Allison Burdeshaw Harriford, Staunton, Va., desperately wants to purchase a child's turquoise blue Easy-Bake oven with accessories in time for Christmas. Please call her at 1-800-229-5801, ext. 246.

QUESTION — Daniel Esh, Gordonville, would like to know where to purchase a small battery-operated music box that imitates a canary singing.

QUESTION — Glenda Strouse, Northumberland, would like to know the title and author of an excerpt from the following poem. The complete poem appeared in the 12/9 issue, but we need to condense for space. It's her grandmother's favorite poem and she could recite every word until a stroke took her voice. She is 89 and in a nursing home, but Glenda reads this poem to her every Christmas. Glenda said that there may be parts missing or wrong since she wrote it from memory.

The yule log blazed in the ancient hold.
The begger shrank from the biting cold.
The baron's only daughter, the little Lady Grace was better dressed than any guest and fairer in the face.
Yet never a thought of pride had she as she gaily danced round the Christmas tree. . . .

QUESTION — Carrie Leiphart, Port Trevorton, would like to know where to buy by-products for cattle such as pasta and bread.

QUESTION — Doris E. Jordan, R.4, Box 153, Muncy, Pa. 17756, will pay for a pattern to make an appliqued peacock quilt.

QUESTION — Mrs. Clyde Barrick, 2660 Walnut Bottom Rd., Carlisle, Pa. 17013, would like the story "The Night the Animals Talked."

QUESTION — Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio, would like to know where to purchase heavy duty chair frames for macrame. She does not want to do all that work on used frames.

4-H Kiddin' Around Goat Club Seeks Members

Rijelle Kraft
4-H Kiddin' Around Goat Club

Hi! My name is Rijelle Kraft, and I am the vice president of the York County 4-H Kiddin' Around Goat Club.

I would like to invite anyone who has a goat or has an interest in learning more about goats to join our club. We do lots of fun things and learn all about goats at our meetings.

Some of the things you could learn if you join our club are the proper amount of feed, water, and nutrient supplements your goat needs, and how to groom your goat, trim hooves, clip them for shows and more. You can learn how to teach a goat to pull a cart, and of course how to milk a goat and enjoy the delicious products that come from goat's milk.

You can also participate in shows and earn beautiful ribbons.

Whether you have pygmies, angoras, dairy goats or wethers, there is something for you in our club. Our club meets on the first Friday of the month at the 4-H Center in Bair.

If you'd like more information about the club, you can call me at (717) 266-1692 or call the club's leader, Rose Sprenkle, at (717) 225-5179. You can also get information about this and other 4-H clubs by calling the Penn State Extension Office at (717) 840-7408 and ask for Amy Church. Hope to see you at our meetings!

QUESTION — A subscriber would like to know where to get a stove enameled.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Fisher, 1068 Back Maitland Rd., Lewistown, PA 17044, is looking for "Engine Whistles," the fifth reader from the Alice and Jerry series by Row, Peterson, and Co.

QUESTION — Patricia Varchol, Reinholds writes that she has a Turbo Baker II bread machine, manufactured by DAK Industries of Canoga Park, Calif. She wants to order a replacement part. She was in touch with the company as recently as last fall but now both their phone numbers are out of service. Does anyone have recent information on the company or know if another company took over the manufacture of the bread machine?

QUESTION — Al Freysz, Middletown, Md., would like to know where to obtain parts for a Bonanza apple parer.

QUESTION — Bill Sherwood, Beavertown, is looking for two items. One is a kid's wagon made by Sherwood Company with the name Sherwood printed on the side. The other is a goat wagon. Both should be older models that are in good shape and priced reasonably.

ANSWER — Mrs. Harold Kuehler, Coatesville, wanted to know how to keep the dog's water pail from freezing when they go away overnight. Thanks to Jerry Wenger of Womelsdorf for writing that a heated electric dog bowl is available from Central Tractor located at three locations: Lebanon, (717) 274-9725; Pottstown, (610) 718-0404; and Lancaster, (717) 569-0111.

ANSWER — Carrie Leiphart, Port Trevorton, wanted to know why rabbits are having such small litters this fall. Thanks to Peter Mauer, Bloomville, N.Y., who wrote that the hot summer in the Northeast is the reason rabbits are having small litters. The hot weather raises havoc on the fertility of the breeding buck. As a result a lot of bucks sired no litters or small litters. The effects will reach into fall and early winter. Some bucks will never recover from the heat damage. It's a good idea to replace these bucks. To prevent this happening in litters, try to keep the rabbits cool during hot weather.

Peter writes a weekly informative-advice column for two newspapers on raising rabbits. He receives questions from six states and will be glad to answer any questions our readers may have about rabbits. Write to him at Rd. 1, Box 157, Bloomville, N.Y. 13739.

ANSWER — A reader from Perry County wanted to know where he could get books on raising sheep such as "Raising Sheep the Modern Way," by Paula Simmons. Thanks to several readers for answering. Jerry Wenger, Womelsdorf; Lydia Piper, Halifax, and a Manheim reader wrote that it may be purchased at some feed stores or write to Storey's How-To Books for Country Living, Dept. 81, P.O. Box 38, Pownal, Vermont 05261-9989. Phone 1-800-441-5700.

Thanks to Jack Sullivan, Dundee, N.Y., who wrote that books on sheep raising may be purchased from Sheepman Supply Co., P.O. Box 100, 5449 Gov. Barbour St., Barboursvillle, VA 22923. Send for a catalog or call 1-800-336-3005.

Thanks to both Sharon Kelly, Wellsville, and to Lydia Piper, Halifax, for writing that Sheep magazine is a wonderful source of information. However, each sent a different address for it. One address is Sheep! P.O. Box 10, Lake Mills, WI 53551. The other is Sheep! Rt. 1, Helenville, WI 53137 (414) 593-8385. Sharon writes that Paula Simmons books are always listed for sale along with other excellent sheep authors.

ANSWER — Mike Williams, Conowingo, Md., wanted blue print plans to build a rolltop desk. Thanks to a reader who wrote that plans for a roll top desk are included with a catalog that you can request from Hammer Mark, Dept. M.H. P.O. Box 201, Floral Park, N.Y. 11002.

ANSWER — Sue Pardo, Jarrettsville, Md., wanted to contact someone for beginning weaving classes. Thanks to Sharon Kelly, Wellsville, who recommends Manning Studio in East Berlin, York County. The studio also sells a wonderful book Learning to Weave by Deborah Chandler. It is so clearly written that the basics of warping and weaving can be learned quite easily. Sharon writes that she has worn out her first copy of the book. Sharon would be happy to offer advice on the subject to anyone who contacts her at R.D.1, Box 244, Wellsville, PA 17365.

ANSWER — Ronald Strawbridge, Brogue, wrote that he planted all red gladioli one year and the next year, the flowers all came up yellow or white. Why? Thanks to a reader who wrote that he understands that if you do not cut off gladioli blooms, the colors will revert back to pale or poor colors in future years. So cut off your gladioli and share them with your friends. You will need to purchase new bulbs if the colors have already changed.

ANSWER — Iris Weaver, Mohnton, wanted to know where to buy seeds for goose gourds. A reader wrote that you may purchase a gourd and try planting the seeds next year. Gloria Ruth, 779 Ruth Rd., Telford, Pa. 18969, wrote that she saved seeds and will be happy to share them if you write to her.

ANSWER — A subscriber wanted to know where to purchase 50-pound bags of finely ground natural phosphate rock in Northampton or Lehigh counties. Thanks to a reader who wrote that it may be purchased in Lehigh County from Leon Rex III, 4310 Best Station Rd., Slatington, PA 18080. Phone (610) 767-9776.

ATTENTION — Harold R. Stoudt, Hamburg, wanted to know how to make homemade salve or ointment. Thanks to an anonymous reader who sent interesting instructions and insight into the process. However, clarification is needed on one of the ingredients. Please contact the office or send your phone number so that the instructions can be printed.

4-H Winners Shine At State Horse Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Members of county 4-H horse clubs throughout the state gathered at the end of October this year for the annual Pennsylvania 4-H Horse Show.

Held at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg, the show featured a variety of classes and competition for horse club members.

More than 950 winners in county and district competition vied for awards. Events tested skills in showmanship, equitation, pleasure, jumping, driving, and timed events.

In 4-H horse production classes, members breed and raise their own project animal.

The primary purpose of the state 4-H horse program is to develop life skills in youth and skills in horse management. Through competition, the 4-H'ers develop riding skills, gain self-confidence, and learn proper care of animals.

The state show culminates the year for approximately 7,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members enrolled in horse and pony clubs. To be eligible for this show, 4-H'ers had to advance through qualifying competitions at county, regional, and district levels.

James Mackey, Aspers, received first place awards in the hunter type pony - colt or gelding of this year class at the Pennsylvania State 4-H Horse Show held recently in Harrisburg.

Melissa Hawkins, New Oxford, won first place in both the hunter hack horse and hunter seat equitation (not to jump) senior division classes at the 36th annual Pennsylvania State 4-H Horse Show.

Melanie Martin won hunter type horse filly this year.

Catch The Bug: Attend Insect Series

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Ever wonder what happens to insects during the winter? Concerned about protecting your family from Lyme disease? Want to learn how to photograph butterflies? Curious about which bugs are safe to handle and which aren't?

If insects pique your interest, the Department of Entomology in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences is offering free public programs just for you.

"Catch the Bug" is a year-round series of walks, talks and activities providing in-depth looks at insects and their fascinating — and often unusual — ways.

The presentations are designed to enlighten and delight people of all ages. Topics to be covered range from the ticks and butterflies of central Pennsylvania to the flora and fauna of the Costa Rican rain forest. Planned programs include:

• Tropical Adventures — Seeing and preserving the rain forest of Costa Rica. Wednesday, January 17, 7 p.m.

• Where Have All the Insects Gone? — During this bug-watching walk, learn where insects go in the winter. Saturday, February 10, 10 a.m.

• Hands on Bugs — Learn what's good to hold and what's not in this hands-on introduction to some of the most fascinating and exotic creatures on Earth. Saturday, March 9, 10 a.m.

• Taking a Bite out of the Perfect Apple — Replacing pesticides with biological alternatives requires your understanding — are you up to it? Wednesday, April 10, 7 p.m.

• Insects Springing Forth — As the weather warms up, so do the insects. See why on this springtime walk. Saturday, May 11, 10 a.m.

• Wildlife Nightlife — Experience moth mania, caterpillar cruisin' and other six-legged summer evening delights on this insect walk. Wednesday, June 12, 7 p.m.

• Sick of Bugs — Houseflies, mosquitos, cockroaches and ticks — what they have and how to keep from getting it. Wednesday, July 10, 7 p.m.

• Feasting with the Fritillaries — Bring your lunch and dine with the butterflies. Saturday, August 10, 10 a.m.

Wednesday evening presentations (except Wildlife Nightlife) will be held in 101 Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building on Penn State's University Park Campus. Wildlife Nightlife will take place at the Wind Ridge Farm and research site near Unionville (call (814) 865-1895 for directions).

Saturday morning activities and field tours will begin in the lobby of Agricultural Sciences and Industries Building. From there, the group will travel a short distance by car to the field location.

All presentations are free and open to the public. Free parking is available in the Blue A lot at the corner of Bigler and Curtin Roads.

For more information, call the entomology department at (814) 865-1895.

HAPPENINGS

Hunterdon Hoppers 4-H Club

At th October meeting of the Hunterdon, N.J. Hoppers 4-H Club, the group chose presentation topics. The group also picked people to be on the Halloween Carnival Night Committee.

Several new members joined the club. The group also discussed who would work on the Holiday Workshop Committee.

At the next meeting, many members will go to the extension center and share their rabbits with the 4-H Prep Club.

Scissor Wizards 4-H Club

The Scissor Wizards 4-H Club met in the beginning of September for the election of officers. The following were elected: Bobbie Black, 17, of Somerville, president; Becky Black, 13, of Somerville, vicle president; Kelly Kreider, 14, of Whitehouse, treasurer; and Dawn Russo, 16, of Neshanic, news reporter.

As the month went on, the club became very busy. They did their first community service project fo the year by weeding the White House Station Library's landscaping. They also held one craft meeting and one cooking meeting at Sue Posbergh's home in Neshanic, where they learned to make a Thanksgiving feast.

Maryland 4-H Members Shine

The Maryland 4-H members who competed at the Eastern National 4-H Horse Roundup at Louisville, Ky., on Nov. 4 were not horsing around.

Sixteen participants from around the state were tested in their knowledge of horse judging, hippology, and general equine information. Individuals also performed various demonstrations and participated in a public speaking contest. The results of the competition are as follows:

Hippology contest:

•Holly Bennett, 15, of Churchville (Harford County) was high individual overall. She was 1st in the stations phase and 8th in the judging phase.

•Kara Schmidt, 16, of Emmorton (Harford County) was 3rd overall. She was 1st in the written phase and 6th in the judging phase.

•Other team members were Rachel Dayton, 16, of Stewartstown, Pa., (Baltimore County 4-H member); and Beck Brown, 16, of Conowingo (Cecil County).

•The Maryland team was 2nd overall, 3rd in the written phase, 3rd in the judging phase, and 2nd in the stations phase.

Horse judging:

•Charles Schwinn, 18, of Brooklyn (Anne Arundel County) was 8th in performance judging and 22nd overall.

•Other team members were Allison Walmsley, 16, of Chestertown (Queen Annes County 4-H member); Kim Shrout, 16, of St. Charles (Charles County); and Jamie Brand, 17, of Simpsonville (Howard County).

•The Maryland team was 8th in performance judging and 11th overall.

Team demonstration contest:

•Daniela Bals and Laura Smith, both 16 and neighbors from Simpsonville, from Howard County presented "The Healing Touch," alternative forms of veterinary medicine, and won 8th place.

Individual demonstration:

•Jennifer Pearce, 19, of Fountain Green (Herford County) placed 11th with a presentation on the use of horses by Native Americans.

Public speaking contest:

•Jennifer Eakle, 18, of Mt. Airy (Howard County 4-H member) gave a speech on colic and received 11th place.

Horse bowl:

•Amana Moore, 16, of Fallston (Harford County); Sarah Crouse, 17, of Sudlersville (Queen Annes County); Chrissy Lucchesi, 16, of Mattawoman (Charles County); Patience Pantos, 17, of Olney; and Erika Vasauskas, 14, of Ashton composed the Maryland team. Both of the latter two are Montgomery County residents with Howard County 4-H membership. The Maryland team advanced to the 5th round and tied for 10th place.

Various 4-H leaders volunteered their time to coach the teams. Shirley Geis and Daryl Ann Buschling, both from Howard County, coached the Hippology team. Betsy Massey (Anne Arundel County 4-H leader) and Bob Shirley (Carroll County Extension 4-H agent) coached the Horse Judging team. The Maryland communications contestants were coached by-Denise Frebertshauser (Baltimore County 4-H Faculty Assistant). The Horse Bowl team was coached by Roxie Cross (Queen Annes County 4-H leader).

Chris Johnston (Queen Annes and Kent County Extension 4-H agent) served her 6th year as Horse Bowl co-superintendent, and Bob Shirley (Carroll County Extension 4-H agent) has served as co-superintendent of the demonstration contest for 12 years.

For more information on the horse judging competition, Maryland residents may contact their county Cooperative Extension Service office. Phone numbers can be found under local listings in the blue pages of the telephone directory. Additional information can be obtained from Bob Shirley, Carroll County Extension 4-H agent, at (410) 848-4611.

Christmas Thoughts

Let us keep Christmas, its meaning never ends ...the time of year to wish happiness and good will to friends and loved ones; near and far...the time to share the joys of the past and the hopes of the future, and to remember all we have to be thankful for. If we can do this for a day, why not forever? Let us keep the true spirit of Christmas. Today, tomorrow and always.

Merry Christmas

Christmas Thoughts

Let us keep Christmas, its meaning never ends... the time of year to wish happiness and good will to friends and loved ones, near and far... the time to share the joys of the past and the hopes of the future, and to remember all we have to be thankful for. If we can do this for a day, why not forever?

Let us keep the true spirit of Christmas. Today, tomorrow and always.

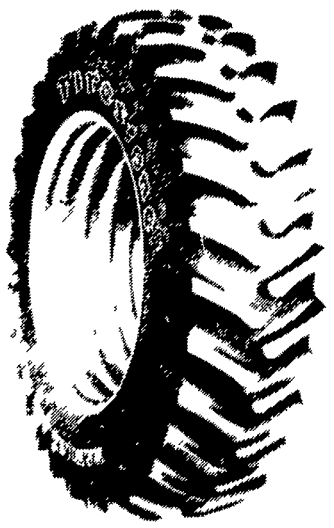
QUALITY HOLSTEIN DAIRY HERDS FOR SALE
REGISTERED & GRADE — ALL SIZES

Firestone The Leader in The Field

Super All Traction 23°



R-1

- New top-of-line bias-ply tractor rear, featuring our long bar/long bar design for tread stability, and heavy bar bracing to extend tread life.
- Long wearing and smooth riding, due to the more uniform, flatter contour of the long bar/long bar design.
- Proven 23° bar angle for traction and open center for self-cleaning.
- Bead and rim protector shields the rim to help keep stubble and soil from getting between the bead and rim flange.

Farm Agreement Far Cry From Promised Reform

WASHINGTON, D.C. — "While congressional Republicans swept into power on campaign promises of reform, the agriculture agreement reached by Republican budget conferees perpetuates the same old bureaucracy and even has the audacity to set up a new welfare system," said Leland Swenson, president of the National Farmers Union (NFU).

In addition, Swenson said the agreement would lower producer incomes, reduce conservation benefits, and potentially do away with local control of agriculture committees.

The agriculture conference committee recently announced that its GOP members had reached an agreement on language that will govern farm programs into the 21st century and beyond. The agreement melds Senate legislation on farm programs with House Agriculture Committee Chairman Pat Robert's, Kan., Freedom to Farm Act.

According to Swenson, NFU vehemently opposes the conference committee agreement because it would:

- Lower farm incomes by institutionalizing low commodity prices via low loan rates. Current loan rates (i.e. $2.58 for wheat, $1.89 for corn), which are now set below the cost of production, could NEVER be raised, only lowered.
- Increase nonpaid (flex) acres from 15 to 30 percent.
- Put more land into production by eliminating set asides and reducing funding for the Conservation Reserve Program. This will plunge production agriculture into a cycle of lower prices and higher levels of environmental degradation.
- Convert farm programs, which were devised to stabilize food supplies and price into a welfare program by decoupling farm payments from production. Farmers could even plant nothing and still receive payments.
- Virtually prevent beginning farmers from entering production agriculture by limiting farm program participation to those who have participated prior to 1995.
- Raise Commodity Credit Corporation interest rates, thereby reducing farm incomes.
- Eliminate the Farmer Owned Reserve Program.
- Retain the triple entity provision, enabling the largest producers to continue to receive large benefits. Not only does this quickly drain limited funding for farm programs, it maintains the image of "rich farmers on the government dole."
- Nearly render federal crop insurance insolvent since producers can choose not to participate. Federal crop insurance was only recently improved in order that crop insurance be used in place of ad hoc disaster assistance.
- Eliminate the Emergency Livestock Feed Assistance Program.

According to NFU, some of the more obscure provisions in the agreement will eventually exact the greatest impact on American agriculture.

"It repeals the 1938 and 1949 agricultural acts, which established our farm policy infrastructure from local U.S. Department of Agriculture committees to the Commodity Credit Corporation," said Larry Mitchell, head of NFU's government relations office. "The elimination of these structures indicates Congress' sincerity in completely abolishing farm programs over seven years.

"When Farmers Union producers met with President Clinton at the White House earlier in the week, they left feeling assured that the president will veto budget reconciliation, in part, because of what it would do to family farmers," said Mitchell.

NFU supports the Family Farm Empowerment Act, a farm bill alternative introduced in Congress in October, which would save the federal government $5 billion over five years by capping loan amounts. The provisions of this legislation would also simplify farm programs, reduce red tape, and leave federal programs less vulnerable to abuse.

Annual Tree Seedling Sale Under Way

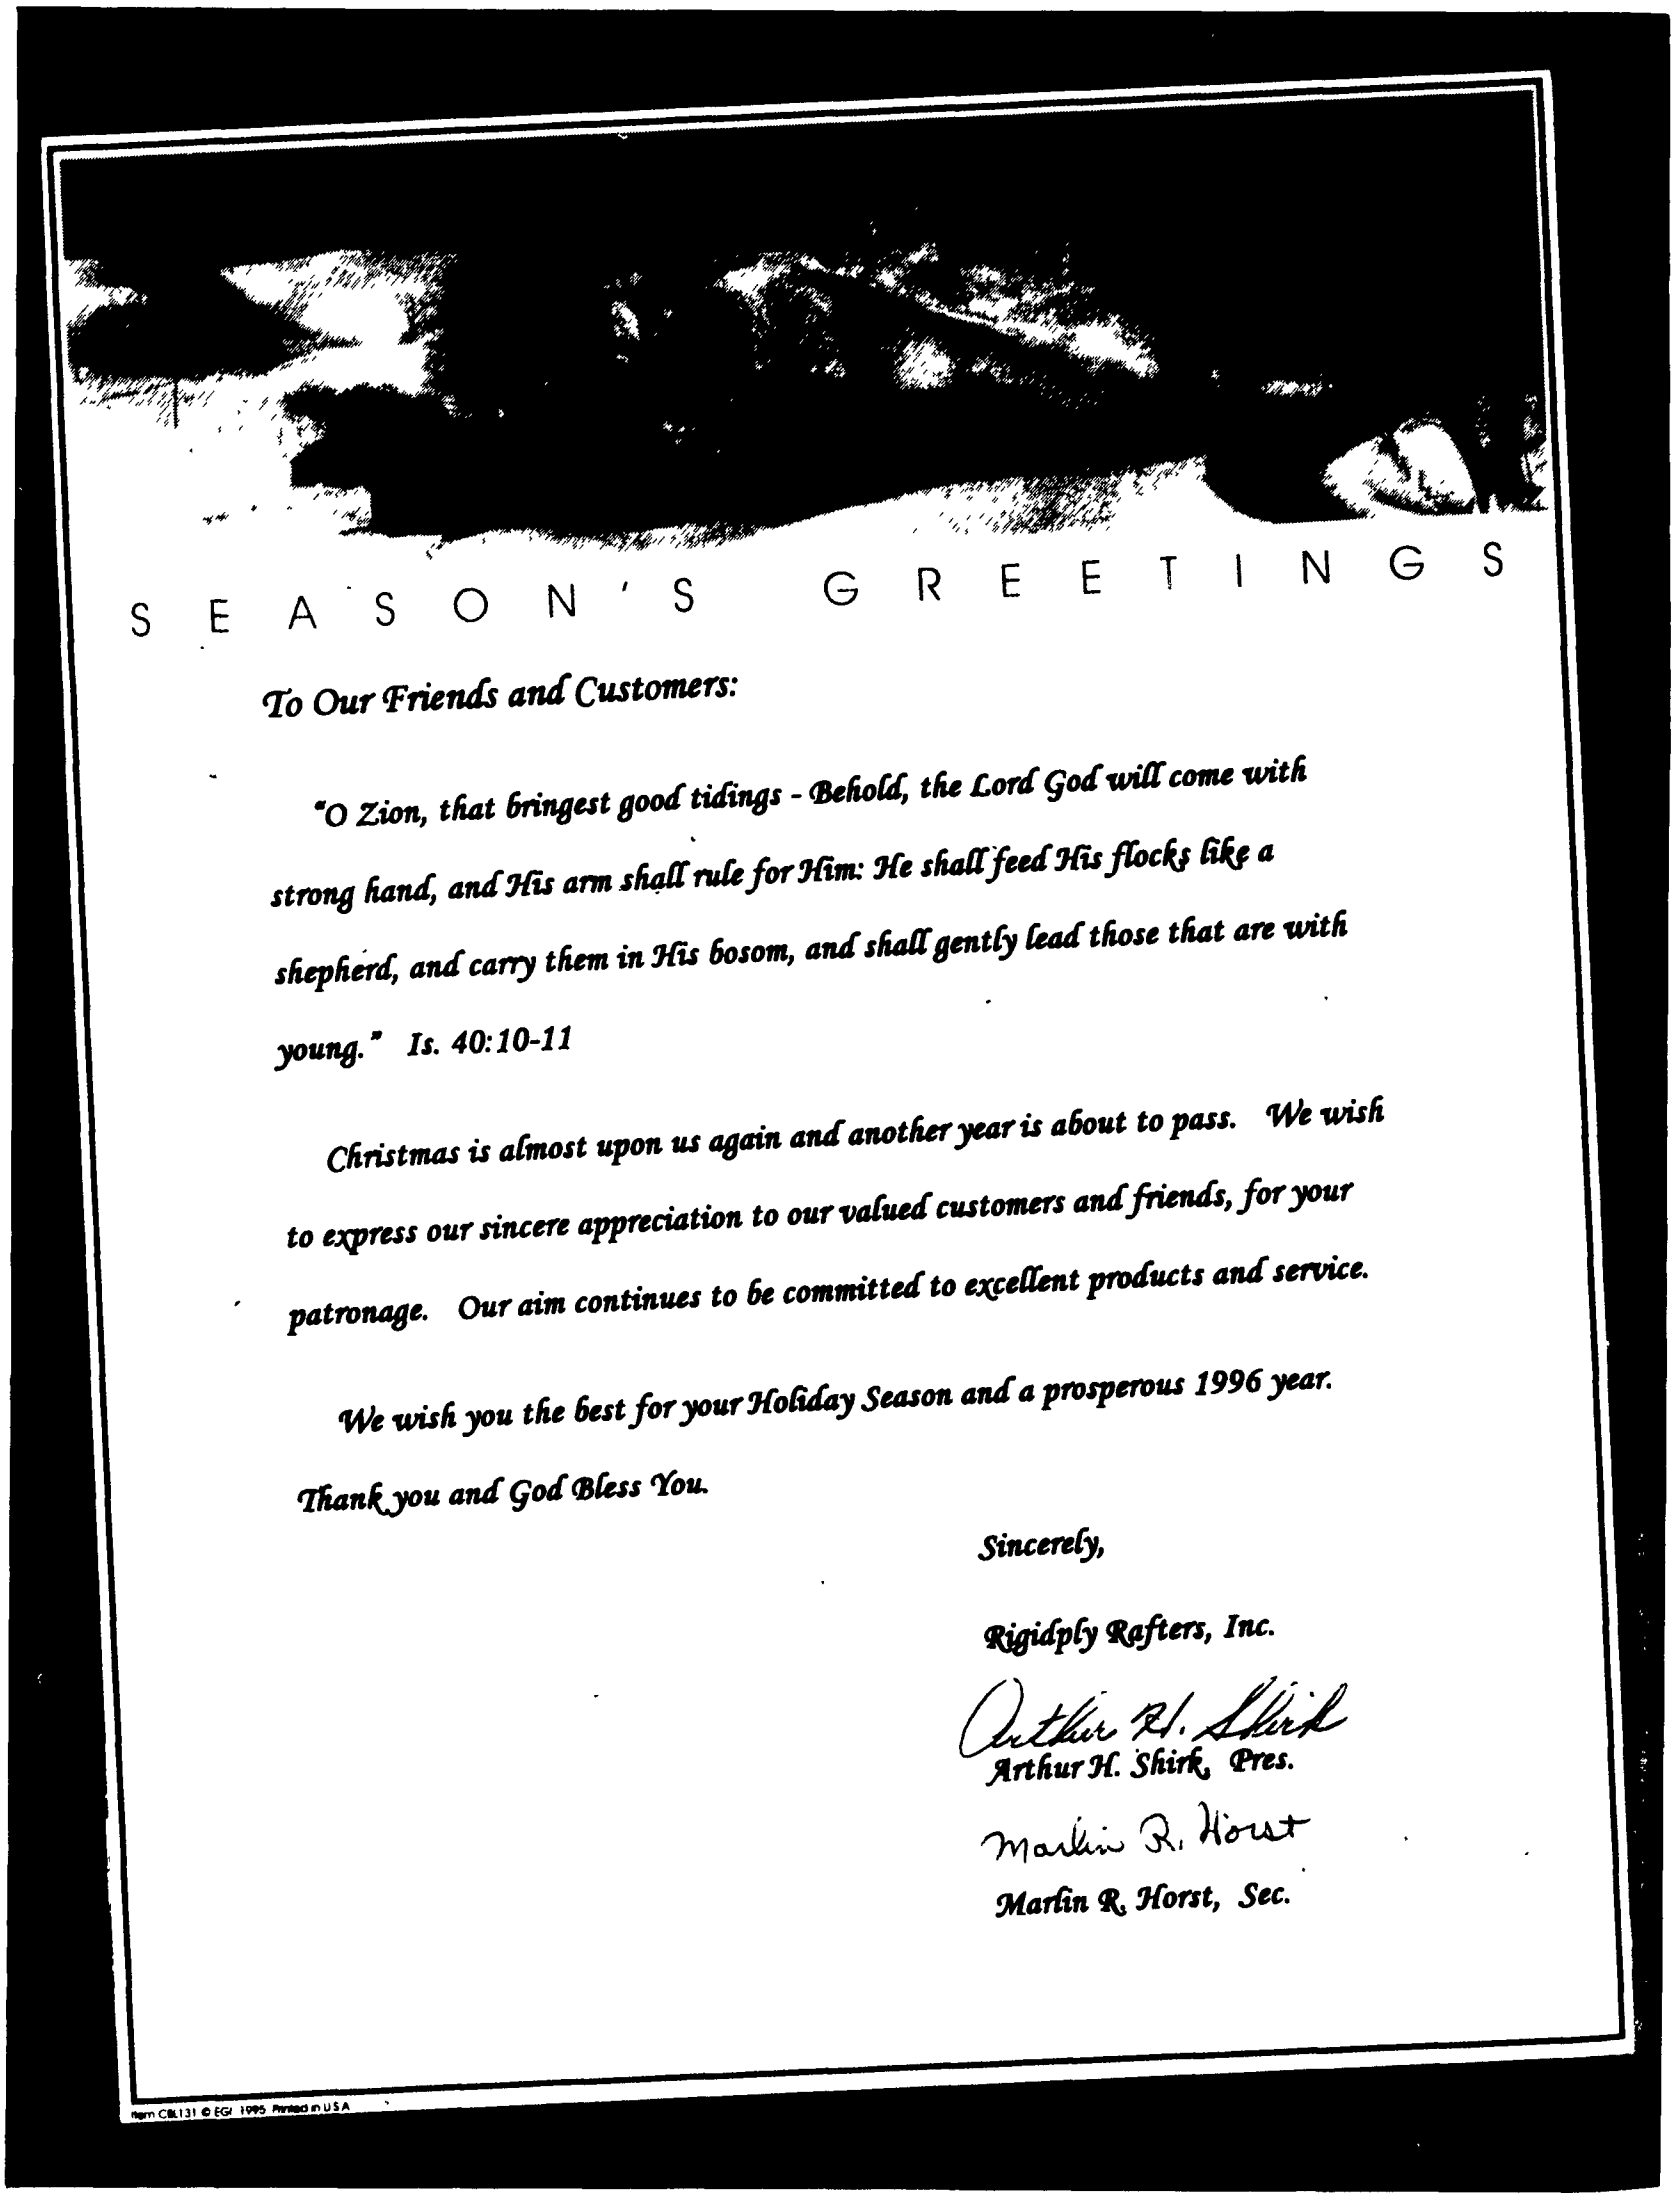
CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The annual tree seedling sale of the Franklin County Conservation District is in progress.

This excellent stock comes from a state certified nursery. This year's seedlings must be purchased in bundles of 25 per species. This insures you of receiving first quality seedlings since packets will not have to be opened upon arrival from the nursery.

Seedlings offered this year include (with 25/bundle prices in parenthesis): Spanish Scotch Pine ($6.50), white pine ($8.50), Douglas fir ($7.25), Colorado blue spruce ($7), Norway spruce ($8), Japanese black pine ($7), concolor fir ($9), Canadian hemlock ($7.75), red maple ($8.50), Chinese chestnut ($11), and white ash ($10.25). Fertilizer briquettes are also being offered at $3 per 25.

If you are interested in ordering seedlings, please contact the Franklin County Conservation District, 550 Cleveland Avenue, Chambersburg, or call (717) 264-8074 for an order form.

All orders must be prepaid. Deadline for ordering seedlings is Feb. 2.



SEASON'S GREETINGS
To Our Friends and Customers:
"O Zion, that bringest good tidings - Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and His arm shall rule for Him: He shall feed His flocks like a shepherd, and carry them in His bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young." Is. 40:10-11
Christmas is almost upon us again and another year is about to pass. We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our valued customers and friends, for your patronage. Our aim continues to be committed to excellent products and service.
We wish you the best for your Holiday Season and a prosperous 1996 year.
Thank you and God Bless You.

Master Gardener Ranks Increase

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The ranks of the Penn State Master Gardener Volunteers, available to assist interested individuals and groups with information on home horticulture, has been increased with the December 14 conclusion of the latest training program.

Representing Adams County in the tri-county (Franklin-Adams-York) class of 40 were the following: Ann Radcliff, Biglerville; G.G. Lilly, Hanover; Lisa T. O'Brien, York Springs; Thomas Wajda, Fairfield; Sharron Michels, Gettysburg; Carol Heiser, Gettysburg; and Carol J. Morton, Fairfield.

Working under the direction of Thomas E. Piper, Adams County extension director, these volunteers will merge with some 15 Master Gardener volunteers who remain active in the program which dates back to 1990 when Robert McConkey of Gettysburg and Samuel Sanders of Hanover became the first to be certified for this work in Adams County.

Master gardeners are volunteers who support Penn State Cooperative Extension's educational programs in consumer horticulture. Trainees have expressed dedication and willingness to provide a minimum of 50 hours of volunteer service for Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Master gardeners have one year from the end of training to complete the volunteer requirement. Information presented by Master Gardeners must be consistent with Penn State Cooperative Extension recommendations concerning various aspects of consumer horticulture.

Master Gardener candidates have strong interest and knowledge in horticulture as evidenced by scoring a minimum of 80 percent on a final exam. They possess ability to communicate effectively and diplomatically with others either by telephone, personal contact, group contact, and/or in writing. They are willing to support Penn State Cooperative Extension staff by providing extension audiences with up-to-date consumer horticulture information.

In Adams County, Robert McConkey serves as liaison between the group and Thomas E. Piper, county extension director. Monthly meetings are held to plan and coordinate events. Questions about the Master Gardener program or requests for assistance should be made to the Adams County extension office at (717) 334-6271 or (717) 624-4525.

Lubricator Is Portable, Powerful

CAMDEN, Mich. — E-Power Remote, Inc. has announced its new product, the E-Power Remote GreaseKart, a portable, battery-powered, high pressure lubricator for industrial use.

GreaseKart has the portability of a grease gun but with the power of a pneumatic, bringing power lubrication to any job site. This combination provides many advantages over the hand grease gun and air-operated units. The hand-operated grease gun is manual and provides no power, and air-operated units aren't portable. GreaseKart provides the best of both worlds.

GreaseKart's rugged durability and performance is built for heavy, continuous duty. A good example of GreaseKart's portability and power can be found at school and commercial bus garages across the country. GreaseKart is easily carted from bus to bus for power lubrication to chassis, ball joints, steering mechanisms, etc., thus eliminating the need to move the vehicle into a garage for its lubrication maintenance.

Planters Have Stack Folding Capability

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa—A new line of three-point mounted planters with fully-hydraulic stack folding capabilities and a number of "industry-first" features has recently been introduced by Kinze Manufacturing, Inc.

Model 2100 stack folding planters are available in 8-row W (38 inch/40 inch), 12-row N (30 inch), 12-row W (38 inch/40 inch), and 16-row N (30 inch) sizes. They are the only stack-folding planters in the field today with spring-loaded contact drive tires/wheel modules and self-contained seed rate transmissions, as well as point row clutch capability.

For added versatility, toolbar heights are adjustable for flatland or varying-height beds. The 7.60 inch x 15 inch 4-ply gauge wheels (1 per wing) are equipped with a spring loaded contact drive system. This allows operators to maintain consistent drive, even in rougher field conditions.

The stack-folding design provides superior balance and stability in transport. This unique design uses forward-mounted, outboard folding links combined with overhead folding links to create a stable, wide-based parallel-link configuration. This innovation eliminates overhung weight and instability of the wings during transport—a problem often associated with competitive stack folding-type planters.

Chisel Plow Folds Hydraulically

RACINE, Wis. — Among other improvements, the new Case IH 5800 mulch-till chisel features innovative edge-on shanks that require less horsepower to pull and leave higher residues than conventional designs.

According to Bill Hoeg, Case product specialist-implements, the cutting side of each shank is relatively narrow and the gliding side is wide. The shanks now measure 1½ x 2 x 32 inches instead of 2 x 1¼ x 32 inches. "In other words, we've streamlined in one direction while maintaining the strength through the other.

"People tend to associate chisel plows with traditional cultivation practices," said Hoeg. "In fact, the 5800 is an excellent tool to integrate in a conservation compliance program. It allows deep, full-width cutting with very little of the boiling action or disturbance associated with conventional chisel plows." Crop residue is preserved, reducing erosion, while hard subsoil is broken up to prepare a good seedbed. Additionally, the sweep design cuts weeds and reduces compaction zones in the soil.

The 5800 is available in single- and double-fold versions, in sizes from 13 to 53 feet. The vertical-fold models have an automatic hydraulically actuated transport lock for convenient road travel.

Monsanto Announces Sustainability Award

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Monsanto Company announced the creation of a $100,000 annual award intended to accelerate the development of new technologies and systems to improve world environmental and economic sustainability.

The prize, named the John Franz Sustainability Award, will be given to the individual or team who submits the most promising project.

Global sustainability issues include pollution, climate change, soil loss, biodiversity, water availability, population growth, economic development, and consumption of non-renewable resources, among others.

"New technologies and practices are urgently needed if we're going to create both economic opportunity and a healthy world for future generations," said Robert B. Shapiro, Monsanto chairman and chief executive officer. "We're working to develop some of these technologies and we hope the Sustainability Award will encourage others in that direction."

Entries will be expected to address one or more of the following areas:

* Conservation: Unique practices which contribute to conservation of natural resources.

* Technology - Innovative developments in processes, equipment, practices and strategies involving development, infrastructure, and access to credit and inputs which allow people to be self-sufficient.

* Education - Programs which train people to acquire and apply information which will improve the quality of lives, utilize renewable resources at a sustainable rate, substitute renewable resources for non-renewable, and dramatically reduce the production of waste.

Monsanto employees and their families are not eligible for this award. The deadline for entries is June 1, 1996. An awards committee comprised of internal and external experts will review the entries and award the money in August 1996.

John Franz, for whom the Sustainability Award is named, was the inventor of Roundup herbicide.

Farmers Look For Improved Weed Control

PHILADELPHIA — Even though half of all soybean farmers in the nation are happy with their current weed control program, they are ready to switch if they see something that might work better.

This was a basic conclusion from the Authority Research Surve completed for FMC Agricultural Products Group in conjunction with its planned 1997 crop-year introduction of Authority herbicide.

In the survey of more than 1,000 soybean farmers from across the nation, Total Research Corporation determined that 50 percent of soybean growers are very satisfied with their current herbicide program. Forty-two percent of all the farmers interviewed are somewhat satisfied, and only 7 percent are not satisfied with their current herbicide program.

Of the 1015 farmers interviewed, 58 percent had used their current herbicide program four years or less, and many of those farmers indicated they were still having some problems controlling a few troublesome weeds.

"This research suggests that although farmers might be satisfied with their current program, they will quickly switch if a better product comes along," said Nick Phillips, FMC venture manager for the introduction of Authority soybean herbicide.

Forty percent of all soybean farmers surveyed are very satisfied or somewhat satisfied with using a pre-emergence or preplant incorporated weed control program, but postemergent herbicide applications are commonly used by this group.

Pull-Type Planters Offer Innovative Features

SALINA, Kan.—Great Plains new 60 and 80 Series planters offer innovative features with all the durability it takes to plant effectively in no-till conditions.

Built from the ground up for no-till punishment, these planters feature a sturdy 7 inch x 7 inch mainframe and an optional 5 inch x 7 inch fertilizer coulter bar to handle all coulter and residue wheel combinations.

For easy access, the transmission is mounted on the end of the frame. Sprocket combinations provide a wide variety of populations without requiring any tools to adjust.

The planter row units, designed for no-till conditions, feature heavy duty parallel arms that pivot on Iglide bushings to reduce wear and maintenance. Spring packages are available in light, medium, and heavy duty to match the needed down pressure to the row unit.

Opener blades are offset, to penetrate hard ground and cut through tough residue.

Firm Ranks Among Top Five Ag Consulting Businesses

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The November 1995 issue of Agri Finance magazine ranks the top 50 agricultural consulting firms each year from more than 350 practicing firms within the U.S.

Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service, Inc. (BACS) is the only Pennsylvania firm to make the list, and is the fourth largest firm of its kind in the United States by the number of farm clients served.

BACS was founded in 1978 by Michael Brubaker, CPAg. Brubaker attributes the steady but rapid growth of his agricultural/environmental consulting firm to a dedicated professional staff of agronomists and support personnel, a growing awareness of environmental issues, and an intelligent farm community demanding key and timely independent services.

In addition to serving the farming community, BACS consultants also function as advisers to the golf course and turf industries, conduct independent field research at their own research farm in Ephrata, and write in excess of 300,000 acres of nutrient management plans annually.

West Snyder FFA First In Pa. At Convention

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Eighteen representatives from Pennsylvania's number one FFA Chapter joined more than 34,000 other FFA members and guests at the 68th National FFA Convention in Kansas City recently.

West Snyder FFA Chapter was ranked first in Pennsylvania for the second consecutive year based on their program of work and chapter activities. There are 179 FFA Chapters across Pennsylvania.

After completing the Chapter Award Application and placing first in state competition, the application was forwarded to the National FFA Center for ranking on a national level. The chapter recently received a gold emblem at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City for their efforts in the National Chapter Award Program.

Accepting the award for the chapter were Luke Zerby, chapter vice president, and Tiana Weller, chapter assistant secretary.

The National Chapter Award program is designed to improve the chapter's program of activities, assist chapters in evaluating their accomplishments, and reward chapters for providing educational experiences for the entire membership. Out of 7,456 chapters in the United States, only 315 chapters across the United States received gold, silver, or bronze ratings at the National FFA Convention. These chapters recognized were the top chapters in the nation.

West Snyder FFA Chapter also received a national gold emblem in the BOAC (Building Our American Communities) program. Jeremy Brininger and Shannon Stuck accepted the national BOAC award. The chapter's projects included a streambank restoration program and conducting a conservation day at West Beaver and Beaver Adams Elementary schools.

Sales District Kicks Off 1996 Season

WAYNE, N.J. — More than 200 Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealers attended a 1996 kick-off meeting sponsored by the Raleigh sales district of the crop protection chemicals department of Cyanamid's agricultural products division.

A highlight of the meeting was the presentation of an award, on behalf of Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealers to North Carolina's commissioner, Jim Graham, for his outstanding contributions to the agricultural industry in the state.

The two-day meeting included presentations that highlighted four of Cyanamid's recently-introduced crop protection products. In addition, technical sessions (approved for pesticide license and certified crop adviser credit) were held to discuss topics such as weed and insect management, plant disease updates, and new agricultural technology and equipment.

The Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealer network was formed in 1986 when Cyanamid decided to sell directly to retailers rather than marketing through distributors. Today, the Cyanamid AgriCenter™ dealer network consists of more than 7,500 retail outlets.

MUN Test Provides Basis For Dramatic Milk Production Increase

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

TUSSEYVILLE (Centre County)—Doug Rimmey thought he was getting about maximum production from his 70 Holstein cows. But last Tuesday, sitting around the farm shop table eating fried eggs and potatoes in the farm equipment and repair shed with his dad Ralph, Doug explained how the use of the new Milk Urea Nitrogen (MUN) test, offered by Pennsylvania DHIA, increased milk production by three pounds per day per cow in less than two weeks.

"As tight as it is in the dairy business, I thought that with a herd our size, it would not take too much to recover the price of the MUN test," Doug said. "I didn't think it would be wise for us not to try it. We were getting out of our cows about all we could, but by just adding a pound of protein per cow per day — my, what a difference."

Ralph and Clara Rimmey rented the 100 acre Tussey Ridge homestead that borders Route 322, east of State College in 1956 after Ralph got out of the U.S.Navy. They started with one month's rent paid in advance and $150 in pocket. In addition to their shoe-string start, Ralph claims he didn't even know how to run the milking machine.

"You can't start out small today and make it," the elder Rimmey said. "It's a shame."

In 1959 the farm owner gave the Rimmeys nine months to round up the money to buy the farm, which they did. And since that time, they have been making a living at farming and building equity in their farm.

About 17 years ago, father and son went into partnership. Doug took over the cows, and Ralph manages the fields. In addition to the home farm, they rent 130 acres. But the highway that puts development pressure on the farm also makes it rough to get too productive land away from the farm.

"The traffic doesn't like us out there, and we don't like to be on the road with farm equipment either," Doug said.

Since 1988 they have farmed very little grain, using the land to produce forage and pasture for the cows. Both tie stall and a free stall barns are used to house the cows. A TMR mix is used. The ration includes corn silage, oat silage, dry shelled corn, soybean meal, and high moisture corn. Additional feed is top dressed for cows milking over 60 pounds.

Milk production herd averages have been over 20,000 pounds for a number of years, but production seemed to have reached the top level.

"When the first MUN test results came back, I knew very little about the numbers," Doug said. But I saw we were in the recommended range. So, I thought, "Oh, good! At least we know where we stand."

But their feed consultant, Jeff Bogus from the Center Hall Farm Store, had other ideas. The initial MUN test showed the herd was not wasting feed. But at 12.1 points they were at the low end, and Bogus suggested an increase in protein to see if it made a difference in the tank. It did.

Within two weeks, production increased by three pounds per cow per day. And while the next MUN test came in at 16 points, they were still within the safe range, and the Rimmeys had a nice return on their investment in both the MUN test and the extra pound per cow per day of protein they fed the cows. Adjustments are still being made to see if they can fine tune the feeding program even more.

"Hopefully, I will know more in a few months or a year," Doug said. "But what we see is very interesting. We were forage testing and feeding in line with the results of these tests. But with MUN testing you can zero in closer to see where you are overfeeding or underfeeding."

As Doug and his wife Belinda, and their children, Nathan, 17, and Brandi, 13, become the succeeding generations on the Tussey Ridge farm, technology and new ways of doing things make a business of farming unheard 50 years ago. But it's farming as a business that allows the Rimmey family's love of the land and the farmers' way of life to be realized into the future. Put the old loves and the new ways together and you get the true meaning of what it really means to have a "family farm."

Performance Economics Introduced

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—PA DHIA has developed a Performance Economics Program in association with Dr. Steve Ford, Farm Management Specialist at Penn State, and George Wilcox, Senior Extension Agent, Erie County. Confidentiality and simplicity were our objectives. The program consists of 5 pages of instructions, a one page worksheet, a completed worksheet as a sample and a replica of the PA DHIA Technician's laptop computer feed screen.

The simple instructions guide our members on a line by line calculation of the worksheet, which provides cost per cwt. figures on home grown feeds, purchased feeds, and other non-feed items. What are the non-feed items? Basically it is all other expenses in operating your dairy farm including dairy herd cost, heifer cost, and other items like BST.

You start with your 1040F Federal Income Tax form or your budget if you make one. You end with cost per cwt. figures which are reported to your Technician. You report your milk price. You need to get Herd Summary I, PA DHIA will do the rest.

What will you get back? On Herd Summary I: 1) Cost per cwt. to produce milk in a test period. 2) Net farm income per cow on a 12 month basis. 3) Net farm income for herd on 12 month rolling basis. 4) Cost per cow and net income per cow by lactation group. 5) Net income per cow by group and you can create a BST group. 6) Gross income projection and there is more. On the Monthly Lactation Report: 1) Net income per day on each individual cow. 2) Total expense per cow per day. 3) Total

(Turn to Page C7)

Fifty years ago, Clara and Ralph Rimmey came to farm these 100 acres along Route 322 east of State College known as Tussey Ridge. Today their son and daughter-in-law, Doug and Belinda, and grandchildren Nathan, 17, and Brandi, 13, carry the family's love of farming into the future.

Herd And Cow Profiles

LARRY SPECHT
Professor of Dairy Science, PSU

UNIVERSITY PARK—The DHIA program will take a new approach to the verification of production data in 1996. The new Herd and Cow Profile system when put in place should help protect individual DHIA affiliates from costly lawsuits that arise over disagreements between individual herd owners and their DHIA service providers.

There will be no change in the procedures for the proper collection of production and identification information but rules that dictate a producers code of ethics will be replaced by the Herd and Cow Profiles. Central to the "profile" concept is the idea of "open disclosure." This means that all potential users of a herds information will be able to access it. Potential users are AI units interested in buying or contracting for young sires as well as breed associations or individuals who want to check on the credentials of animals that are to be sold at promotional sales or farm dispersals. Other segments of the industry responsible for documenting production increases and genetic gain such as the USDA Animal Improvement Program Lab (AIPL) and Extension personnel would also have access to such information. Producers who refuse to agree to open disclosure of their herds information would not gain the confidence of potential buyers and could lose sales of breeding stock.

Dr. Todd Meinert, research scientist with the National Dairy Improvement Association says that "Herd profiles will provide information that allows all users of DHIA data to determine the quality (accuracy) of the data produced by the herd, as well as the characteristics of the herd." If users don't feel that the data are accurate, they can choose not to do business with the herd.

What sort of information will be available under "open disclosure?" Many items are recorded such as the rolling herd average for the past twelve months, the number of cows on test and the number of cows with identification changes in the last year, the percentage of cows, sires and dams with valid identification, and the percentage of cows completing 305 day lactations in a year. Lactation curves are plotted for individual cows and for their contemporaries. A comparison of the test day milk weights versus the bulk tank weights will be shown. Bulk tank comparison pro-

Surrounded by members of a Polish extension agent delegation to the United States, Pat Toretti, senior computer programmer for Pa.DHIA, sits at a computer and demonstrates the abilities of modern data processing equipment and technology to serve dairy farmers.

Opens Doors To Polish Ag Agents

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Earlier this year a delegation of agriculture agents and directors of extension services in Poland toured the State College area and included a visit and tour of Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association in their itinerary.

The Polish delegation was here for two weeks as part of an ongoing extension-exchange program which helps educate both sides involved.

Pa.DHIA Manager Dave Slusser and his wife Kaye helped serve as tour guides for the group, some of whom they met previously and developed working relationships — several years ago the Slussers had been in Poland on a project to help dairy farmers there boost milk production.

While in Poland, the Slussers witnessed the establishment of DHIA services there, and met with several of the agents during that time.

Now, those Polish agents got an opportunity to see the modernization of Pa.DHIA services and how milk samples are conducted and reports created.

On several occasions, members of the Polish delegation remarked on the high production and superiority of American dairy cattle. They said they were amazed to see the high records of American cows.

The group toured the Pa.DHIA laboratory and data processing center, meeting with employees while getting an explanation of the responsibilities and work flow of Pa.DHIA and the services it provides for its members.

PA DHIA has requested time on Dairy Day Programs to present this program to you. We are also requesting our county DHIA committees to schedule county meetings on Performance Economics. Dr. Steve Ford or Dave Slusser will conduct these meetings. If you cannot wait for a meeting, contact Judy Walker at PA DHIA. Our address is Orchard Road, University Park, PA 16802, or call 1-800-DHI-TEST and Judy will send the program out to PA DHIA members free.

Summary Of Board Action

DAVE SLUSSER
General Manager

STATE COLLEGE (Centre County)—The PA DHIA Board action over the last six months can be categorized into four major areas: Long Range Planning and new services; Educational Programs; Business Management; and Membership.

Long Range Planning and New Services

The board appointed a Long Range Planning Committee to set the course for PA DHIA into the next century. The committee will explore the cooperative's structure, the changing dairy industry, the role to be played by PA DHIA, the possibilities of corporations with other farm cooperatives, and the development of new services.

MUN (Milk Urea Nitrogen) analysis was introduced to provide a new nutrition management tool for our members, and a MUN Herd Summary Report was developed by PA DRPC. A Performance Economics Program was developed to be introduced to the members so they can better evaluate their production cost for the herd, groups within the herd, and individual cows.

The board gave top priority to the development of a PC based data processing program. PA DHIA does not plan to purchase a new main frame computer, but move to a PC based system which is more economical to run.

As part of the marketing plan, field technicians received training in marketing, and an advertising and promotion program was developed. The Westfalia Dairy Plan Program is being marketed by our technicians and has been put on the laptop computers to leave test day reports to our members.

Educational Programs and Seminars

Three technicians training programs and local training sessions were conducted during the year. Information was given on the MUN program and its benefits to our members, as well as other technician responsibilities.

Seminars for veterinarians and nutritionists were held throughout Pennsylvania to seek advice and suggestion on PA DHIA service. Educational meetings were held on the MUN program with the help of Dr. Jim Ferguson and Dr. Linda Baker from New Bolton Center.

Plans are underway to hold educational meetings throughout Pennsylvania on the Performance Economics Program that has been developed.

Membership Action

The director districts were rearranged to include new members in New York, New Jersey and Maryland.

The one day Annual Meeting held last year was evaluated, and the same format will be followed at the February 16, 1996 meeting. A survey of the members attending indicated an overwhelming support to continue with a one day meeting. The same roundtable discussion format was approved for the district meetings. Besides the normal business conducted at the district and annual meetings, Dr. James Ferguson will make a presentation on MUN, and Dave Slusser will present the Performance Economic Program.

The structure of the Executive Committee was changed to include: President, Vice-president, Secretary, Treasurer and Executive Committee Member at large, and the immediate past President. The President can only succeed himself 3 consecutive years then a new President is elected. The immediate past President is on the Executive Committee one year after being President without voting rights. He must be off the executive committee one year before being eligible to be elected back on the executive committee. The executive committee member at large has voting rights but cannot be re-elected in that position.

The planning committee reviewed the entire recognition program at the local and state level and recommended a uniform program of recognition at each county annual meeting. The board approved the recommendation.

Business Action

The board reviewed the credit policies of the co-op and made changes. The basic policy is that payment for service is due test day. A uniform system was approved for fees, pay, bonus and benefits for all employees. The board sets the policies and approves the budget by which the management runs the cooperative. The board hires the General Manager who in turn hires other employees he needs in order to provide the service to the members. The manager must follow the policies set by the board, and he is the only employee of the board.

The just completed fiscal year included a good improvement in the finances and new services to members. It was a busy and productive year for the board.

Herd And Cow Profiles

files provide an indication that the data were collected accurately on test day.

Two very important parameters are plotted for the herd. One is the distribution of predicted transmitting abilities (PTA's) on individual cows and the second is the distribution of mature-equivalent (ME) milk yields for all cows over the past year. Cows with extreme PTA deviations and/or those with exceptionally high milk records would be identified on the graph that plots the herds performance.

Much of the information that would be required for a herd profile is already available on the herd summary reports produced routinely by the dairy records processing centers. The same is true for individual cow profiles since most of what is needed is already on the individual cow pages printed by the processing centers.

Much of the information that would be required for a herd profile is already available on the herd summary reports produced routinely by the dairy records processing centers. The same is true for individual cow profiles since most of what is needed is already on the individual cow pages printed by the processing centers.

There is much discussion as to the relative value of records produced by the various testing plans in use today. Weighting factors will soon be available for milk, fat and protein results that have been collected via different test-day protocols. The traditional twice-a-day milking (with weighing and sampling of the milk at each milking) procedure will likely be given a value of 1.00 if there are 9 or more tests for a 305 day lactation. AM/PM weights would be weighted at something less than 1.00. If they were given a weight of .90, it would take 11 AM/PM records to equal the value of ten 2X records. Factors will need to be developed for other forms of test such as bi-monthly, AM/PM, AM/AM, or PM/PM and the many variations that are becoming available as alternatives to the 2X test procedure. Recently, there has been interest shown in the use of Owner-Sampler (OS) records for genetic evaluations. AI units have asked DHIA to look at the possibility of including OS records in the sire evaluation procedures. What weight would be assigned to OS records is unknown. At present, one of the problems with OS records is the poor identification of sires and dams. Pennsylvania OS records have slightly less than 50 percent sire identification while most of the rest of the country is at 40 percent or less. Without the presence and encouragement of the DHIA technician at milking time it is difficult to get dairy producers to take the time and have the interest to write down much beyond the cows barn name or number and her milk weight.

A lot of change is taking place in the DHIA program. Hopefully such change can be accomplished without compromising the accuracy and integrity of the genetic evaluation procedures that have made the U.S. dairy cattle breeding industry number one in the world.

Put Things In Perspective With Herd Summary I Report

DAVID BIGELOW
Training Coordinator

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The revision of the Herd Summary I Report has given the PA DHIA membership yet another tool in the everyday management of their dairy farms. This report is similar to the old Herd Summary I; however, the nutrition summaries have been expanded and the report is now a 2 sided report.

A. Test Period Daily Averages

The feeds fed are now summarized by the new feed types, and the amount fed is on a dry matter basis. This same idea carries over into the 365 day testday totals and 365 day rolling totals.

B. Profile Of Cows By Lactation Number

This is new to Herd Summary I and contains nutritional summaries for both milking and dry cows by lactation, contained for each is:

1. Dry matter pounds fed by feed type and total
2. Dry matter fed as a percent of bodyweight
3. (feed) cost per cow
4. Foot note code that is tied to the "ration message" footnote area that appears at the bottom of page 1
5. Body condition averages

Each lactation group also contains number of cows milking, dry, total and test day production statistics.

C. Profile Of Cows By Group Number

This profile appeared on the Old Herd Summary I; however, the nutritional portion has been expanded. Contained for each group and the herd are:

1. Dry matter pounds fed by feed type and total
2. Dry matter fed as a percent of bodyweight
3. (Fed) cost per cow
4. Ration densities on a dry matter basis. a) Dry matter percent; b) Crude protein percent; c) Net energy percent
5. Footnote code that is tied to the "ration message" footnote area that appears at the bottom of page
6. Body condition averages

D. Profile of Feeds Fed

This profile is new to Herd Summary I. It provides for each feed reported the feed's name, nutrient densities, cost per ctw., amount fed per group and total for the herd. A cross feeds within group totals are also listed.

E. Test Day Somatic Cell Count Summary.

This is new to Herd Summary I and provides a somatic cell count summary for each test during the past year. The shaded line at the top corresponds to the test 1 year ago and the last line printed corresponds to the most recently conducted test.

F. Test Day Herd Inventory

This section is new to Herd Summary I and contains an inventory of animals for each test during the past year. The shaded line at the top corresponds to the test 1 year ago and the last line printed corresponds to the most recently conducted test.

G. 150 Day Adjusted Milk

New to Herd Summary I is the average production at 150 days in milk for cows in milk 305 days or less for each test during the past year. The shaded line at the top corresponds to the test from one year ago and the last line printed corresponds to the most recently conducted test.

H. Rolling 365 Day Average

This section which is also new to Herd Summary I provides a production summary for each test during the past year. The shaded line at the top corresponds to the test from 1 year ago and the last line printed corresponds to the most recently conducted test. Listed for each test is the rolling three hundred sixty-five day average as of that date.

I. Profile Of Herd Inventory & Milk Sales

New to Herd Summary I is a ten month projection of cows to be milking and dry at the beginning and end of each month. This lists the number of cows and heifers to calve, cows to dry off and an estimated number of cows to be culled (died/sold) each month. A monthly estimate of milk produced, shipped and the income from milk sales is also provided.

J. Herd Dates

These appeared on the old Herd Summary I, but in a different format.

K. Group Milking Times

New to herd Summary I is the summary of the start, stop and midpoint of each groups reported milking times. Milkings that were sampled are so marked. This section also contains the reported price received for milk and its components.

Currently there is an option to receive this report. Be sure to sign-up for your Herd Summary I Report on your next testday!

Are Your Enterprises Profitable?

DR. STEVE FORD
Associate Professor of Agricultural Economics, PSU

UNIVERSITY PARK—Most Pennsylvania dairy farms have multiple enterprises. The primary enterprise on these farms is the production of milk. However, each of the forages or grains produced on the farm is also a separate enterprise, as is the production of replacement heifers. It is important that each of the enterprises on the farm contributes profit to the whole-farm business.

Pennsylvania dairy farms generally produce feed for the livestock on the farm. One way to look at this activity is that farmers are able to "add value" to the grain and forage grown on the farm by "marketing" it through the animal. This strategy makes sense, particularly if the farmer is primarily interested in producing crops. The modern dairy, however, must focus on the profitability of the milk enterprise. Consequently, it is important to acquire quality feed inputs at as low a cost as possible.

Increasing costs of farm machinery and storage structures force many dairy farmers to rethink their current crop programs. Too often, costs of production for crops reach levels that are far higher than the price at which feed can be purchased. Continued on-farm production of feed crops under these conditions result in lost profits. Alternatives available to dairy farmers who find themselves producing crops at a cost that is higher than market value include: the use of custom operators for certain field operations, leasing equipment instead of buying it, and outright purchase of feeds instead of on-farm production. There are many farms that no longer milk cows but are still in crops. Frequently, contractual arrangements can be reached to have those farms produce feed for dairies that are still in operation.

Results from an analysis of farm records provided by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau for the 1994 Pennsylvania Dairy Farm Business Analysis indicate that almost one-quarter of the 850 farms in the sample would have been better off renting out their land and buying all feed than continuing their current crop programs. This large number of farms indicates the impact that a close examination of enterprises profitability can have on the dairy farm. Of course, such an analysis takes time and fairly good records. The allocation of expenses such as seed and fertilizer to individual crops is fairly straightforward. Care must be taken to also allocate the farm's fixed costs associated with machinery ownership and both paid and unpaid labor to each enterprise. For example, if unpaid family labor was no longer used to bale hay if all hay was to be purchased, that labor could be used elsewhere to improve farm profitability.

Although the previous discussion has focused on crop enterprise profitability, the same arguments can be used for replacement heifers. Again, good records are essential for enterprise evaluation. The bottom line, though, is the bottom line. Remember, each enterprise should contribute to profitability on the farm.

Milk Urea Nitrogen: Why Is This Important, What Does It Mean To Your Herd?

VIRGINIA ISHLER
Department of Dairy and Animal Science

UNIVERSITY PARK—Pennsylvania DHIA is offering an additional management tool, milk urea nitrogen analysis, which can monitor the urea concentration in milk. This is another method to monitor your herd's performance feedstuffs. The rumen microbes use fermentable carbohydrates to provide energy and organic acids in combination with ammonia to form amino acids and subsequently microbial protein. When rumen ammonia concentrations exceed the ability of rumen microbes to along with other records and pertinent information.

Milk urea nitrogen or MUN measures the efficiency by which nitrogen is utilized by the animal. Nitrogen is an essential component for rumen microorganisms and the production of microbial protein. Ammonia (NH3) results from the microbial degradation of incorporate ammonia into microbial protein, ammonia is absorbed through the rumen wall, converted to urea by the liver, and high levels are found in blood, serum, or milk. If ruminal ammonia concentrations are low, this can also be reflected as low MUN's.

When MUN values are too low or too high, then problems may exist in the ration which can impair animal performance, reduce economic efficiency, and affect environmental pollution. The primary areas in nutrition that affect MUN levels are total crude protein intake, degradable and soluble protein intake, and the amount and type of nonstructural carbohydrates supplied in the ration.

The following areas should be examined closely in a ration program if MUN levels are higher than what is considered normal:

- Excess crude protein in the ration
- Excess levels of degradable intake protein
- Excess levels of soluble intake protein
- A combination of any of the first three items
- Inadequate nonstructural carbohydrates and excess protein

Lower than normal levels of MUN's may indicate:

- Excess nonstructural carbohydrates and inadequate protein
- Deficiency of soluble intake protein
- Deficiency of degradable intake protein
- Excess levels of undegradable intake protein

These are some areas in nutrition that would need to be evaluated. However, MUN values are not meant to be used as the sole indicator of a possible problem. MUN's are an additional TOOL. You need to use other information in conjunction with MUN's to evaluate the herd such as records on reproduction and health performance, milk fat and protein levels, and diet composition through analysis of forage, feed, and TMRs.

The analysis of sample day milk for urea nitrogen (MUN) is new to DHIA. MUN values are expressed as milligrams per deciliter (mg/dl) For a group of 10 or more cows with 40 or more days in milk, a target group average MUN is 10 to 14 mg/dl. Within a group, most animals will be within +/- six units of the group average MUN (Ex: If the group's average is 12, most cows will fall within a range of 6 to 18).

MUN levels are affected by the total intake of crude protein, degradable and soluble protein, and the amount and type of nonstructural carbohydrates supplied in the ration. While low levels of MUN might indicate low protein intake and high levels of MUN might indicate high levels of protein intake, it is quite possible the problem is the result of a combination of several different nutrient intake levels. Therefore, a trained herd consultant should work with you in interpreting these results

To assist you in the analysis of your herd's milk urea nitrogen values, PaDHIA has prepared this report. It summarizes test day data for your milking herd by days in milk and by group number.

The 'PROFILE OF COWS BY DAYS IN MILK' summarizes data by days in milk categories for 1st, 2nd, 3rd and greater lactations. Cows are summarized across lactations within days in milk categories to provide herd averages.

The 'PROFILE OF COWS BY GROUP NUMBER' summarizes data by group number Cows are summarized across groups to provide additional herd averages.

The information that appears within each profile is described below

Cows:

- Milking . . . . . Number of milking animals
- MUN Samples . . . . Number of milk samples analyzed for milk urea nitrogen

Testday Values:

- Milk Lbs . . . . . The average daily milk production on test day.
- % Fat . . . . . The average percent butterfat of the milk produced on test day.
- %Pro . . . . . The average percent protein of the milk produced on test day.
- %SNF . . . . . The average percent solids-not-fat of the milk produced on test day.
- Linear SCC . . . . . The average weighted somatic cell count of the milk produced on test day expressed as a linear score.
- Wtd SCC . . . . . The average weighted somatic cell count of the milk produced on test day.
- Lo MUN . . . . . Of the test day samples analyzed, this is the lowest milk urea nitrogen value.
- Hi MUN . . . . . Of the test day samples analyzed, this is the highest milk urea nitrogen value.
- Avg MUN . . . . . The average milk urea nitrogen value of the milk produced on test day.
- Days in Milk . . . . . The average days in milk through current test day for milking cows. This only appears for the Profile of Cows By Group Number.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"This is the kind of silo you need to protect your valuable feed."

The major costs on dairy and livestock farms are related to FEED: production...harvesting...storage...purchases...delivery to animals. Significant savings in time and money are possible when you store and deliver your feed from a poured concrete silo.

"As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency: This can have as great an influence on Profit as milk price changes."

Protect your valuable feeds from rain, sleet, snow, mud, ice, wind and the sun's heat. Reduce the stress. INCREASE THE EFFICIENCY OF YOUR FEEDS, LABOR, AND LIVESTOCK!

At Sollenberger Silos Corp. we know a lot about feed storage and handling; we've been in the business since 1908. If your plans call for new feed storage, give us a call...We'd like to contribute to your success!!

NO USED SILOS!
NO REBUILT SILOS!
NO PRE-OWNED SILOS!
ALL NEW FOR YOU.

Multi-lot Belt Feeder

Feeds up to 6 lots of cattle different rations efficiently.

End loading can minimize conveyor investment. You can even convey and feed with one machine to save time and money.

Choice of 12-inch or 16-inch belt. Concave trough carries more feed.

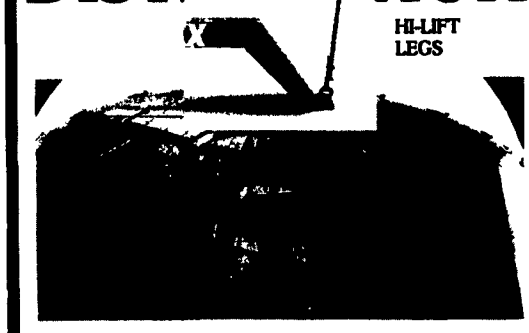
VOLUMAXX

GIVES YOU A CHOICE OF DISTRIBUTION



The new advance design Volumaxx unloader gives you the best of both worlds... your choice of distribution. New HI-LIFT legs let you raise the unloader an extra 15" into the silo roof, so you can use a conventional side distributor. Or, choose the Jamesway Powermaxx™ broad pan silage distributor. With proper distribution, you'll have better quality feed, and you'll increase your silo's capacity up to 35%. And we can prove it!

Side with Alumax ALU-TUFF Steel

When you put up a building, you expect it to be attractive and to last. A building constructed with ALU-TUFF will meet those expectations. That's because ALU-TUFF is made using top-quality materials, super-tough protective coatings, and a unique rib design that's both functional and attractive.

Years from now when other buildings are starting to show their age, your building will still look good.

- A STRONG PROFILE
  High 3/4-inch ribs on nine-inch centers give ALU-TUFF exceptionally high spanning properties for its weight and thickness, while stiffening ribs in flat areas prevent rippling.
- MADE TO LAST
  To keep Alu-Tuff working hard and looking good for years to come, we protect it with an oven-cured system of four different coatings.
- A GREAT LOOKING PANEL
  You don't have to sacrifice good looks to get a tough steel panel.
- MORE QUALITY FEATURES
  Each ALU-TUFF sheet is 38 inches wide to provide 36-inch coverage. That's wide enough to minimize the number of side laps, yet narrow enough to be easy to handle.

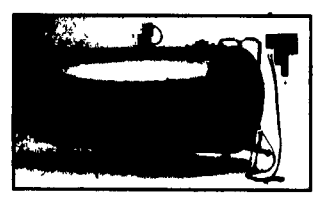
RUFUS BRUBAKER REFRIGERATION

And...

MUELLER
DAIRY FARM EQUIPMENT

Scroll-Compressor Technology
New in 1994



You may pay less for some dairy farm equipment... but it can cost you more!

Equipment costs are not the only cost of cooling milk.

In the long run, total operating costs of a Mueller milk-cooling system are generally substantially less than those of "bargain-brand" milk-cooling equipment.

Example	Mueller	Competition
Cost of equipment	$31 000	$28 000
Cost of electricity @ 08 kW for 12 000 lbs milk/day for 10 years	$17 550	$22 850
Total operating cost for ten years	$48 550	$50 850
Savings	$ 2 300

Contact your Mueller distributor for further comparisons.

Happy Holidays

And A Sincere Thank You!

As 1995 comes to an end, we want to thank everyone who helped make it a wonderful year for us. For those of you who supported the Dairy Heifer Sale at Vintage, sold us or bought dairy cattle from us, or purchased Feeder cattle, we want to take this opportunity to wish you and yours a Happy Holiday! We feel fortunate to work in a business where our customers are also our friends.

We have all types of Holstein heifers and Feeder cattle available. Give us a call and we can help make 1996 a productive year for you. Again, thank you for your support and Happy Holidays from the Williers.

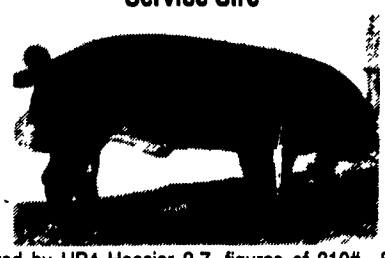
SELLING IN PA. FARM SHOW SALE
JAN. 6, 1996 10:00 A.M.
Farm Show Bldg. Small Arena
6 DUROCS - 8 HAMPSHIRES

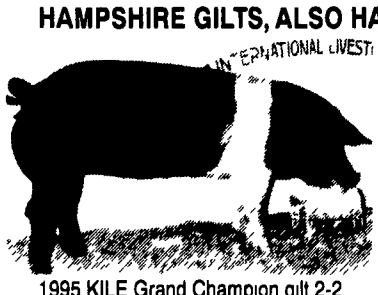
The Duroc gilts are long, sound, heavy muscled, big framed, productive gilts, same breeding and quality as previous KILE and Farm Show winners, These gilts were our pick from group of gilts sold Howard Parrish of Ohio in fall. Several gilts sired by HP3 Master Piece 66-4 figures of 230#, 147D, .59B.F., 7.19 L E., littermate to World Pork Expo. Grand Champion gilt. He sired heavy weight barrow '95 KILE. Carcass figures 249#, .8B.F., 6.4L.E , and 1995 county fair champion Duroc market hog.
Service sire on Duroc gilts is;

Service Sire

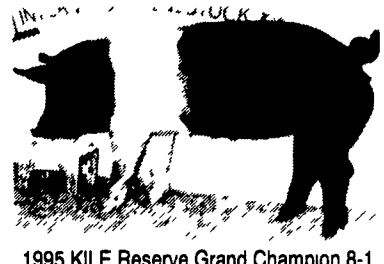


CM5 Hoosier 11-1 sired by HP4 Hoosier 2-7, figures of 310#, .89B.F., 6.48L.E. He is extreme in length, leaness, correct muscle pattern and big framed, very sound, free moving. He has lots of proven genetics in his pedigree and should sire long, fat free, heavy muscled pigs with growing ability.

WE BRED AND SHOWED
1995 KILE GRAND AND RESERVE CHAMPION
HAMPSHIRE GILTS, ALSO HAD PREMIER EXHIBITOR AWARD



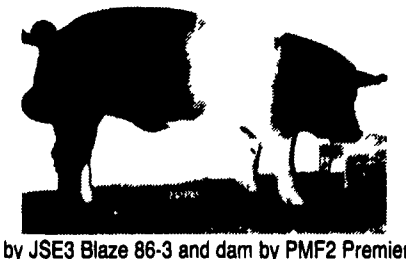
1995 KILE Grand Champion gilt 2-2
354#, 89B F , 8 48L E
Sired by MSM3 Jack 18-1
Sold to LeRoy Larrick, Ohio



1995 KILE Reserve Grand Champion 8-1
305#, .84B F., 7 04L E
Sired by MSM3 Jack 18-1
Sold to Dan Wetzel, PA.

Littermates to both 1995 KILE Champions are selling. We are selling several of our top Hamp gilts of same breeding and quality as 1994 KILE Grand Champion boar and Reserve Champion gilt and 1995 KILE Grand and Reserve Champion gilts.
These gilts are bred to JM5 Blaza 10-7, littermate to 1995 Ohio State Fair Grand Champion boar, purchased at Indiana State Fair for $1,200.00.

Service Sire



JM5 Blaze 10-7, sired by JSE3 Blaze 86-3 and dam by PMF2 Premier Jerry 51-2 Figures of, 295#, .76B.F., 7.60L.E. He is extremely lean, long wide rumped, wide clean topped, exceptional well muscled and big heavy, correct structured boar. We have a lot of confidence in his genetics and ability to sire pigs that can move Hampshire's ahead.
All gilts 30 day blood test-Parvo-Lepto 6-Er Vacc. PRV free #41 Validated #80

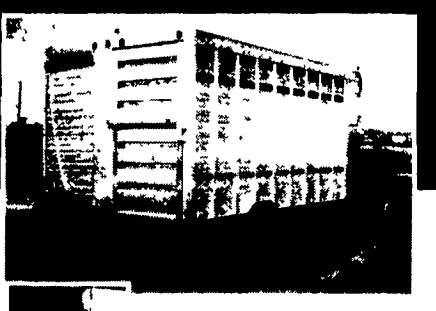
Agriculture Moves on EBY Bodies



M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer custom options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business- building bodies to haul it is ours.

Let EBY custom build one for you.

Before choosing a new tractor, follow one simple rule

ASK AN OWNER

Every new tractor comes loaded with promise. But one comes backed by proof. The 7200 Series MAGNUM.™ • After 50,000 MAGNUM tractors, farmers across the country have discovered the difference that true reliability, durability and performance can make.

A difference that has inspired a new brand of loyalty. MAGNUM loyalty. • Loyalty built on late nights at full throttle in heavy soil, running hard against the weather. On hot afternoons, rim-deep in hard labor. On hectic spring mornings, squeezing three weeks of planting into a two-week schedule. Those are the times that a tractor shows its true colors. And those are the times that MAGNUM excels. Year in, year out, for owner after owner.

• From 130 to 215 PTO hp, there's a MAGNUM to fit any farm. If you want to know more, ask your dealer. Better yet, Ask An Owner.

ACCENT ON THE FUTURE

The title seemed fitting after viewing and listening to a recent musical program where a very talented composer/conductor undertook the arduous task of bringing artists from both worlds of classical and jazz music together as one group. The challenge was met with some bold leadership, determination, coordination, and a profound understanding and appreciation of the diversity within each musical category. These were just a few of the many attributes one could appreciate observing as the composer cleverly searched for and blended a variety of medleys from two very distinct types of music. The result was a musical fete all molded into a beautiful symphony titled, "Accent on the Upbeat."

You might ask, what does such have to do with my producing lamb and wool? I believe, a great deal if you are somebody who is both concerned and interested in meeting the many challenges for restoring industry stability both in Pennsylvania and the U.S. First, we must understand there exists diversity within the domestic sheep industry, and next it is important to recognize you have chosen to be part of an industry that presently has a very fragile infrastructure.

Any industry growth and/or stability comes from continual individual producer support and commitment. The U.S. &/or Pennsylvania sheep industries are no exceptions. As potential composer/conductors, producers need to be on-line with their industry leaders, appreciate diversity, understand the importance of every voice at all levels, communicate their thoughts, and make both a financial and personal commitment if they want their industry to grow and remain strong. The glue for building a stronger industry infrastructure is a blend of all these factors and more.

To some, phasing out of the National Wool Act signaled a complete collapse of the sheep industry and gave reason to abandon ship. If you still profess to believe this, and you have not jet jumped overboard, would you seriously re-evaluate your present sheep production goals? Hopefully, many of your personal sheep business aspirations are compatible with those of American sheep industry. If not, please take time to ask yourself, why not?

Next, look around and take careful notice what other domestic crop production, livestock and poultry industries have been and are doing to build a stronger infrastructure, bolster their image and strengthen their posture in the market place. If all this is not yet convincing enough, to get you thinking how you might better align yourself with your respective industry, then I urge you expand your thinking globally. Take time to carefully review present trade policies, and observe what your international competitors are doing to reshape their agriculture production and marketing programs. If none of this makes any sense, then you probably should move out of the "endangered species" category and venture into the business of raising some exotic species.

The sheep industry, overall has much to gain, and has reason to be "upbeat" as it prepares for the future. To the meek this may sound a bit harsh, but loss of the Wool Act support program, in my opinion, is a blessing in disguise. In many respects we have the jump on those remaining subsidized commodity-based industries who still believe all is well and that support prices must prevail. The destiny of any agriculture (food and fiber) producing industry, I believe, is going to center more and more on production efficiencies, value-based marketing, free-trade policies, and environmental issues. The sheep industry has already demonstrated the ability to adapt well to all these factors. Producer initiative and support, coupled with the collective abilities to look beyond the horizon, design and implement short and long-term educational, marketing and promotional programs is certain to initiate growth and enhance sustainability.

Maybe the question now, for many producers, is the American Sheep industry leadership making proper plans for the 21st century? Nothing is perfect, but I believe the present leadership within the American Sheep Industry Association, (ASI) understands and respects the diversity that exists within the industry. They strive to establish good dialogue with their constituents, government policy makers, consumer advocates, animal welfare and environmental policy groups. Likewise, they have not overlooked the need for building good bridges (coalitions) with various public action groups, in an effort to resolve differing views. Most important, the ASI leadership has a keen respect for the industry's fragile infrastructure. They believe in the participatory process and understand that initiating and supporting some basic grass-roots type programs will boost local and national support. Action on these fronts will become more evident as you take time to acquaint youself with ASI activities and the working committees.

Again, a reminder and final question, is the accent on your personal sheep business, basically complimentary to the parent organization's goals? If so, the opportunity is yours to help move both your business and the national sheep industry forward. The test will come, we hope this fall when you are asked to vote on a national referendum that proposes one cent per pound on domestic and imported lamb and two cents per pound on domestic grease wool. Discussions are still going on as to how they might assess imported degreased wool and wool products.

Pennsylvania sheep producers are fortunate to have the leadership of Janet Mawhinney of Greene County, who is an ASI representative. She and her colleagues have compiled a very detailed report, in the last (May) issue of the Pennsylvania Sheep Producers magazine, on the upcoming referendum. I would suggest you get a copy of this Pennsylvania Sheep Producer magazine. Janet voices the opinion of the ASI leadership, when she urges your participation and written input on the upcoming referendum issue(s). Please take the time over the next few months to become informed and share your thoughts, by writing to the editor of your sheep producer magazine, Lynn or John Zerphy, at (717) 362-4315.

Now, sheep producers have the opportunity to step forward and become partners in building a stronger and more competitive industry. The reality check is, those agriculture industries gaining in producer support, in marketing skills, and in promotional funding will be the industries who can best guarantee themselves a reputable spot in the market place. The sheep industry is no exception. Consequently, because of the present fragile infrastructures existing both within the Pennsylvania and the U.S. sheep industries, timing for this referendum is especially critical. Obviously, the outcome of any national referendum is a direct reflection upon producer attitude and level of commitment. For any producer who believes the sheep industry should grow and continue to maintain a competitive place in animal agriculture, the choice is quite simple. Become an informed voter by calling the American Sheep Industry Association for more details on the proposed referendum at (800) EWE-VOTE.

By now many of you have either read or been informed of the recent U.S. Department of Agriculture's announcement for conducting the upcoming election on the National Sheep Referendum. USDA released information to all State Referendum coordinators and industry leaders that Tuesday, Feb. 6, has been set as the voting date. Voting can be either in-person, at the county extension office or by absentee balloting.

In order to follow the strict guidelines set up for absentee voting it is important that all persons

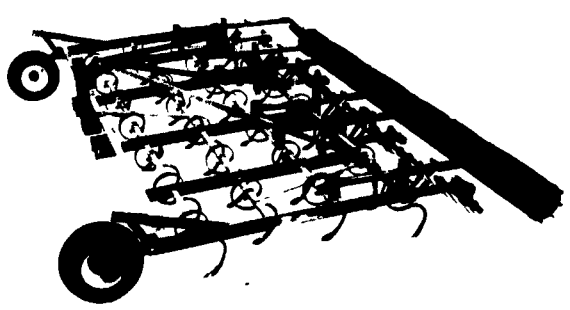
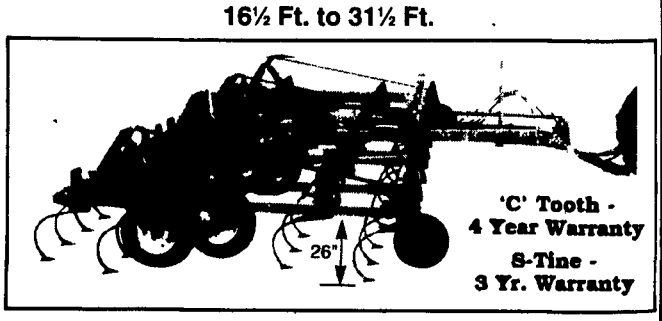
3 PT. BASKET HARROWS



Brillion has designed a 3 pt. S-tine field cultivator with a larger, aggressively angled 12" diameter rolling basket, a 4-bar frame that allows for either 4" or 6" tooth spacing and an adjustable coil tine leveler bar. Gauge wheels are optional.

HFC FIELD CULTIVATORS
16½ Ft. to 31½ Ft.



The "heart" of any field cultivator is the shank pivot point. A "bulked up" shank bracket made of cast ductile iron instead of the usual formed steel bracket, incorporates a hardened steel bushing AND a zerk grease fitting to lubricate the pivot point to reduce wear. The result is thousands of acres of extended life of the shanks.

Board Announces Application Period

GREENSBURG (Westmoreland Co.) — The Westmoreland County Agricultural Land Preservation Board will begin accepting applications for consideration of the purchase of development rights under the state and county Farmland Preservation Program.

If you own farmland in Westmoreland County and are interested in filing an application, contact the Westmoreland County Farmland Preservation Program office located at Rural Route 12, Donohoe Road, Greensburg, PA, 15601 or call (412) 837-5271.

Deadline for the application cycle is Feb. 15.

The Westmoreland County Farmland Preservation Program has protected 1,406 acres since 1992. Three additional farms are in the process of review for state board approval with 1995 funding.

Christmas Tree Growers Back To School

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.)—By the time late January rolls around, most people will be long finished with their Christmas trees. But for a select group of professionals, the Yuletide evergreens will be the center of attention.

Scores of Christmas tree growers from several states will converge on Penn State's University Park Campus for the 1996 Christmas Tree Management Short Course, sponsored by Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. The course will be held Jan. 31 to Feb. 2 at the Penn State Scanticon Conference Center.

"The course is designed to help growers adopt the latest insect, weed and disease control practices," said Nancy Wenner, senior research assistant in plant pathology, who co-chairs the short course with Dr. Paul Heller, professor of entomology. "We'll also cover species and site selection, pesticide use, farm safety and the effects of drought."

Pennsylvania's estimated 1,600 Christmas tree growers harvest about 2 million trees each year, generating about $32 million in economic activity, according to Melissa Nelson, executive secretary of the 500-member Pennsylvania Christmas Tree Growers Association. With 42 million trees growing on 44,000 acres, the state ranks fifth nationally in Christmas tree production.

The Penn State course—now in its 13th year and the first of its kind in the United States—attracts tree farmers from many of Pennsylvania's Christmas tree-growing regions, such as Indiana, Columbia, Carbon, Schuylkill, Berks, Lehigh, and York counties. Growers from other northeast, mid-Atlantic and northcentral states also typically attend.

Wenner said consumer trends influence the content of the course. "For instance, Fraser fir has become a very popular species with Christmas tree buyers," she said. "In fact, Fraser fir probably accounts for the largest percentage of new plantings in Pennsylvania in recent years.

"But since Fraser fir is not native to Pennsylvania, many of the species' major natural pests have not arrived here yet, so growers aren't aware of what potential problems might be looming."

Dr. Jill Sidebottom, a conifer extension specialist from North Carolina State University, will be on hand at the short course for a presentation on Fraser fir pests.

Other popular species currently being planted in the state are Canaan fir, a type of West Virginia balsam fir, and Douglas fir (which actually is not a true fir). Most of the trees now being harvested are Douglas fir, Scots pine, and Colorado spruce. It takes six to 12 years for a tree to grow to harvesting size.

Another hot topic at the '96 gathering is likely to be the drought of 1995.

"Many growers lost newly transplanted trees before they had a chance to establish root systems," Wenner said. "Drought also effects the types of pests thay may cause problems. For example, drought stress often slows growth and makes trees more susceptible to dieback and canker diseases."

Helping growers to recognize symptoms and identify pests is a major goal of the course. "We hope to help producers diagnose problems correctly so they can maximize pest control with minimal use of pesticides," said Wenner. Participants will receive a hand lens and pest manual as part of their registration packet. Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture pesticide recertification credits also will be available to those completing the course.

In addition to sessions on specific insect, disease and weed problems, workshops and labs will cover safety management, pesticide recordkeeping and finding Christmas tree information via the Internet computer network.

A registratioin fee of $160 includes all workshops, instructional materials, breaks and lunches for Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. An optional morning program on Feb. 2, focusing on problems specific to pine species, is available for an additional $40. The registration deadline is Jan. 22.

For more information or to receive a registration brochure and program agenda, contact the Office of Conferences and Short Courses, The Pennsylvania State University, 306 Ag Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802-2601, (814) 865-8301, fax (814) 865-7050.

Perry County DHIA Holds Annual Meeting

LANDISBURG (Perry Co.)—County dairy producers gathered at the Landisburg Fire Hall recently to mark the 70th year of the Perry County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Fifty-nine county herds participated in the testing programs this past year, with 5,000 county cows on test.

Awards were presented to county producers whose herds have excelled in production during the past year. Accepting herd management awards for producing more than 21,000 pounds of milk were Ben Dum, Elliottsburg; Dave Weller, Elliottsburg; and Ken Benner, Millerstown.

Herd management awards for production between 19,000-21,000 pounds were Osscar & Winnie Campbell, Newport; Duane Hertzler, Loysville; and Max & Flo Reapsome, Loysville. Accepting herd management awards for improvement in production for herds below 19,000 pounds were Tom & Shayne Dum, Landisburg; Noah Sauder, Loysville; and Irvin Martin, Ickesburg.

Awards for high cows for milk and protein were received by Ed Brofee, Millerstown, 2-year-old, 28,859 pounds of milk; Nevin Rice, Blain, 2-year-old, 867 pounds protein, 5-year-old, 31,332 pounds milk and 976 pounds protein; Jesse & Barb Singleton, 3-year-old, 30,522 pounds milk and 928 pounds protein; Carl Kresge, Loysville, 4-year-old, 32,953 pounds milk and 1,039 pounds protein; Melvin Weaver, Ickesburg, aged cow, 31,992 pounds milk; and Ray McMillen, Loysville, aged cow, 969 pounds protein.

For several years, the oldest milking cow in the county that was on test was cow #29 owned by Melvin Weaver, Ickesburg. This remarkable cow produced 293,192 pounds (33,700 gallons) of milk in 16 lactations. This past summer's heat took its toll on the old girl, and she didn't live to make 300,000 pounds.

Speakers for the evening banquet included Dave Slusser, general manager of PA DHIA. He spoke in detail about the new MUN test. He commented that this test is another tool to assist dairymen in feeding the cows properly.

"With the variable forages we have stored due to the drought, this tool will be especially useful this winter," said Slusser. MUN tests cost 15 cents/cow for DHIA members and 50 cents/cow for non-members.

Brooks Smith, Newport, informed the group about new initiatives taken at the PA DHIA state board level in managing the organization. Emily Dum, Perry County dairy princess, stressed how important dairy products are to the nutrition and health of adults.

Dave Shenk, regional manager, spoke on some of the cost-cutting measures employed by DHIA in the past year, including the efficiency increases in employees now that many herds have switched to AM/PM. Dave had the dairy farm families in attendance recognize two of the technicians that work in the county—Walter Stydinger, Elliottsburg, and J. Michael O'Toole, Blain. Shenk complimented these gentlemen for their excellent work and dedication to their jobs.

Brent McMillen, Loysville, was reelected to another term on the county advisory committee.

MANAGEMENT PROGRAM MAY REDUCE SPIKING MORTALITY SYNDROME IN SUSCEPTIBLE FLOCKS

Dr. Regina Vasilatos-Younken
Associate Professor Department Of Poultry Science

In recent years, spiking mortality syndrome (SMS) has been recognized as an infectious disease caused by a viral agent, possibly an arena-like virus, that can result in significant losses in turkey, broiler, and some breeder flocks.

Broilers usually show symptoms of the disease within the first 2-3 weeks after hatching, and can exhibit runting, enteritis, and, in response to stressors such as feed depletion, severe low blood sugar or hypoglycemia that can ultimately result in death.

Until recently, efforts to find approaches to reduce the severity or incidence of this disease in highly affected areas have not been successful. However, the recognition that SMS is a transmissible viral disease raises hope for the development of a vaccine for preventative immunization of flocks.

From a management standpoint, there may be some efforts that will reduce the transmission of the disease and minimize losses in already infected flocks.

Darkling beetles have been identified as a transmission vector. Consequently, litter should be cleaned out and houses disinfected between flocks. High house temperatures between broods appear to destroy the virus, so heating houses to 120 degrees F. may be an effective adjunct to chemical disinfection.

Rodents also are knownto be carriers of arena- and bunyaviruses, so an effective rodent control program is essential from every aspect of a good house management program.

One of the recent approaches to control mortality in infected flocks that may be highly effective, although further controlled studies are needed to fully verify this approach, is through the use of a controlled lighting program that minimizes stress and, thereby, the incidence of hypoglycemia and spiking mortality. Such a program is based on subjecting broilers to increasing periods of darkness from hatching until 2 weeks of age, the period when birds are most susceptible to clinical manifestations of the disease, and when high mortalities may occur.

Beginning at hatch, the dark period is increased until, by the second week of life, chicks are subjected to 10 hours of darkness from 8 to 14 days of age. After this period, the duration of darkness is decreased until birds are under 22 hours of light at the time of processing.

In studies conducted by Dr. James F. Davis of the Georgia Poultry Laboratory in Oakwood, Ga., birds that were experimentally infected with inocula previously shown to cause SMS, and maintained under 24 hours of light per day, exhibited 18 percent mortality in response to an induced stress. Of the remaining live birds, 39 percent exhibited hypoglycemia and 22 percent had clinical symptoms of SMS. In contrast, there were no mortalities among inoculated birds maintained under the modified lighting program and no clinical symptoms of SMS.

Only 6 percent of birds in this group were measurably hypoglycemic. Use of this modified lighting program by a broiler company in Georgia reportedly virtually eliminated SMS and runting in their flocks while maintaining normal body weights at processing and feed conversions within the normal range. Positive responses to such a program have been obtained both experimentally and in the field.

The mechanism by which modified lighting reduces the clinical manifestations of SMS and the incidence of mortality is not known. However, because physical activity and sensory-perceived stress to birds are decreased during the dark period, glucose demands would be lower.

It has also been suggested that the sensitivity of birds to stress-related hormones, which normally increase metabolic rate, would decrease with reduced lighting, again reducing glucose demands. The combination of all these factors may thus contribute to maintaining higher blood glucose levels and reducing the likelihood of hypoglycemia.

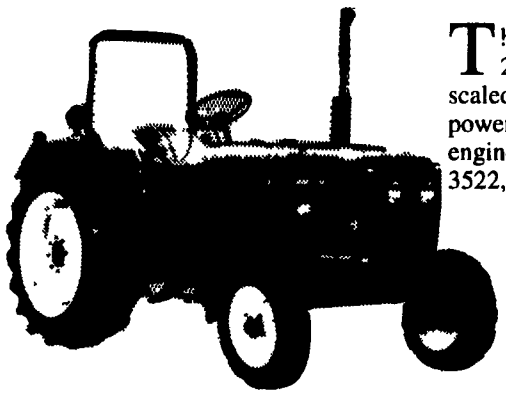
ZETOR'S New Line of ZEBRA TRACTORS



The Zebra Tractor Model 2522 is a real tractor scaled down in size, but not in power. Its 25 HP 2 cylinder engine like its big brother the 3522, handles chores a traditional full-size 2 wheel drive tractor handles. For a fraction of the cost. In a fraction of the space.

Zebra tractor model 3522 delivers 35 HP with its 3 cylinder, 143 cu. in. diesel, water-cooled, wet sleeve engine. No toy, this rugged tractor only drives like a sports car.

The 45 HP model 4522 is the Big-boy of the Zebra line of tractors. If the 2522 and 3522 ride like convertibles the 4522 is like a chauffeured limousine, with you at the wheel. So dress for the part, the neighbors are watching.

All Zebra compact tractors are sold and serviced by Zetor Tractors, a division of American Jawa, Ltd

2 EZ Trail Bale Basket	@ $2,600
Vicon Feeders, Main Station	$2,500
Vicon Feeder, Sub Station	$1,500

The high quality of corn forage produced by the JAGUAR is derived from the CLAAS corn cracker. Two saw toothed rollers run at different speeds with 20% difference open up virtually every kernel and this means good quality silage which is easily digested. This makes for highest energy transfer for higher milk and meat yields.

The rollers are subject to wear and tear, so the CLAAS corn cracker features removeable outer sleeves. The shafts, drive pulley and bearings are all reused, thus reducing maintenance costs. Foreign bodies pass through thanks to a spring loaded mechanism. The 7.7" diameter of the corn cracker rollers is exceptionally large. The speed differential intensifies the grinding effect for effective opening of the kernels.

The degree of corn cracker intensity is adjustable to take account of differing dry matter content. This is done mechanically. An optional electrical adjustment is available.

Since the corn cracker stays on the machine, the changeover from corn to grass can always with a minimum of preparation. This is a help when grass and corn are being harvested at the same time. The area around the corn cracker ahead of the cooling system is very large, enabling ease of access to parts you wouldn't otherwise be able to reach. For instance the accelerator or ejection chute.
